Poetry.

A Fashionable Lady's Toilet.

From the New York Graphic.

Tapers, open the door and draw back the curtain,
There are no hoops, fifteen skirts, puffs or frills,
No, I've changed my mind, now I'd be alone,
Two, count one hair. Quick, how level you pull, you did that on purpose! Those locks looking
Amongst them all not fifteen switch is on good.
Ah, poor, poor victim, what we have to suffer,
Pull again, I'll dress for dinner,
Ah, I'll dress a la grecque, a la Venus, a la Diana,
Ah, and what thanks, thank heaven! Hast the iron
And now I'll dress for dinner, am I smart? Is it
Ah, I'll dress for dinner, and belong plus ultra.
Hath fame yet reached these? Then off the gas—
Ah, I'll dress for dinner, I'll dress as you
Yes, you're dressing, I know the other,
Ah, I'll dress for dinner, I'll take a bather?

I'd take my bath again, if 'twere not late.
Don't pull that curtain quite—I'll survey die!
There, draw in, I won't mind it by and by,
Oh, Topsy, run quick, I'll surely faint,
That corset's pulled so tight. How long the paint
And powder, and Madame Aubrey's "balm of pearls."
And with a little gold dust in my curls.
Where's all that black stuff for my eyelids gone?
Mashed it? With chef's knife my things alone.
Now bring the dress, there's six yards to the skirt,
Here are but five, enough, you say, Miss Pert?
Too true, but there, one must be in the fashion.
There, loop the lace, and nicely the sky wash on,
My ear rings, bracelets, chain, and the locket bring,
My golden butterfly and diamond ring.
Topsy, am I fine? Sure, I ought to be,
If coffee before two time at hours in dressing me.
I'm the "prettiest lady" in Washington? Hmmm!
I'm the worst one that ever dressed for dinner.

The Commission.

Mr. D. W. DUMBLE'S EVIDENCE,

Did you see any communication of any kind pass between the Returning Officer and any one on the Hastings just before he turned round as described? I have no remembrance of it.

When the Returning Officer did turn round what did you see? He appeared to me to come from the middle of the people on Hastings, there surfaced a little knot of men between where he stood when he demanded the qualification in front of the Hastings, my impression is that he moved a couple of short steps. I was not between him and the front, and could not see the edge of the Hastings.

Did you actually see the Returning Officer turn round or did you just observe him as he emerged from the knot of men you mention as he was approaching Mr. Cluxton? I saw him more towards Mr. Cluxton directing his steps towards him as he moved, which is the turning I refer to, he moved from a line about the centre of the Hastings towards Mr. Cluxton northward and westward, when he started move he was nearer the east end than the west end.

Do you mean to say now that the Returning Officer did not turn round from facing the east towards the west just prior to his making demand? I can't say.

Did you immediately on the Returning Officer facing the west and mentioning qualification, address him? He moved up and stood before Mr. Cluxton before he demanded the qualification, I did not then address him.

Do you mean it to be understood that you did not hear anything said by the Returning Officer until he had crossed from the east side of the Hastings to the point where Mr. Cluxton was sitting? I should say that he spoke to Mr. Clux on on his last step coming into position, and closing his demand at the same time, he seemed to close his demand as he reached his position, perhaps he had not closed it when he reached there, but he had partially demanded it before he ceased moving.

How did he address Mr. Cluxton in that? My impression is that, holding out his hand a little towards him, he said, "I demand your qualification."

Was this the first language you heard used by the Returning Officer having reference to the qualification of either candidate? Yes.

Was Mr. Carnegie, at the time his position was first taken based upon your recollection, standing or sitting? My first impression of seeing Mr. Carnegie, on that occasion, was while Mr. Cluxton was stating his qualification was not ready, he was then sitting, they whispered together as they sat.

Was he then sitting to the west of Mr. Cluxton? He was while they whispered, and while I read the law, my impression is that he was on his west. I don't remember seeing him on the left, if I am mistaken as to the side on which he sat, I am not mistaken that he was sitting beside him.

Can you say whether or not Mr. Bertram kept the seat which you have described him as occupying throughout the whole discussion as to qualification? I have no remembrance of his moving, and there was no discussion as to qualifications, it was solely as to Mr. Cluxton's qualification.

Did you hear the Returning Officer while standing in the east part of the hustings say, "I demand the qualifications from the candidates," or to that effect? He did not say it, unless sotto voce.

Did you not, immediately upon a demand of this kind being made by the Returning Officer, ask the Returning Officer "who demanded the qualifications?" He made no demand of that kind, I did not make use of such words, it was so stated in the Peterborough Review after the nomination, and I noticed it and spoke of it as an untruth then.

Did the Returning Officer, addressing you and Mr. Bertram, or one of you, say "I demand the qualification of both candidates, no Returning Officer," or to that effect? He never used any such language he never addressed himself to Mr. Bertram. In reply to a question put to him by Mr. Hutchison, who stood at my right, after he had demanded Mr. Cluxton's qualification he said, "Any elector can demand it, and I can do it as Returning Officer."

Did you hear Mr. Bertram, at this time, say to the Returning Officer that "he was sorry he had not his qualification with him," or to that effect? I did not, I never heard Mr. Bertram speak to him until the speeches were over.

Have you a distinct recollection from whose hand you received the book spoken of, and are you clear you got it from the Returning Office? Yes, I have a clear remembrance of getting the book, and I think from the hands of the Returning Officer. If he did not have it in his hands at the time I asked for it, he got it from me, it was pass'd up by hands either by him or some hand in close proximity to his body. The election clerk stood behind him, and may have possibly handed it to me, but I think I got it from him, it was the election Act or Acts in pamphlet form.

Have you a clear recollection of having said to the Returning Officer, "You do not know your business," or words to that effect? Yes, I have.

Have you a recollection of the reply the Returning Officer made to this quite unquestion of yours? I have not, I don't think that he made any definite reply, he may have said "I think I do."

Have you a recollection of the Returning Officer in reply saying, "I am not arguing with you when they should be put in," or to that effect? This conversation between me and the Returning Officer was as to the requirements of the law as to the proper time for putting in qualifications, he may have made such a reply, I don't remember distinctly. I had said that they would be put in time enough if put in before the proclamation, he suggested that there was no proclamation now, and expressed the idea that they should be put in there and then. This was in consequence of my having told Mr. Cluxton that he need not be in trouble about not having his qualification—that he could put it in afterwards.

Did not the Returning Officer's full answer to your remarks as to his business knowledge, run as follows, "I am not arguing with you when they should be put in, I want the qualifications," or to that effect? He didn't use any such language, he never directly or indirectly, in any shape or used in my hearing, conveyed the idea that he demanded or was waiting for Mr. Bertram's qualification, other than Mr. Cluxton's qualification, or words to that effect.

Have you a distinct recollection of the person to whom you handed the book? Are you clear that you handed it to Mr. Carnegie and that he received it from you? It was handed by me to Mr. Cluxton or Mr. Carnegie, I don't distinctly remember which, but I saw it in Mr. Carnegie's hand.

Have you a recollection of Mr. Carnegie using words of this kind, "We will put our qualification in now, you can do as you like, and we can fight out the law point afterwards?" I do not remember him using such language. I remember Mr. Cluxton whispering to him, "we will put ours in any way, I wouldn't trust them." Mr. Carnegie may have said "we will put ours in any way." I don't remember him ever saying "we will fight out the law point afterwards." I don't believe he said it to me. There was not at any time any reference or discussion as to Mr. Bertram's qualification.

Do you know George Hilliard, Henry Collins, Thomas White, sr., W. H. Scott, and Joseph Walton? Yes.

Were they not all on the Hustings at the time referred to in recent questions? No.

Were any, and which of them there then? I think Mr. Hilliard, Mr. White, probably Mr. Collins, not certain but think he was there. Mr. Scott was off the Hustings. I don't remember Mr Joseph Walton being there at that particular time. He was there a part of the time.

Were not these persons all supporters of William Cluxton? Yes.

Is not Henry Collins, spoken of Reeve of the Township of North Monaghan, and has he not held that position for several years? I think he is Reeve, I think he was last year too.

Do you know he is Reeve? Only by repute. I have no reason to doubt it. I have no doubt about it.

Is Mr. George Hilliard not one of the largest manufacturers of sawn lumber in Peterborough? He is.

As you have suggested it, would you say whether Mr. Hilliard is a creditable person? Precisely so.

Is not Mr. Thomas White, senr., the father of T. & R. White of the Montreal Gazette? I believe so. He is Collector of Inland Revenue here.

Did not Mr. W. H. Scott occupy a position on the north side of the Hustings near the north east corner? I only remember him standing about 40 feet from the north east corner talking with some person.

Then possibly you cannot say what position Mr. Scott occupied while the matter on the Hustings detailed by you was occuring. How is this? Before the poll was granted I saw him standing where I have mentioned, I have no other remembrance of him.

Can you say how long before the poll was granted you saw him there. Was it before you demanded a poll? It was after I demanded the poll, and I think it was while I was speaking to the Returning Officer.

Then you are quite clear are you that Mr. Scott was some distance from the hustings until after the Returning Officer demanded Mr. Cluxton's qualification? I do not say so, I saw him for a moment standing talking with some gentleman I think while I was conversing with the Returning Officer, where he was before or after I cannot say. I noticed him but a moment where he stood.

What conversation were you having with the Returning Officer at this time, was it the same described already or something different? The same.

You mentioned a remark as being made by Mr. Bertram to Returning Officer after proceedings closed as to putting in qualifications. Were not Mr Bertram and the Returning Officer on the Hustings at the time you allude to and were you not upon the ground? It was after the proceedings had all broken up and nearly everyone had gone away. I was on the ground, and just left the Hustings, and they were down also. Because when I was by I turned round and faced the Returning Officer, we were just starting to leave together.

Were there others present besides Mr. Edmeson, yourself, the Returning Officer and Mr. Bertram? I don't remember any others.

Did you hear Mr. Bertram at that time say "Doctor, when do you want my qualification," or to that effect? My remembrance of the words used by Mr. Bertram were that he said, "Well Doctor, what about these qualifications, any way when do they require to be put in?" Mr. Bertram always appeared ignorant of the law regarding qualifications, he had the impression that they required to be put in in any event. In a way which showed a desire to know what the real state of the law was, I judged from his tone of voice and manner.

Did you hear Mr. Bertram say at that time "I will hand it to you next week, if that will do," or to that effect? I don't remember his using such language. I think he said "I intend to put it in any way."

What was your reason for insisting that Mr. Bertram's qualification should not be put in? Because, as there had been no demand made upon him for it I thought it useless and unusual.

If Mr. Bertram desired to have it put in, as you say, why was it not done? I complied with his request, and on the 19th day of August his qualification was prepared and sworn to with the intention of putting it in at once. The title deeds having been in my office for some time, with instructions to prepare it. When prepared, I placed it in my pocket, and being busy, and with other papers, it escaped my notice until the day it was put in. I thought of it at times, but also thought there was no hurry about it, and thus the delay occurred.

Did you not explain and show Mr. Bertram that when no demand was made before a poll was granted, no qualification need be put in? I explained it to Mr. Bertram and the Returning Officer on the day of the nomination. I explained it to Mr. Bertram in my office when he desired to see me on business. He admitted that no demand had been made on him but thought it better that it should be put in.

Did you not know at that time that whatever impression you had about the demand having been made, Mr. Cluxton's friends insisted that a demand had been made in due form upon Mr. Bertram? I never heard it insisted that they made such pretension made, I think, the 22nd day of August or 24th, my impression is now that it was the 24th.

Were you chairman of Mr. Bertram's committee? I was.

As such had you the chief management of Mr. Bertram's election campaign? I had my share, I don't know that I had the chief management.

Who were associated with you in the management if you had not chief management? A number of local committees.

Who was the head of this organization of committees? I was chairman of the Reform Association and head of the committee.

Were you not blamed by Mr. Bertram's supporters, or many of them, for having, as they believed, unjustly kept back Mr. Bertram's qualification in consequence of their not having strong ground as to its not being necessary? No, I have understood from some parties that they had the impression that I in some way was to blame for the trouble.

Did you attend a meeting of Mr. Bertram's friends in September last, to such blame having been attached to you? I don't know, I can't say at present from my own memory, others may remember, but others, I can't say.

Do you remember moving a resolution at that meeting, and addressing the meeting in support of it? I think I do.

Do you remember on your coming forward to do so, you thanked the audience for the applause with which they received you and that you stated that you needed it all under the peculiar circumstances in which the party were placed, and also that you had been accosted by not a few of the Independent Electors, and asked "If you were able to bear all that was placed upon you," and that you were encouraged by the spirit manifested that night? I remember it.

Did this not allude to you in some way having been blamed for the return that had been made? Yes.

Would you be good enough to state if funds were provided for carrying on the operations of the committee you have spoken of? A fair money was raised by private subscription in town for the ordinary expenses of the election.

Where were you on the polling day? In the town of Peterborough, at all the polling places? No.

Were you actively engaged in forwarding Mr. Bertram's election during that day? I did all that I could.

Did you for the purpose of being better able to carry out your purpose successfully engage some rooms near the Commercial Hotel in Peterborough? Not wishing to have crowds in my office, I procured another.

Was it procured simply for that day? Yes.

Who were the parties who did business at that other office on the polling day? I don't know.

Was there any row occurred there that day? Yes, Mr. Cluxton and his supporters came up and made a row.

In what way did they make a row? They wished to intrude into a private office and were expelled.

Did they not demand that you should let go a voter whom you had safely in your private office? We had no voter safely in our private office, whom they demanded.

Did they make any such demand? I don't know, somebody said that there was some one there that they wanted.

Was there afterwards an investigation before the Police Magistrate, and were you not fined a small sum by him in consequence of what took place there? I was fined $1.00 for shoving a man out of my door, who he refused to leave my office; after having been requested to leave it, he having intruded himself in there against my wish.

MR. JAMES CHALMER'S EVIDENCE.

Examined by Mr. Dumble.

What is your residence and occupation? Peterborough, I am not doing anything at present, except looking after a little property that I own. I occasionally purchase property and sell it.

Are you familiar with the prices of property in and around Peterborough? Yes.

Did you value the property along the line of the Cobourg Railway between Peterboro and Mud Lake? Yes.

Do you know the Trenoum property sold to Mr. Bertram? Yes.

Describe it please? It lies in front of the lot facing south towards Peterboro it is very well situated and good land.

What would have been a fair price for that property on the 5th of August last? I should say $75 an acre, with the improvements on it.

If you owned it would you sell it for that? No.

Is $50 an acre a common price for fair farm lands within 6 miles of Peterboro? It would average at from $40 to $80 an acre, from 1 to 6 miles from Peterboro, Mr. Armour asked Mr. Elliott if he would take $80 an acre for his farm 4 or 5 miles from town, he said no. Mr. Armour asked me if I thought it worth $80 an acre, and I said it was not, I thought it cheap at $70.

How large is it? 200 acres.

How much do you think the Bertram land would realize if sold in Park Lots, in August last? I should think it would realized $125 to $150 an acre, if sold in small park lots.

Do you know of any sales of land in the neighborhood of Bertram's land, if so what land, when were they sold, and at what price? I don't know of any lands except at hearsay.

Do you know of any sales of lands now owned by Mr. Edwards? I don't know of any sales of lands owned by Mr. Edwards, I owned a park lot which Mr. Edwards now has, I sold to Joseph Walton, 17 or 18 years ago for £100, it corners the Bertram lot.

How many acres were there? There was supposed to be ten.

What did it next sell at and when? I understand Mr. Walton sold to Mr. Fowles for £200 8 or 10 years ago, I couldn't say as to the year.

Cross Examined.

Was it Andrew Fowles you alluded to as being the purchaser of the park lot you sold to Mr. Walton? I don't know his Christian name, it was a Mr. Fowles, I daresay it was the same lot.

Are there buildings and improvements on the Elliot farm you spoke of? Yes.

What are the improvements on it? I couldn't say what the improvements on it are, there is a cheese factory on it.

Do you know of any lands as far from the centre of the town as that bought by Mr. Bertram having been prior to the 6th of August last, but into park lots and actually sold as such? No.

Re-Examined.

Do you know of the Hester farm? Yes.

Also the land owned by Mr. Pretty? I know the land, I do not know anything of it.

The Smith farm in Douro and Otonabee? Yes, I own part of it in Douro, and I know the Smith farm in Otonabee.

Were not all these lands cut up and sold at large prices? I understood so. I was not at the sale.

Mr. Dumble then announced that he would offer addresses evidence.

There is this difference between hatred and pity: pity is a thing often avowed, seldom felt; hatred is a thing often felt, seldom avowed.

The Modern Roman.

The Roman is frugal; he wastes nothing. When he kills even a chicken he saves the blood and makes it into puddings. Goldfinches, tomtits, and other birds about half an inch long are not neglected as useless, but are collected in sufficient quantities to furnish a meal. The taste for devouring these miserably fry is nothing new in that locality. "Augustus Cæsar," says Suetonius, "ran from parents to rainbutos pisciculo ac time appetebat," was particularly fond of housesparrow brown bread and very tiny little fishes. The Discovery of white-bait in the Thames has inoculated the British with a similar taste. The Roman converts to a useful purpose that which the poorest Englishman would consider as offal, and would throw upon a dunghill with contempt and disgust.

It is seriously affirmed that cats occasionally form part of his diet. He certainly does allow dog fish, otters, and the porpoise and fish tobacco into his bill of fare. He eats with relish the lowest description of food; roasted chestnuts during their season are his daily bread. In summer large, coarse looking gourds, baked till they are soft, and in winter the seeds which are washed from them, furnish an article of consumption. Woodpeckers, magpies, jays, hawks, owls, and other birds of prey, tortoises, every fungus that can be gathered which is not poisonous, thistle-roots, dandelion, shoots of the hop plant, and wild asparagus do not want for purchasers in the Roman markets. Prejudice alone and not reason, prevents us from following the Roman example in this respect.

He is Independent in his habits, particularly when belonging to the middle or lower classes of society, and wants but little assistance from others. He can cook his own dinner, fetch his own wine from the shop, arrange his own room, and mend his own clothes. He is always a better manager and housekeeper than his wife, who generally seems conscious of her inferiority, and entrusts all domestic arrangements to her lord and master. It is quite common in Rome on the morning of a holiday, to see a party of men assembled on some sunny bank in a retired situation, darning their stockings, patching their coats, and performing for themselves those sundry repairs which other men of their class would insist upon having done by their wives.

He is civil, good-natured, and obliging. He is accustomed to intercourse with strangers, and thinking himself to a certain degree their superior, is amused not annoyed, by their oddities. He was trained to gentlemanly habits, while we were yet painted savages. He still bears marks of this historic fact, an still considers us in som degree barbarians. If you turn into a wine shop or eating house in Rome among the low

PETERBORO', JUNE 26th, 1873.

Editorial Items.

Montreal House.

The Messrs. Lasher & Lowry advertise this week, cheap Teas of good quality, Summer Goods of latest styles and good qualities, at low prices, Tweeds, Hats, Caps, Ribbons, &c., in variety. Read their advertisement and give their goods an inspection.

Bible Christian.

The Sabbath School anniversary services in connection with the Bible Christian Church, Peterboro', will be held on Sunday, and a tea in connection therewith, on Tuesday, Dominion day, see bills.

Corner Stone.

The Corner Stone of the new Methodist Church on Charlotte Street, was laid yesterday at 4 o'clock, in the presence of a large crowd of witnesses. Want of space compels us to defer a report of proceedings to next issue.

The Collegiate Institute.

The examination of the Institute and public schools are now going on, we will give a report next week.

Ontario Teacher's Association.

The thirteenth annual Convention will be held on the 12th of August next in the Normal Scholl building, Toronto. Members tickets $1 Ladies engaged in teaching free. Railway Companies will grant Return Tickets for one and a third fare.

Gun Accident.

Lately in the Village of Seaton, while two young men were attempting to get on the roof of a shed to get a shot at some pigeons, one of them named Smith was pulling his gun after him, muzzle foremost, when the hammer caught on a shingle and the gun went off, the shot entering under the ribs of his right side. It is hoped that he will recover. The number of accidents of this class should cause more care in handling fire arms.

Accidents.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. Edward Howson, of Otonabee, met with an accident on the 9th inst., by which his leg was broken above the ankle. Mr. Howson was taking out stumps with a lever Stumping Machine, when one of the chains giving way the lever fell on his leg causing the accident. Mr. Jos. Taylor, also of Otonabee, met with a similar accident in the same way on the 16th inst., and breaking his leg in the same place. We are glad to learn that both gentlemen are progressing favorably.

Prices of Wool.

Wool on Monday in Toronto brought 40 cts. for best quality; "lots" were sold at 36cts. to 39cts. The prospects of higher prices are not anticipated. It is 35cts. in Uxbridge.

Percentage.

The Banks are making from 12 to 17 per cent on their capital. If a money lender made these rates, he would be considered an extortioner, yet the banks must have charged more to pay their dividends, placed to "rest" accounts and meet losses.

Fire in Uxbridge.

This Village was revisited by fire last week and considerable damage done. The citizens complaints against the Council for not purchasing a fire engine are very loud.

Port Hope.

The citizens of our sister Town are making preparations on a large scale for a gala day on Tuesday next, Dominion day. Tickets on that day both ways can be obtained for one fare.

Braden & Duchesneau.

We understand that Mr. Duchesneau has disposed of his interest in the above firm. The business from the 1st of July will be conducted under the name and style of Braden & Cain, Mr. Cain taking Mr. Duchesneau's place. Look for their Advertisement next week.

A New White-washing Machine.

The County Council spent some time last week in trying to White-wash the Reports of the Review, and hence in rubbing over the Editor. Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean? A wiser than we are has given the answer.

The Railway Advertising Agency, Montreal.

We have received from this enterprising firm a neatly printed pamphlet of 15 or 16 pages, containing a list of the newspapers published in the Dominion, their nominal circulation—the latter from the best sources within their reach. It also contains all the Railways in operation and distances between stations, and is therefore a Canadian Railway Guide as well as a Newspaper Directory. The value of the column relating to circulation must be taken for what it is worth, as for many forget to give correct information as to their circulation, we fear.

Business Commercial.

The sentence of James Johnston, for the murder of Mr. Frizzi, in the County of Brock, has been commuted to imprisonment in the Penitentiary for life.

Weather and Statistics.

Any proverbiality to an alarming extent on the South of the Lakes just now.—Every newspaper contains news items of that sort.

Crushed to Death.

A man named Breen, of Mount Forest, was crushed to death in a drain, on the 17th inst. One side of the drain giving way crushed him against the other side. After being taken out the man never regained consciousness.

The Royal Canadian Bank.

During the 11 months ending 31st of May, then Bank made $197,413 net earnings, out of which was paid two dividends of eight per cent, $50,000 place to "rest" account. and a balance carried forward. The reserve is now about 11 per cent of paid up capital.

The Bank of Toronto.

The "rest" of this Bank is more than half its capital. The Stockholders received two dividends of 6 per cent through the year, and the average profits amounted to 17 per cent.

Cobourg Road.

The Directors of this Road held their Annual meeting last week in Cobourg. They afterwards, accompanied by Hon. Messrs. McKeller and Pardee and Messrs. Read and Boultbee M. P. P's. and others, paid a visit to the mines. And on Monday last passed over the new part of the road. We understand that they expressed themselves highly pleased with the management and progress of the work. Our readers will see by a letter in another place that it is expected the portion of the Road north of Rice Lake will be finished by the 20th of July.

Harvest.

This place had a narrow escape of being burned down on the 21st instant. A fire broke out in Elliott's store the upper part of which was occupied as a dwelling. This store, Frasers shop, McVars grocery store, were all destroyed. The fire was stayed by the greatest effort, but not untill considerable damage was done to property adjacent besides the property consumed There is only a partial insurance We understand that Mr. Elliott is at work rebuilding, with the greatest energy.

THE COMMISSION.

The last of the evidence taken here on the "Peterborough Outrage" we have given in this issue. Our readers will join with us in expressing our thankfulness that the nonsensical questions of Mr. Cluxton's Counsel have come to an end. They amounted to nothing, and only show how little grounds they have for an investigation. The fact that Mr. J. F. Dennistoun required two days and a half to ask a few questions that might have been asked and answered in as many hours, proves conclusively that the main object was to kill time and heap up expenses, as not a single iota of evidence has been obtained favorable to their position. On the contrary, all the evidence goes to establish the position taken by us from the first.

The Review is a little riled that the Editor thereof and other witnesses that he names, supporters of the Conservative Candidate, were not put in the box. To this it may be answered, that Mr. Carnegie, when at Ottawa, refused to be a witness. When solicited to identify Mr. Bertram, he refused. He then had an opportunity to be a witness for Mr. Bertram, and in doing so, his legal friends could have questioned as they pleased, and he might then have given to the world his version of affairs on the Hustings. He refused, however, and he need not now wonder that he was not allowed another opportunity. We would like to be in a position to chronicle his evidence.

As to his insinuation "that Mr. Bertram or his friends seek to leave the impression that all who supported Mr. Cluxton would perjure themselves for the sake of their party," we simply allow such base and uncalled for suggestions to recoil on the propagator thereof. He has so accustomed himself to think only evil, and that continually, that a generous idea gains no place in his bosom.

The evidence of men, given in all good conscience it may be, requires to be carefully weighed, as lawyers know how to draw forth answers that may have a double meaning, the wrong one of which may as readily be used as the right one. Our dear brother may construe the words used as he pleases, but we beg of him not to make them apply to all his friends, as by doing so he will pervert their meaning. We wonder if in his list of witnesses he contrived to pair Bloats, &c? To the pure all things are pure.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Council met on Monday evening. Ten members of the Council present. Messrs. Sperry and Dixon absent.

In the absence of the Mayor, Mr. English presided. The minutes were read and confirmed.

The Clerk submitted a communiontion from Hon. W. Cayley Provincial Auditor, stating that the amount due by the Town to the Municipal Loan Fund, is $72,430.46, and soliciting suggestions, or objections, if any are held. Referred to the Finance Committee;

"Mr. Moor gave notice of the introduction of a By-Law at next meeting to open Bethune and Stewart Streets between London and McDonald Streets.

The Council adjourned for two weeks.

THE J. A. ROSEBOROUGH ESTATE.

On Monday the case of Errett vs. Gamble was continued before Mr. Edwards. Margaret Driscoll, the servant girl of Jas. A. Roseborough, and John Irwin were sworn, but nothing more than has been, elicited. From the evidence, it appears that on the night of the 28th of May, furniture, had been removed from Jas. A. Roseborough's dwelling, to the dwelling of Mrs. Roseborough's father, John Gamble. The goods found were a sewing machine, a lamp, and an ottoman. The goods are believed to have been Roseborough's when he removed them, and that therefore, they could not be considered stolen. The goods left at Mr. Bleeckers to be returned, consist partly of household fixings and goods from the store, but it is not known who had them previously to their being returned.

On Monday when David Gamble was being called to trial he was missing, and has not been seen since. And as matters now stand, MacDonald, and David Gamble and Jas. A. Roseborough, are strongly implicated in the attempt to remove the goods.

There are ameliorating circumstances in connection with what may have been considered Mrs. Roseborough's as she would consider them her own, and that she had the right to remove them, where she pleased; but this cannot be said of the store goods.

Wednesday John Gamble was again up for sentence, when the magistrate, committed him to take his trial, for receiving the goods.

SOUTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL.

The Council met in the Council Chamber on Monday, June 16th, 1873, at 4:30 o'clock, p.m.

James Wood was heard regarding the loss of a sheep and lamb killed by dogs. On his being sworn, he deposed that he had made diligent search as to whose dogs done the damage.

Joseph C. Barnard on being called deposed that he considered the sheep to be worth $6, and he thought a lamb pointed out to him as about equal to the one killed was worth $2.

COUNTY COUNCIL—JUNE SESSION.

SATURDAY.

The Council met about 11.20 a.m., the Warden in the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and signed.

Mr. Peck wished to make a statement that will enable the Council to take up such business as might be brought forward to advantage. He said a petition had been brought down with 200 names on it in favor of a By law, but he thought it contained something contrary to the charter, and he insisted that it should be sent to their own lawyer and have his opinion. His objections were sustained by R. A. Harrison, and that gentleman is now preparing a petition which will be submitted—perhaps in a few weeks. Another meeting must necessarily be, it will require ten days for that purpose, and then the Warden must call a meeting. To prevent two meetings the Council, when it adjourned to day, should stand adjourned for two weeks from Tuesday.

The Warden was in favor of finishing business now, as the petition may fail to be presented, but if presented, he would call a meeting of the Council.

Mr. Walton also favored finishing the business then.

It was moved by Mr. Peck, seconded by Mr. Choate—That when this Council adjourned, at noon, it stand adjourned till two weeks from Tuesday at 12 o'clock. Carried.

On motion of Mr. Collins, seconded by Mr. Golborne—The Committee on appointments to office reported recommending the appointment of Mr. T. Armstrong as a member of the Board of Examiners in place of Mr. Burt who has failed to attend the meetings of the Board.

On motion of Mr. Peck, seconded by Mr. Choate—The Report was adopted.

On motion of Mr. Collins, seconded by Mr. Blezard—A By-law to appoint a member of the Board of Examiners was read a first time.

The By-law was then read a second and a third time and passed.

On motion of Mr. Sanderson seconded by Mr. Walton—The Committee on County property reported.

They recommended that the Warden get the Court room properly ventilated by tin or other ventilators.

They also recommended that in compliance with a request from Col Haultain, the new Registrar, that the Warden procure a clock and table for the New Registry Office, and also to ascertain that the furniture purchased from Captain Rubidge in 1863 is forth coming and in good order. And they expressed their pleasure that the New Registry Office is about completed.

On motion of Mr. Powell, seconded by Mr. Brown—A By law was read to confirm a By-law No. — of the Township of Asphodel in reference to closing an allowance of road in said Township.

Moved by Mr. Golborne, seconded by Mr. Pearce—That a Memorial to the Commissioner of Crown Lands for a sum of money or immediate assistance to replace the burnt bridges and crossways lately burnt on the Burleigh road, and that the Warden and Clerk do prepare, sign and forward a Memorial for that object.

On motion of Mr. Peck, seconded by Mr. Blezard, the Committee on the Equalization of the Rolls reported. See report next week.

Mr. Moher moved, seconded by Mr. Blezard the adoption of the Report.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Sanderson, seconded by Mr. Walton, that the report be amended so as to make Smith $9 instead of $10. He explained that the best part of the Township had been taken away and annexed to the Town, thus really depriving Smith of several thousand dollars of most valuable property, and the North of the Township contained thousands of acres of poor land. Taking these things into consideration he tho's Smith ought to remain at $9

Mr. Walton also referred to property in Monaghan and in Otonabee, equally good, and yet in their Assessments they were not as high as the land in Smith, and that Douro, Ennismore, Otonabee and Asphodel were low compared with Smith.

Mr. Peck defended the Report by showing that in all the Townships a large addition had been made to the value of personal property while very little had been added to that class of property in Smith, and in view of this, he thought Smith should remain at $10. The report was adopted.

Mr. Golborne moved, seconded by Mr. Blezard, that M. S. Dean be Caretaker of the Mud Lake Bridge instead of Mr. McCarthy.

Mr. Peck opposed the motion, and took the yeas and nays on it, all voting for it except Peck, McDonald, Parker, Calcutt and Powell.

The Council then adjourned to Tuesday 8th of July, at noon.

The following letter has been handed to us with a request to publish it.

To the Reeve and Ratepayers of the Township of Harvey:

You call my attention to a report which has gained circulation in Harvey to the effect that it is not the intention of this Company to make permanent the Railway from Cobourg via Peterborough to Chemong Lake. There is no foundation whatever for such a statement. The cars will be running from the North shore of Rice Lake by the 20th of July. Every mile and every foot of this road will be equal to any in Canada. We have spared neither time or money in its construction, and I venture to say no better railway can be found any where.

We are pushing the bridge across Rice Lake as fast as material can be had for that purpose, The Bridge will be sufficiently advanced for the crossing of trains by the First of June, 1874.

We are building the work in the most substantial manner, and consulting of the plans of Walter Shanly, Esq., one of the best Engineers in the Country. When completed it will stand for all time. This I undertake to guarantee.

With regard to the extension of the Road from Chemong Lake to [illegible] I can only say this: That [illegible] any difficulties point themselves, there [illegible] necessary [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON SESSION.

After reading the Minutes:

On motion of Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. [illegible] the Committee on the Warden's report was adopted.

The [illegible] adopted on motion of [illegible] by Mr. Watson.

On motion of Mr. Calvert a By-law was read the [illegible] time for the purpose of [illegible] for taxes beyond the limits [illegible]

On motion of Mr. Fisk seconded by Mr. MacConnell, a By-law to amend By-law No. 251, in relation to voting by ballot was read a first time. It was afterwards read a second and third time and passed.

On motion of Mr. Calvert, seconded by Mr. A. P. Reed—The By-law [illegible] fixing the time for sitting Court at [illegible] was then read and third time and passed.

THURSDAY SESSION.

The Road and Bridge and other Committees occupying the greater part of the day, there was a short session.

The Council met about 5 o'clock, all the members present.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. Pearce drew the attention of the Council to the Consolidated Municipal Law, cap. 54, as to appointing an Arbitrator under the Act, especially in reference to the settlement between the Town and Chemong.

Mr. Peck stated that he believed no penalty [illegible] been given of the appointment of the [illegible] appointing Arbitrators. Sometimes [illegible] and they would [illegible] to be appointed in the place.

On motion of Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. [illegible] the resignation of Mr. [illegible] was accepted.

Moved by Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. Calvert—That [illegible] be given to have the room formerly used by the Clerk of the Division Court, fitted up with suitable accommodation for the use of the members of this Council.

On motion of Mr. Hunt, seconded by Mr. R. A. Peck.—The special committee appointed to report upon a statement published in the Globe newspaper, over the name of Mr. MacDonald Reeve of Dysart, reported.

To the County Council of the County of Peterborough:

We, the Committee to whom was referred the matter in regard to a communication of A. MacDonald, Reeve of Dysart, which appeared in the Daily Globe newspaper of June the 9th, beg leave to report:

That we have duly considered the whole matter, and find that Mr. Sanderson, Deputy Reeve of Smith, was not justified in [illegible] or causing to be placed in the hands of Mr. Pearce, Reeve of Belmont, while he was entitled to a statement which was not strictly in accordance with facts.

That Mr. Pearce has just cause of complaint against the action of Mr. MacDonald, Reeve of Dysart, although he Mr. Pearce acted with the best [illegible] in the use of the statement thus placed in his hands, creating the impression that a telegram had been received, giving intimation that the mandamus suit against the County had been decided in its favor.

That Mr. MacDonald was not justified in publishing the statement that the "Reeve of Belmont said he held in his hands a telegram from Toronto intimating that the mandamus suit had been decided in favor of the County."

That your Committee are fully convinced that Mr. Pearce made use of no such words, but on the contrary, when asked by Mr. MacDonald if he had received a telegram, Mr. Pearce stated that it was not a telegram but a statement from the Deputy Reeve of Smith, and further that when Mr. MacDonald applied to the Deputy Reeve of Smith, Mr. Sanderson, he said it was not a telegram, but that he had received his information from Mr. Fairbairn.

Your Committee cannot therefore approve of the course taken by Mr. MacDonald in publishing a statement which was not strictly in accordance with facts, and thus placing the Reeve of Belmont in a false position.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

T. G. CHUATE.
S. S. PECK.
H. CALCUTT.

SOUTH ONTARIO.

The Statesman after commenting on the political History of T. N. Gibbs and the dodge of the Premier in swearing in Mr. Gibbs on the 14th and issuing the writ at once, in a few hours thereafter by some means placing it in the hands of the Returning Officer and getting the nomination fixed, says:

"But why such unprecedented haste in the matter of re-election? Not a word was publicly uttered or known about the affair until late on Saturday night, and then the Returning Officer's Proclamation was issued, fixing the nomination for the 23rd inst. On Saturday Mr. Gibbs was sworn into office in Quebec, and in a few hours thereafter the Returning Officer —over 430 miles from the seat of authority—had his proclamation printed and posted, fixing the election at the earliest possible moment. Can any one doubt that this most unusual haste was prompted with the sole view of preventing opposition, by not allowing time to select a Reform candidate? We fancy all will agree that the dodge was a characteristic one, quite in keeping with the antecedents of the U. Prog party.

"But fortunately the sharp trick was frustrated. The Reformers of South Ontario were ready for the battle at an hour's notice, and on Monday their candidate was in the field, in the person of Mr. James Holden of Whitby Town, who was chosen at a large and influential meeting of the party, hastily convened. Bills were at once issued, calling meetings throughout the Riding in the interest of the Reform Candidate, and a short but hot contest will ensue. As a consistent and well informed member of his party, Mr. Holden enters the field with the confidence of his political associates, while as a Director of the Dominion Bank, a prominent partner in the Whitby and Port Perry Railway Company, as Official Assignee and Financial Agent, and as gentleman of integrity, he commands an influence throughout the Riding that will require a great many of T. N.'s dollars to surmount. Mr. Gibbs has been a subservient slave of the Dominion Government, and by his acceptance of office becomes a partner in the guilt of Ontario's cesspool. If South Ontario now pronounces in his favor, with his record and then of his associates during the recent session of parliament fresh in their memories, it will be entirely owing to the abandonment of principle for the sake of pelf—for nothing but a liberal expenditure of money, in the corruption of the people, will secure his return. We have good hopes that principle will be [illegible] the in which case Mr. Holden's election will be accomplished.

Minister.

A man named Timothy Murphy, of Toronto, last week killed his wife in what appeared to be a passion. They both appeared to be given to strong drink.

The Ottawa Free Press of the 19th says: Mr. Wills, Immigration Agent, has just informed us that Miss Fletcher telegraphed him from Father point that she had on board the "Moravian" steamship thirty-eight Catholic servant girls for Ottawa.—They will be placed in the St. Patrick's Orphans' Home, Marie Street, awaiting their obtaining employment.

It is now confidently contended that there will be a full meeting of the House in August next. Each party distrusting the intentions of the other, and fearful that some "cracks of policy," injurious to their interests will be made, have decided to send a sufficient force to Ottawa to obviate such an occurrence.—Ibid.

THE HARBOUR.—The Government survey of the Cobourg Harbour, preparatory to the establishment of a new Harbour of Refuge for the Dominion, has been proceeding for some days, and is now almost completed. The flags, marking the outlines of the proposed Harbour are in position; and it will be seen by those who visely, both outward and westward the arc to be extended. We trust the work may soon be in full progress.—World.

BANK STOCK.—A misunderstanding seems to have been occasioned with some by their remarks on reference to the assessment of Bank Stock. In stating that the Stock was struck from the Roll, we did not consider it necessary to explain that the matter was left in the same position as before, as we thought everybody would understand that the Bank Stock had been and was still assessable. The new proposition was to assess the Stock in bulk and also the income from it; whereas it is assessed by law and politic to treat the property in the same way as mortgages are treated, and assess only the income arising therefrom. A proposition to tax both the capital and its proceeds is evidently unjust, though the law seems, by some interpretations, to permit this view. We are glad the Court took the righteous view of the case, and doubted to tax the income instead of the stock itself.—Ibid.

Presbyterian.

There can be no doubt of the fact that the meeting of the General Assembly of the Canada Presbyterian Church just closed has, upon the whole, been the most satisfactory and effective one which has been held since the Supreme Court took its present form. The amount of work done, and the manner in which it was got through, the order maintained—thanks to the kindly yet effective authority exercised by the Moderator—the general character of the speeches delivered, the commendable attention to business of by far the larger portion of the state of the finances, and the general ascertained progress of the Church in all its several departments of work—all were exceedingly pleasing features in the Assembly's transactions, and all were calculated at once to stimulate its members to more active effort and to the same time to raise the whole Church, and its office-bearers and members, in the respect of the general community.

A union of the Presbyterian bodies of the Dominion is likely to be perfected next year.

Mr. William Malcom died at his residence in Seaforth on Monday last, 9th inst. Though not unexpected, the news of his death was received with feelings of sorrow and sincere regret by the whole community, by whom he was well known, and held in high esteem for his many excellent qualities of head and heart. Mr. Malcom was born in Stirlingshire, Scotland, and when about 16 years of age emigrated, with his father's family, to Canada, and settled in the neighborhood of Peterboro Here the elder Mr. Malcom engaged in the foundry business, and William, after working as an apprentice in the establishment, in process of time, became a very skillful machinist and engineer. In 1845 he came to this County and took up his residence in Goderich, where for some time he had charge of the business of the old Goderich Foundry. After a number of years' residence in Goderich Mr. Malcom was induced by Mr. Gordon McKay to go to Thorold to take charge of the construction of the Lybster Mills, which were built under his direction. On the completion of the mills, he was made Superintendent of the works a position which he occupied eight or ten years. In 1868 Mr. Malcom came to Seaforth, and engaged in the produce and egg-packing business, in which he continued till his death. During the existence of the Canadian Salt Association Mr. Malcom was appointed Salt Inspector for the combination, and discharged his duties with general satisfaction, until the breaking up of that organization. The deceased was a man of more than ordinary intelligence and ability. We do not know whether he received the benefit of a thorough education, or whether he was mainly self-taught, but no one could converse with him for any length of time without coming to the conclusion that he was exceedingly well posted, not only on the current topics of the day, but on matters of science and literature, which are not generally so well known. Mr. Malcom was an excellent public speaker, and it is for this qualification, perhaps, he will be longest held in remembrance by the general public. His speeches were characterised by a fluency, an apparent ease, and a grace of language which are rarely attained by even the most practiced orators. He was also an ardent politician, always strongly sympathizing with the Liberal side. At election times Mr. Malcom took an active part, and was very effective on the stump, although an unfortunate deafness rendered it difficult for him to take part in debate. Both in private and public discussion, as well as in general business and social intercourse, one of the most marked characteristics of the deceased was a never-failing courtesy and consideration for the feelings of others—things which are too often forgotten by the average struggler in the battle of life. In the prosperity of our village Mr. Malcom took a warm interest, and was always ready to assist and promote any scheme for its furtherance. He was about 48 years of age, and leaves a widow and two children to lament his death, whose grief at the loss of so excellent a husband and father, though acute, will be greatly assuaged by the fact that he died peacefully and happily.

The funeral took place on Tuesday, the remains being taken to Goderich for interment. It was largely and respectably attended by friends of the deceased, who took this last opportunity of paying a tribute of respect to his memory.—Huron Expositor.

Judge Chase evidently believed in extending the sphere of female labor, and was the first to open the doors of the U.S. Treasury to female applicants for clerical positions.

Joseph Howe commenced life in a printing office. There is no place like a printing office to make something of a boy who has industry and an ordinary amount of brains.

Rome, June 16.—The Bill for the suppression of religious corporations having passed the Chamber of Deputies, is now before the Senate, which has adopted the first seven clauses.

Rome, June 17.—The Senate to-day passed a bill for the suppression of Religious Corporations, by a vote of 68 yeas to 39 nays. The measure now awaits the Royal sanction to become law.

Lord Dufferin is now comfortably quartered at Quebec, at the Citadel, where he will remain till the fall. His Excellency will probably take a trip to the Maritime Provinces during this summer.

THE ORANGE DELEGATES.—The Belfast Weekly News, in an article on the forthcoming anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne promises a splendid reception to the Canadian delegates Messrs. Bowell, Boulton and Macdonald.

SIR GEORGE CARTIER'S WILL.—Relative to the will of 1866, which has caused no inconsiderable comment, it is understood that a codicil completely reversing its provisions has been appended, leaving Lady Cartier and her daughters, at present on the Continent, sole heirs of his estate, which is valued at some $12,000.

Mr. T. N. Gibbs, on Saturday, was sworn in member of the Privy Council and Postmaster-General, and Hon. Alex. Campbell, ex-Postmaster-General, was at the same time appointed to the Bureau of Minister of the Interior. It is now definitely understood that Mr. Masson, of Terrebonne, will be Minister of Militia.

FOG SIGNAL.—A fog bell has been erected in the vicinity of Simcoe light-house, on the south-west point of Simcoe Island, nine miles west of Kingston, and directions have been given to sound it during thick or foggy weather and during snow storms, while the season of navigation continues. The bell (says the Kingston News) is operated by machinery and sounded at regular intervals, four times in each minute, and will probably be heard at distance of four miles.

June 16th.

Thursday evening last a melancholy case of drowning occured in the Township of Belmontown. A young girl, aged 14, named MacPherson, came home from school as usual, and finding her people absent from home, went to look in a well partly stoned up and full of water, some 20 feet deep. It is supposed she accidentally slipped in head foremost and drowned. A grappling was made and the body brought from the bottom of the well. The sad affair has cast a gloom over the whole neighborhood.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL
Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Thus in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alcholol is lost in that way, and you get only the swall of Oils which they may contain.

HAIR DRESSING,

LOWELL, MASS.

PATON & CO.

CHEMICAL AND ANALYTICAL CHEMISTS,

Have opened by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,

[illegible] else can be found so desirable. Being neither colorid nor dye, it does soil white cambric, and yet lasts a life time in the hair, giving it a rich glossy [illegible] and a graceful perfume.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and efficient for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the glow and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness, though not always cured, often prevented by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, the glands atrophied and dried, or where the light of life has entirely left the roots. But as long as there remain any signs of life, such as remain can be saved for future usefulness by this application. Instead of forcing the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous, and by occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which are often prepared to the injury of the hair, the Vigor can be used by any person with perfect safety for any length of time, as it contains nothing that can injure the most delicate organization. For Dressing Ladies' Hair it is unequalled, as a few applications will impart a rich and beautiful lustre to the hair, and render it pliable, so that it can be easily arranged in any desired form. For Children's hair it is the best dressing in use, as it will prevent scurf, and make it grow luxuriantly. For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Color, and preventing it from falling off, it has proved itself the most wonderful and reliable preparation ever offered to the public. Many of the first chemists in the country have been consulted in regard to the ingredients of which it is composed, and the certificates accompanying each bottle show the estimation in which it is held by those who have carefully analyzed it. Hundreds of the most respectable druggists and dealers in every section of the country can certify to the wonderful results which have been produced by the use of this Hair Vigor. Many have been entirely bald for years, from whose heads not even the stubble of a former growth could be seen, have had the hair restored in a few months to its original thickness and beauty. Many have been troubled with dandruff, which destroyed the hair, and rendered frequent brushing necessary, have had their hair entirely restored by the use of a few bottles of this Vigor. Those who have been made prematurely gray by the use of some preparations of sulphur, which, after a short time, turns the hair almost black, have had their hair restored to its original color by the use of this Vigor, which, after the sulphur has been removed from the hair, will keep it from turning gray for many years. Those who have been made prematurely gray by the use of some preparations of sulphur, which, after a short time, turns the hair almost black, have had their hair restored to its original color by the use of this Vigor, which, after the sulphur has been removed from the hair, will keep it from turning gray for many years.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has an existing cure so widely and firmly established itself in the confidence of mankind, as this remedy for pulmonary complaints. Throughout every section of our country, and among most of the communities of every civilized land, its virtues are known, and the extent of the benefits conferred by it are literally incalculable. Its unparalleled success, its real merits, its wonderful cures, and the confidence reposed in it by the people, have made it known as the best remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs, that can be employed. Against such formidable enemies of Consumption as Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough, Influenza, Hoarseness, and other affections of the throat and lungs, which are sometimes seated in the system, and should be promptly met with antidotes adapted to their nature, no other remedy is at all worthy of confidence. Although counted incurable, and pronounced so by many physicians, and given up by the community at large, when the disease has become settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health, by the use of Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. Indeed, the cures it has effected in the most severe and dangerous cases, and which seemed to surpass the power of medicine, are literally marvellous. Many publications of this character would be regarded as unworthy of confidence, but the standing of the gentlemen who have permitted the use of their names in certificates of cures, is a sufficient guarantee of their reliability. Many of these gentlemen are well known throughout the country, and their statements will be received with implicit confidence. Others are residents of localities where the most wonderful cures have been performed, and where the facts can be ascertained by personal inquiry. Many of the most remarkable cures we have on record, we have omitted to publish, because we feared that the statements would be regarded as fictitious, on account of their wonderful character, although we have the most ample proof of their correctness. 1st. Because they are found to possess all the qualities claimed for them.

3rd. Because no glimmering or dizziness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they can be guaranteed against injury to the Eye Sight from improper selections.
4th. Because the system of fitting is an unerring guide to the true requirement of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—solely our own.
5th. Because they never tire the eyes and last many years without the necessity of change.
6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.

Keep the Heart Tender.

Keep the heart tender,
Kindly and true;
Water it freely
With tears gentle-dew,
Garner its harvests
Of rich burnished gold,
Let in the sunshine,
And shed out the cold.

Keep the heart tender
With flowers of kind deeds,
And the sweets of their perfume
Will choke out the weeds,
And the soft homes of Pity,
Of Mercy and Love,
Will plant in the glory
That comes from Above.

Keep the heart tender
With sweet loving words,
And they will fill it with music
Like songs of the birds
In the heart of the forest—
So joyous and clear,
When the birds are seeking
In the spring-time of year!

Keep the heart tender
With holy desires,
And they'll freshen its altars
And quench the fierce fires
Of Hatred and Envy,
Of sins ever new,
Keep the heart tender
Pure, kindly and true.

14. Before any application for the quashing of a by-law upon the ground that any of the provisions of this Act have been contravened in procuring the passing of the same, and if it is made to appear to a judge of one of the superior Courts of Law that probable grounds exist for a motion to quash said by-law, the said judge may make an order for an enquiry to be held, upon such notice to the parties affected as the judge may direct, concerning the said grounds, before the judge of the County Court of the municipality which passed said by-law, and require that upon such enquiry all witnesses, both against and in Support of such by law, be orally examined and cross-examined upon oath before said County Court judge; and the said County Court judge shall thereupon return the evidence so taken before him to the Clerk of the Crown and Pleas at Toronto; and after the return of said evidence, and upon reading the same, any judge of the said Superior Courts may, upon notice to such of the parties concerned as he shall think proper, proceed to hear and determine the question; and if the grounds therefor shall appear to him to be satisfactorily established, it shall be competent to him to make an order far quashing said by-law, and may order the costs attending said proceedings to be paid by the parties or any of them who shall have supported said by-law; and if it shall appear that the application to quash said by-law ought to be dismissed, the said judge may so order, and in his discretion award cost, to be paid by the person applying to quash said by-law.

15. After an order has been made by judge directing an enquiry, and after a copy of such order has been left with the clerk of the corporation of which the by-law is in question, all further proceedings upon the by-law shall be stayed until after the disposal of the application, in respect of which the enquiry has been directed, but if the matter be not prosecuted to the satisfaction of the judge he may remove the stay of proceedings

16. Any witness shall be bound to attend before the judge of the County County Court upon being served with the order of such County Court judge directing his attendance, and upon payment of the necessary fees for such attendance in the same manner as if he had been directed by a writ of subpœna so to attend, and he may be punished for contempt and shall be liable to all the penalties for such non-attendance in the same manner as if he had been served with such subpœna.

17. No person shall be excused from answering any question put to him in any action suit or other proceeding in any court or before any judge, touching or concerning any election or by-law, or the conduct of any person thereat or in relation thereto, on the ground of any privilege, or on the ground that the answer to such question will tend to criminate such person; but no answer given by any any person claiming to be excused on the ground that such answer will tend to criminate himself, shall be used in any criminal proceeding against such person, other than an indictment for perjury, if the judge shall give to the witness a certificate that he claimed the right to be excused on either of the grounds aforesaid, and made full and true answer to the satisfaction of the judge.

18. All other proceedings against any person, for any violation of this act, shall be commenced within four weeks after the municipal election at which the offence is said to have been committed, or within four weeks after the day of voting upon any by-law as aforesaid.

19. The clerk of every municipality shall furnish each returning officer with at least six copies of this Act prior to every election, or the voting upon any by-law, whose duty it shall be to post the same up in conspicuous places within the municipality or polling division.

A Mother's Boy.

Is there a vacant place in this bank which I could fill? was the inquiry of a boy, as with glowing cheek he stood before the manager.

There is none, was the reply. Were you told that you could obtain a situation here? Who recommended you?

No one recommended me sir, calmly answered the boy, I only thought I would see.

There was a straight forwardness in manner, an honest determination in the countenance of the lad, which pleased the man of business, and induced him to continue the conversation. He said, You must have friends who could aid you in obtaining a situation, have you told them.

The quick flash of the deep blue eyes was quenched in the overtaking wave of sadness, as he said, though half musingly, my mother said it would be useless to try without friends, then recollecting himself he appologized for the interruption and was about to withdraw when the gentleman detained him by asking why he did not remain at school a year or two and then enter the business world.

I have no time, was the reply. I study at home, and keep up with the other boys.

Then you have a place already, said the interrogater. Why did you leave it?

I have not left it, answered the boy, quietly.

But you wish to leave, what is the matter?

For an instant the boy hesitated, then he repied, with half reluctant frankness, I must do more for my mother!

Brave words! talisman of success anywhere, everywhere. They sank into the heart of the listener, re-calling the radiant past. Grasping the hand of the astonished child, he said, with a quivering voice, my boy, what is your name? You shall find the first vacancy for an apprentice that occurs in the bank. If meantime you need a friend, come to me. But now give me your confidence. Why do you wish to do more for your mother? Is your father dead?

Tears filled his eyes as he replied. My father is dead, my brothers and sisters are dead, and my mother and I are left alone to help each other. But she is not strong, and I wish to take care of her. It will please her, sir, that you have been so kind, and I am much obliged to you.

So saying, the boy left, little dreaming that his own nobleness of character had been as bright a glance of sunshine into that busy world he had so unconsciously entered. A boy animated by a desire to help his mother will always find friends.

Sacred Birds.

Extraordinary honors were paid to the goose in ancient times, and it is still held in great veneration by some of the eastern nations. The figure that occurs so frequently on Buddhist monuments is the Brahmanee goose. The ancient Britons, according to Cæsar, held it impious to eat the flesh of geese. The ibis was another bird held in the highest sanctity by the old Egyptians. There are still numerous pits containing ibis mummies in that country. The largest of them, a little to the westward of the pyramid of Aboutir, is about twenty feet deep. The floor of the pit for probably a depth of many feet, is covered with heaps on heaps, and layers on layers, of coarse earthen jars, the lids cemented down, containing each the body of an ibis, preserved with [illegible] and packed with [illegible] kinds of narrow cloth bandages.

Lord Nugent in his Lands Classical and Sacred, says:

Some of the mummies are found in a state of great preservation—black and charred, and incapable of being taken whole out of the bandages, but all the bones, the heads, and all the feathers entire. Whether these animals were thus embalmed and brought to this place for burial whenever found dead, or whether collected here as objects of worship, is a question of which no ancient authority assists in the solution.

Dr. Shaw states that the Mahometans have a great veneration and esteem for the stork. It is almost as sacred with them as the ibis was with the Egyptians, and they would look upon a person as profane who should kill or even harm one. So precious were these birds held in Thessaly, which country they are said to have cleared of serpents that the slayer of a stork was put shed with death. They were thought much of at Rome, for when a person from a freak of luxury, ordered one to be placed on his dinner-table, he drew upon himself the direful obloquy of the whole city.

The robin is considered in several countries a sacred bird, to kill one is little less than sacrilege, and its eggs are free from the hand of the bird nester. It is asserted that the respect shown to it by man is joined in by the animals of the wood. The weasel and wild cat, it is said, will neither molest it nor eat it when killed. One cause for the veneration in which it is held may be the superstition which represents it as the medium through which mankind are warned of approaching death. Before the decease of a person, a robin is believed, in many instances, to tap thrice at the window of the room in which the sick person is lying. Grimm says that the peculiar veneration with which this bird is treated has been shown by the whole German race from remote times, and he refers to the bird's color and its name as evidences that it was sacred to Thor, the god of lightening.

The swallow, too, in Germany, is deemed a sacred bird. Like the stork, it preserves the house on which it builds its nest from fire and lightning. The Spanish peasants have a tradition that it was a swallow that tried to pluck the thorns out of the crown of Christ as he hung upon the cross, hence they have a great reverence for this bird, and will never destroy it.

In France, in the Pays de Canz, the wren is a sacred bird. To kill it or rob its nest is deemed an atrocity which will bring down the lightening on the culprit's dwelling. Such an act was also regarded with horror in Scotland. Robert Cunninghame mentions the following popular malediction upon those those who rob the nest of the wren:

Malleens, malleens, mair than ten,
That harry the lodge of Heaven's hen!

Feats in Journalism.

The French journals, says a foreign newspaper, have lately been expressing their astonishment at the energy displayed by English and American journalists. It appears that very sharp competition is now going on among the "specials" with respect to the impending trial of Marshal Bazaine. The correspondent of an American journal has arranged for fifteen telegrams, which though they need be only ten or a dozen words each will, provided they are perfectly authentic, be paid for at the rate of 1,000 francs (£40) each. Other American correspondents have actually been telegraphing word for word, a translation of some of the feuilletons in the Paris journals, although it is difficult to imagine how there can be any possible advantage in such an outlay as this.

During the war in Paraguay, a South American correspondent set up a telegraph wire for his own use, so as to communicate the news at the earliest possible date. Finding, however, that the Paraguayan government were beating him through their own telegraph he had the audacity to cut their wire.

Stories are told by the same French writer of the rivalry between some of the English correspondents. Dr. Russell, for instance, accompanied the German army on its entry into Paris, wrote on his saddle an account, and sent it off by special messenger, who galloped to the first station on the newly opened line between Paris and Calais, jumped up by the side of the engine driver, who had a special engine ready, and rattled off to Calais in time to catch the mail. He little knew that he was accompanied on that journey by the correspondent of a rival journal—the Daily News—who, dressed as a stoker, had no sooner arrived at Calais than running on board the steamer, he offered the captain any amount if he would get up steam at once. The captain complied, and the pseudo stoker arrived in London just as the messenger for the Times landed at Dover.

Again, during the insurrection at Marseilles, the correspondent of the Times, finding the telegraph cut, hired a steamer, which took his despatches to Malta, and thence they were telegraphed to London.

THE CROPS.—The Canada Farmer deals with those croakers who complain and are bitter in their lamentations of the poor prospects of the crops, for in a late issue it says:—"From a large number of exchanges we glean the gratifying intelligence that the crops throughout the country generally continue to look remarkably well, and that the prospects of an abundant harvest are daily becoming more encouraging."

The Church of England on Temperance Reform.

A Temperance meeting was held in the Synod Hall on Wednesday evening last, and much earnestness was manifested by clergymen on the subject. It was announced that the "Bishop was with them" in the movement, eliciting cheers. Rev. Mr. Lindsay made an effective address, expressing the opinion that the greater evil of the custom was to be found in the better classes. He advocated a Church Temperance Society, based on total abstinence, which he thought necessary for example. The clergy must not attempt to enforce a practice which they did not themselves practice. Rev. Mr. White made the most gratifying statement, that he had personally inquired of every member of the Synod present, except eight, and he found of the 81 in attendance no less than 51 were total abstainers, and 22 were not. This gentleman alluded to the fact that in England £110,000,000 is annually paid for drink, while only 3,500,000 is paid for religious purposes. Rev. James Carmichael had found it necessary for the spiritual welfare of his people to gain access to them through Midland R. R.

The line of this railway is said to be so badly fenced, that cattle have every access to it, and are often caught and killed. It would not be amiss for the company to repair the fences, and prevent these occurrences, as they must arouse an unkindly feeling towards the company, along the line of road that should be prevented in the interest of all concerned.

Skeleton Found.

While the men were excavating for the foundation of the New Wesleyan Church they found the bones of a human being within about three feet of the surface, and where Mr. Cluxton formerly made his kitchen garden. They are the bones no doubt of some Indian who was laid to rest there, long before a white man dared take possession of their camping grounds. Besides the human bones, was also found a bone shaped as a spear, perhaps once used by the now lifeless corpse.

Lieut. Governor Howland

Has consented to retain the office until November. This shows pretty plainly the weakness of Sir John A. Macdonald. He cannot afford to make an appointment least it might weaken his already waning influence.

During the Session of the Spaniah Cortes, Friday, it was announced from the Ministerial benches that the separation of Church and State is part of the programme of the Government.

Mr. Eddy, the celebrated manufacturer of Friction Matches at Ottawa, has called a meeting of his creditors. The liabilities are heavy, $1,250,000.

New Grand Trunk Stock to the amount of £7,500,000 has been subscribed in the London Market. The balance required, £2,500,000 is reserved.

Dominion Day at Port Hope.

The celebration of the First of July at Port Hope was very successful. The Fire Brigades from Hamilton, Whitby, Oshawa, Bowmanville, Cobourg, Belleville, Lindsay and Peterborough, and an immense crowd of excursionists visited our sister town on that day. The Brigades, which must have numbered about a thousand, were well received and treated handsomely. On their arrival they partook of lunch, then ready, and afterwards marched through the principal streets of the town. In the afternoon all sat down to a splended dinner, spread in the drill shed, as the only place capable of accommodating those invited. The dinner was wound up with toasts and speeches. The Peterboro Brigade arrived home about 10 p.m. well pleased with their visit, and with the day's proceedings.

Millbrook.

Dominion day was celebrated with games and amusements at the Village of Millbrook. The most interesting part of the proceedings being a game at Lacrosse between the Millbrook club and the six nation Indians from Brantford, The Indians got the first one, and Millbrook the next three games.

St. Andrews Society.

South Ontario.

Mr. Gibbs has been reelected by a majority of 235. It is deeply to be regretted in the interest of good government, but has been secured by a free expenditure of money.

Harvey.

The By-Law granting a bonus of $10,000 to the Omemee & Bobcaygeon Branch of the Midland Railway was carried by 44 of a majority. Notwithstanding, we doubt if a man living in Harvey to-day will ever see it constructed. The County has passed a by-law several days before the time fixed by law.

Manitoba.

The Annual Ecclesiastical Meetings of the Dominion are over. The spirit manifested has been satisfactory and promises advancement in liberty and religious toleration.

Emigration.

A Mr. Whyte, Emigration Agent a Glasgow, has been advertising bogus situations in Canada, at $2 to $3 a day, and in consequence, has induced several persons to come out, who otherwise would not. This may swell his own pay, but must militate against the object of his mission, as the deceiving of one person will be a warning to many others. It will also place Canadian agents in bad odor at home.

Gone.

Professor Armstrong, leader of the Battalion Band here is "gone," nobody knows where, although we understand some parties would like to know if they could get sundry accounts etc., favorably settled. The Professor appears to have charmed a few by the harmony of his splendid new instrument about which so much was written.

The Town of Port Hope

Detah.

The Warder has a long article this week on "Drink," no doubt "strong drink" is hinted at He thinks it wise to have legal restrictions imposed on the traffic, but does not go the length of immediate prohibition on account of the "millions of dollars invested in the trade," by permission of the people. Why the people would sweep out the traffic once and forever if their leaders would only assist them. We are glad to see that our confrere thinks something can be done "with out doing violence" to certain "prejudices." Something can be done, indeed. There are legal restrictions imposed at present, but they amount to little or nothing except to indicate the tendencies of public opinion, which is year by year becoming stronger in favor of "no half measures"—not something can be done—but something must be done, although violence be done to certain prejudices.

The White-Wing

Will run an excursion trip on the 12th, of July, leaving Harwood at 5.30 a.m., Gore's Landing at 6 a.m., and calling at Anderson's, Rose's and Wallace Point Bridges, and returning in the evening after the procession, giving an excellent opportunity to see the procession and return.

LAKEFIELD.

FIRES—Intense excitement prevailed in the vicinity of Lakefield last week owing to the great fires which troubled the neighborhood The largest and those from which the greatest danger was expected were those about a mile and a half to the west of the village. These burned with great rapidity and have overrun a tract of country about three miles long by from one to two miles wide. However, nothing of a serious nature occurred other than the burning of a house and barn the property of Isiah Madill and the entire destruction of a very large quantity of valuable timber. Had it not been for the prompt assistance rendered by the farmers we should have had to report a very much greater loss of buildings, for in two instances the barn were on fire, the burning of which in both cases would have resulted in the destruction of the houses in connection therewith.

The cause of the fire was I believe the burning of a brush fence which ran along the concession line and which one of the neighbors thought the other had no right to put there.

It is likely before all is settled that they will find the best and safest way to settle disputes will be by resorting to milder means than fires, in such a dry season as this has been. —COM.

EXAMINATIONS OF THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The Examinations of some of the departments of the Collegiate Institute took place on Wednesday. In regard to the Divisions formerly taught by Miss Hatton and the one taught by Miss Borrowman, our readers are aware that since Miss Hatton left, no fixed arrangements could be made owing to the difficulty in obtaining a teacher to take Miss Hatton's place, and we are sure, too, that all would sympathize with Miss Borrowman in not having an examination, owing to the severe family affliction she has been called upon to endure.

The number of visitors in the Principal's room fully equaled if not exceeded those of any former year, and the examinations were interesting and satisfactory. Quite a number of parents also visited the examination of Mr. Armstrong's Division, but we saw no visitors in Mr. Black's or Mr. B. C. Dixon's rooms, chiefly we suppose because the attractions were stronger in the other divisions.

The Divisions of the Public School in the main building, and taught by Mr. T. Braden, Miss Dowling and Mrs. Flavelle were also examined on Wednesday, and there were crowds of visitors in all these rooms, so many that there was not sitting room for them, and all present were evidently well pleased with the progress of the classes. The Examinations in writing, dictation, &c., in these rooms were very satisfactory, the writing being considered very good in all the rooms, taking into consideration the age of the pupils. The specimens in Mrs. Flavelle's room were excellent for girls of the ages attending her Division. The pupils too showed their appreciation of the earnest labors of Mrs. Flavelle and Miss Dowling by making them handsome presents in the shape of a work box to Miss Dowling, and a neatly bound volume of Scott's Poems to Mrs. Flavelle.

ON THURSDAY

The rooms in the new building were examined, and parents and others were there in very large numbers, many of them having to stand close together to allow all who came to see and hear for themselves.

Neither Miss Stratton's room nor Miss Leete's room would admit any more than were there, proving conclusively the interest of the people in the school, and the deserved popularity of the teachers.

In Miss Leete's room the little ones acquitted themselves to the admiration of all, and the taste displayed in the drawings on the blackboard was remarkable, demonstrating what can be done by a skilful teacher.

Miss Stratton's Division in the afternoon was thronged with visitors, and the Examination of the boys in reading, dictation, spelling, geography and arithmetic, was eminently successful. The reading was clear, and pronunciation pure and distinct, indeed it would be difficult to find 67 to 70 boys read as distinctly with less repetition and with fewer faults in pronunciation. Their readiness, too, in arithmetic and in geography showed careful teaching, and attention on the part of the pupils.

The singing in the girls division was very attractive, girls delight in this pleasant and cheering exercise. But Miss Leete and Miss Stratton have succeeded in getting the interest of the boys in this also, as they sang several pieces very nicely, all joining.

The specimens of penmanship hung all round the room thus afforded an opportunity of examining this part of the school work, and we are satisfied that those who examined those specimens will not accept the statement that writing or spelling is neglected. Some of the penmanship was superior to what is seen in the majority of schools, perhaps equal to what is seen in many counting houses. Of the Trustees we saw Messrs. McLelland, Stevenson, Dumble and Edwards present, and taking great interest in all the proceedings. It would be folly to suppose that the pupils have completed their education at 10 and 12 years of age, as we hope to see them all back again two or three years longer, many of them will go through the entire course of our schools. But without fear of successful contradiction, we can safely say that all who witnessed the examinations in the public school department were satisfied with the progress of the different divisions, and many gave expression to their satisfaction with the healthy management of that part of our school.

At the close of the examination, the boys in Miss. Stratton's room read an address to her in the handwriting of one of themselves, and also presented her with a neat work box, as a token of their good will towards her.

ON FRIDAY

Miss McCarrol gave an exhibition of the advancement of the pupils under her care in Music. There were numerous visitors during the time and we understand that all gave evidence of Miss McCarrols careful training in this desirable accomplishment. The examinations, just concluded fully maintain the good name of our High and Public schools, and the character of the Teachers, and the number of visitors who witnessed them, fully justified the assertion that the interest of the people in the school is increasing instead of diminishing.

A DOUBLE MURDER.—Augusta ga. June, 17.—Arthur A Glover shot and killed Wm. Goumillion and his father, Lovett Goumillion, at Edgefield Court House, S.C. at 10 o'clock this forenoon. Glover and Lovett Goumillion had some words a few weeks since, during which Glover cursed him, and in consequence young Goumillion threatened to kill Glover and a fight had been anticipated. Glover sent for the father and son to meet him at a store in the village. On entering young Goumillion was shot in the head by Glover with a Derringer, and died instantly. The father appearing on the scene was also shot in the head by Glover with another Derringer and mortally wounded. Glover surrendered himself. The affair creates intense excitement in Edgefield, where the parties are well connected. About 30 years ago Lovett Goumillion killed Joseph Glover, uncle of Arthur Glover.

THE CROPS.—The Harriston Tribune says: Last week we took a trip through the townships of Minto, Wallace, Maryborough and Peel, partly for the purpose of seeing how the crops looked. In Peel and Maryborough we found them looking splendid. The fall wheat, in particular, is good; it is tall and rank and very little winter killed. Spring crops, although not so forward as they could be at this time of the year, look healthy and vigorous. Hay, especially new meadows, is looking well, and although the prospects of the farmers are very encouraging. In Wallace and Minto they do not look so forward, but still considering the lateness of the season, we have no cause to complain.

DEATH OF PRESIDENT M'MAHON'S FATHER.—The Echo de Spa announces the decease of President MeMahon's father at that place, where he has been buried. It also gives the following extract from the parish register concerning an ancestor of the family:—

"The 26th October, 1775, fell asleep in God, the High and Puissant Seigneur Maurice Jean-Baptiste de MeMahon, Marquis of Heraby, of Lemerick in Ireland, having received all the last sacraments."

THE HUNTINGTON outbreak

There is no doubt but that John A. Macdonald will prevent evidence being taken on oath in this matter before the Committee which meets in a few days. He has had recourse to the Imperial Government with a view to get the Bill, which he so unwillingly permitted to pass, disallowed, and he may succeed. This course, however, cannot save him from the ignominy that must ever attach to himself and his government, for so attempting to defeat the ends of justice in not permitting evidence to be put in on oath. He cannot hope to secure the honest men of his party in this miserable attempt to evade a thorough investigation of the charges brought against him by Mr. Huntington, as they must know that even the attempt to evade, only fastens the guilt the stronger on their party. The press is also evincing signs of disapproval of the dishonesty of the Leader, and here and there that disapproval takes the form of expression. The Cornwall Freeholder, which gave a blind support to the John Sandfield party, and is far from friendly to the present Dominion Opposition, says:—

"In Ontario the Government does not stand well. The most unscrupulous organist amongst the retainers of the administration dares not claim that Sir John and his Cabinet can command popular favour in the master Province of the Dominion. Hence the difficulty, and the long delay, in filling up appointments due to that Province. In other Provinces, the case is different. In some, perhaps in all of them political feeling is active enough; and a strong sense of right and wrong, felt with reference to the policy of the Government, divides men as clearly and distinctly as here. But there a Government appointment seems to sew into submission. When a Cabinet Minister comes amongst them they subside into passive witnesses of ministerial triumph, and become valuable evidence of the power of ministerial influence. Our estimate of the political stamina of the outlying Provinces is substantially correct; they will always be found supporting whatever Government may be in power. Take a minister from amongst them, and they are at once disarmed and disbanded. Favours from any quarter are thankfully received by those whose convictions are of that practical sort that readily adapt themselves to the obligation conveyed in a pecuniary consideration.

"In the Province of Ontario there are a few constituencies in which Government influence can do what it pleases. Ottawa and Toronto, Conservative and Reform Administration, alike, have had occasion to shew to the world that strange things may be accomplished with the aid of a steady constituency. But there is an independant public opinion that cannot be outraged with impunity; and of that fact we apprehend the electors of South Ontario will give the Government and their new Minister a sore reminder.

"Mr. Gibbs is a respectable man and under ordinary circumstances would make quite an average minister. From a ministerial party view he is entitled to the distinction which his chief has conferred upon him. But his respectability and his deserts will hardly save him from doom, if he ventures to invite from the electors of South Ontario an endorsation his oppointment. It would have been in better taste to have postponed for a while the filling up of Cabinet vacancies. There is cause to apprehend that there is something in the Huntington charges. There is at least good cause for investigation, and to attempt, before the result of that investigation has been ascertained, to fill up Cabinet vacancies is a piece of business that, as we view it, cannot well be justified."

TORY SLANDER.

The readers of the Mail and lesser lights are all aware of the unmitigated slanders published by them against Mr. McKellar and the Rev. Mr. King in reference to the Elgin Association. Notwithstanding that Mr. McKellar proved convincingly in his place in Parliament, that the whole charges were base lies, fabricated by the basest political hacks to do service in an election contest, still they continue their unscrupulous work.

The whole thing is served out by the Tory press with sneers at the Ministry, in which Mr. King is in good standing.

The following resolution, carried unanimously in the General Assembly of the Canada Presbyterian Church, ought to give a quietus to their base slanders.

Rev. Professor Gregg, in seconding the adoption of the report, said he would like to make a statement in regard to Mr. King's management of that mission (Hear, hear.) The matter had been for some time past brought before the public in such a way that he would like to have the opportunity of saying a few words upon it. He supposed he was acquainted with Mr. King for a longer time than any other member of this Assembly, as they were companions in the classes of Dr. Chalmers and Dr. Cunningham in the Free Church College of Edinburg. Even then Mr. King was known to the professors as a gentleman who took a great interest in matters connected with the Church. He need not say that since that time he had had further opportunity of knowing him, and of witnessing the interest—the deep interest—he had all along taken in the Buxton Mission, and he would say of all the members of the Assembly he did not know one in whose perfect integrity he had more confidence or a single member who had done more valuable service for the Church than the Rev. Mr. King. (Applaus.) He would therefore take this opportunity to testify in the most direct, strong, and emphatic manner his perfect confidence in the whole of Mr. King's conduct in the management of the Buxton Mission and every other matter connected therewith. He would be glad indeed were this expression of confidence in Mr. King, after the slanderous manner in which he had been referred to by a certain portion of the press in connection with this work. (Loud applaus.)

The Rev. Mr. McPherson said he had long been a member of the Committee on the Buxton Mission, and he had always found the finances properly audited and and extremely correct—audited by the parties appointed for that purpose. He could assure the Assembly that he never said the slightest grounds for suspicion as to the management of the funds of the mission. (Loud applaus.)

The motion was then carried.

We may truly add:—

"What is the Tory organs treatment of those speeches? The suppress them in whole. This is a fitting wind up for one of the coarsest, most villainous and most scandalously untruthful attacks on private character ever made by a Canadian journal.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL

Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgment of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proporations of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Thus in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alchol is lost in that way, and you get only the small of Oils which they may contain.

MISS SAWYER'S SALVE.

HERE you have a salve combining soothing and healing properties, with no dangerous ingredient. A remedy at hand for the many pains and aches, wounds and hygiene to which flesh is heir. Is more easily applied than many other remedies, never producing a bad effect, but always relieving pain, however severe.

It is prepared by Miss Sawyer, who has used it in her own extensive treatment of the sick, for nearly twenty years, with great success.

The principal diseases for which this salve is recommended are, Chilblains, Rheumatism, Colic, Scrofula, Old Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Sprains, Burns, Fever Sores, Felons, Pimples, Erysipelas, Sore Eyes, Barber's Itch, Dry Feet, Boils, Piles, Fever Sores, Corns, Bites of Insects, Cancers, Toothache, Sore Throat, Sore Nipples, Goldsore, Canker, Rheumatism, Itch, Scald Head, Teething, Chapped Hands, Scalds, Cuts, Bruises, Croup, Cracked Lips, and Sores on Children.

It never fails to cure Rheumatism if properly applied. Rub it on well with the hand three times a day. In several cases it has cured painful Scalds. For Piles it has been discovered to be a sure remedy. Persons that have been afflicted for Years have been relieved by a few applications. For Erysipelas it works wonders, allaying the inflammation and quieting the patient. For Chapped Hands it produces a cure immediately. Let those with Salt Rheum obtain this Salve, and apply it freely, and they will find it invaluable. It is good in cases of Scrofula and Tumors. Cancers have been cured with it. The best Salve ever invented for Scalds, Bruises and Sore Nipples. No way injurious, but sure to afford relief. Sore or Weak Eyes—Rub it on the lids gently, once or twice a day. Cures dimness by putting in the eyes on a piece of cotton. For Felons this is superior to anything known. For Pimples the note has a charm. For Burns and Scalds, apply the Salve at once and it gives immediate relief. For Old Sores, apply once a day.

Not among the least of the invaluable properties of MISS SAWYER'S SALVE are its remedial effects on the hair. Rubbed on the scalp, in five or six different parts, it promotes the growth of the hair, prevents it turning gray, and on bald spots it produces a new growth of hair. No lady should be without this invaluable article as an indispensable cosmetic for the toilet. It eradicates dandruff and disease from the head, and blotches and pimples from the face.

From Mrs. ELIZABETH COOMBS, Brunswick.
Brunswick, April 4, 1867.

MISS SAWYER: I received your letter last evening, and was very glad you concluded to let me have your Salve. I think I can do well with it and it will be quite an accommodation to my husband, as he cannot get along without it. He has tried everything else and has never found anything that healed his leg as that Salve of yours, and we have both found it to be all, and even more, than you recommend it to be. We have had it in the family five or six years, and have used it for everything, and can truly say we have never found its equal since I saw it for a weak back, and it acts like a charm. Mr. Coombs has had a Fever Sore on his leg for thirty years, and would be a cripple to-day if he had not found a remedy in your Salve. It keeps it healed, and takes out the inflammation, prides it down and swelling, and does for him all that he can ask. I can recommend it for a great many things that you have not, for I use it for everything. I consider it invaluable in a family. If you can put this testimony together, and it can be of any service to you, you are welcome.

Yours, &c., ELIZABETH COOMBS.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

If your Druggist is out of the Salve, and neglects to keep supplied, send seventy-five cents as directed below, and receive a box by return mail.

Put up in Large Boxes at 50 cents each (nearly three times as large as the box represented above). Prepared by MISS C. SAWYER, and put up by L. M. ROBBINS, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Rockland, Me. A Trial Box sent free by mail on receipt of fifty cents, by L. M. ROBBINS, Rockland, Me.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is deduced from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Invincible cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully agonizing, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and in virtue the attack of enfeebling or fatal disease, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilitic or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. In Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it know full well what it can do, and those who know not, have only to make the trial to prove all we say in its favor. Its sugar coating preserves the pills in any climate, keeps them always fresh, and makes them pleasant to take. But the question is often asked, why it is that Ayer's Pills are superior to all others? We have only to say that, having spared no pains nor expense in the search after curative agents, we employ in our pills the best that our laboratory can produce. Tried by the tests of chemical analysis and the microscope, they are found to be the purest and most perfect that can be made. Hence their power to cure is certain, and their action upon the system wherever they are used is the same. They are sugar coated, so that the most sensitive can take them easily, and they are the best and safest purgative for children that can be employed. As the Pills operate directly upon the blood, they purify it of the humors that cause and feed disease, and thus cure it. Minute directions for their use in the various complaints they will cure are found in our Almanac, which we supply gratis to all who call for it. THE REASONS WHY
LAZARUS, MORRIS & Co's
CELEBRATED
Perfected Spectacles,
AND EYE GLASSES,
have met with such extraordinary success and are so much in demand:
1st. Because they are found to possess all the qualities claimed for them.
2nd. Because they will reclaim sight as obscured by the common glasses, and will often be found to restore failing sight to its natural state.
3rd. Because no glimmering or dizziness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed against injury to the Eye Sight from improper selections.
4th. Because the system of fitting is an unerring guide to the true requirement of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—solely our own.
5th. Because the nicer than the eyes and long wearing brands without the necessity of frequent changing.
Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable value.

Anthony and Cleopatra.

I am dying, Egypt, dying,
Ebbs the crimson life-tide fast,
And the blight Hesperian Shadows
Gather where my senses blend.
Let them fall, oh, Queen I support me,
Hush those sobs and bow thine ear,
Hearken to the grand heart secrets
There, and there alone, must hear.

Tho' my sword and veteran legions
Bear their eagles high no more,
And my wrinkled and scattered galleys
Strew dark Actium's fatal shore—
Tho' no glittering guards surround me,
Prompt to do their master's will,
I must perish like a Roman
Die the death, Triumvir still.

Let not Cæsar's servile minions
Mock the lion thus laid low,
'Twas no foeman's hand felled him—
'Twas his own that drank the blow,
Hence, then, plucked on thy bosom,
Let the slave shall live less to say,
Cæsar's minion was my conqueror,
Madly threw the world away.

Should the base, plebeian rabble
Dare insult my name at Rome,
Where the noble spouse Octavia,
Weeps within her widowed home,
Seek her: By the gods have told me,
Altars, angels' circling wings,
That her blood with mine commingled
Yet shall mount the throne of kings.

As for thee, star-eyed Egyptian,
Glorious sorceress of the Nile,
Light the path to Stygian horrors
With the splendor of thy smile,
Give to Cæsar crowns and arches—
Let his brow the laurel twine,
I can scorn all Cæsar's triumps,
Triumphing in love like thine.

I am dying, Egypt, dying,
Hark! the insulting foeman's cry!
They are coming! Quick—my falchion,
Let me face them ere I die.
Ah, no more amid the battle
Shall my voice exulting swell,
Isis and Osiris guard thee—
Cleopatra—Rome—Farewell!

Pacific Railway Scandal.

The Oath's Bill disallowed—and in consequence the Committee not permitted to go on with the investigation.

The following letters and telegrams which were in Mr. Huntington's possession have been published in the Globe as a special telegram from Montreal:

Montreal, July 3.

The following portion of the documentary evidence, showing the corrupt nature of the negotiations between Sir Hugh Allan and the Government in connection with the granting of the Pacific Railway charter, has come into our possession.

(Telegraph)

"Father Point, Oct. 8, 1871.

"To C. M. Smith of Chicago—

"Metropolitan Hotel, New York.

"Send me by mail, care of Allan, Bros. & Co., Liverpool, the names of the parties engaged with us in the railroad enterprise.

"(Signed), H. ALLAN.'

(Letter.)

London, E.C., Nov. 4, 1871.

"Dear Mr. Smith,—I find a considerable interest manifested here by the moneyed men, in our scheme of a Dominion Pacific Road, and if we desire to raise funds here to carry on the work. I have no doubt they can be obtained. I have not heard anything from the Government on the subject, and I presume nothing will be done till I go back. I propose to sail some time this month.

"Yours truly,

"(Signed), HUGH ALLAN."

(Telegraph.)

"Montreal, 7th Dec. 1871.

"To C. M. Smith, Banker—

"I do not think the Government at Ottawa will be prepared to deal with us sooner than the 18th inst. Sir F. Hincks is here, and hints at necessity of advertising for tenders to avoid blame.

"(Signed) HUGH ALLAN."

(Telegraph.)

"Montreal, 8th Dec. 1871.

"C. M. Smith, Banker—

"I have seen Sir Francis to-day. He says they have determined to advertise, and that it is of no use to visit Ottawa at present. I write you by mail.

"(Signed) HUGH ALLAN"

(Letter.)

"Montreal, 8th Dec., 1871.

"To C. M. Smith, Esq., Chicago—

"Dear Sir.—Sir Francis Hincks called as my office this day and said that while he was as anxious as ever to arrange with us about the railroad, the feeling of the Government is that if they closed an agreement with us, without advertising for tenders, they would be attacked about it in the House. I think this may be true, and in view of it I see no use in our going to Ottawa at present, but I think we should meet and arrange preliminaries ourselves and decide on a course of action. If, therefore, you could come here about the 15th inst., I would go on to New York with you on the 18th, and we could then put the affair in shape. Please advise me if this suits you.

"Yours truly,

"(Signed,) HUGH ALLAN."

"Montreal, 29th Dec 1871.

"To G. W. McMullen, Esq., Picton, Ont.

"Dear Sir—I have your note from Picton, but I have not heard from New York since I left there. A good many rumours are afloat regarding railroad matters, and I have reason to believe that Mr. Brydges is using all the influence he can with Cartier to thwart our views, not that he has any proposal to make, but he wants to stop the Pacific Railway altogether. A party in the interests of the Hudson's Bay Company, consisting of Donald A. Smith, D. McInnes, G. Laidlaw, G. Stephen, D. Torrance of New York, and one or two others, have given notice in the Official Gazette that they will apply for a charter to make a railroad from Pembina to Port Garry. That is the only one that affects us. I go to Ottawa on Wednesday, and will return here on Saturday. I will find out there what is going on, but I think we are sure of Cartier's opposition.

"Yours truly,

"(Signed) HUGH ALLAN."

"Montreal, January 1st, 1872.

"Dear Mr. McMullen—I saw Mr. Brydges yesterday and found out pretty nearly what he will propose, to join our railway project. He will meet us on the basis that they possibly handed mine to Cartier, but we may have to concede them a majority; however, that the Government will not leave the company in the control of the road. I will write as soon as I find out. I intend to return back here on Saturday night. Wishing you the compliments of the season.

"I am yours Truly,

"(Signed) HUGH ALLAN.

"P.S.—I have a telegram from you this moment advising me that you are going to New York, I therefore send this letter to the St. Nicholas Hotel there."

Montreal, January 24th, 1872.

"To Charles M. Smith and George W. McMullen—

"Gentlemen—My subscription of $1,450,000 to the stock of the proposed Canada Pacific Railway Company includes the sum of $200,000 furnished jointly by you and myself, to be transferred as whole or in part to Mr C. J. Brydges on condition of his joining the organization and giving it the benefit of his assistantance and influence. In case he refuses or neglects to join before the 15th of April next, I will transfer as once thereafter to you jointly $100,000 of the before named subscription, and in case Mr. B.'s influence and co-operation can be secured for a less interest in the Railway Company, than the before mentioned amount, then I will transfer to you one half of any residue that remains of the said $200,000, after Mr. Brydges accession to the Company has been secured. It is, however, understood that any residue or portion of the $200,000 named, may be used to secure any other influences deemed by myself and you desirable or important, on the same terms as is proposed in regard to Mr. Brydges, and may apply to others in addition to him.

"Yours truly,

"(Signed) HUGH ALLAN."

"Montreal, 5th Feb. 1872.

"Dear Mr. McMullen—I returned yesterday from Ottawa. Everything looks well up till the present time, but I may tell you in strict confidence, that there are symptoms of coolness between Sir John A. and Cartier arising from the coquetting of the latter with Blake and Mackenzie to form an alliance and carry the election next summer with a view to leave John A. out in the cold. This would not be quite so well for us, but I am going to Toronto to on the 7th inst. to look after our interests. We are all right with the Globe. You have not yet sent me the articles of agreement signed by the parties. Send them immediately, as I need them in my negotiations. I will require you to come down here by and by to arrange the construction of the Company, and consult about other matters. In the printed bill is there not a mistake about the land and taxation? Look at it.

"Yours truly,

(Signed) HUGH ALLAN,

"To G. W. McMullen, Chicago.

"P.S.—I wrote you, but have not received any answer."

"Toronto, 23rd Feb. 1872.

"To C. M, Smith, Chicago—

"Dear Sir—I find that Mr Brydges is making a strong attempt by exciting national feeling to get up an opposition to us in our Pacific schemes. He is endeavoring to get up what he calls a purely Canadian Company, on the representation that we are going to make an enormous profit out of it, the most of which will go to parties in the United States. He has written to influential men here and to other parts of the country, urging them to subscribe stock merely as security, for they never will be called on to pay anything, and he says the Government must give a preference to a Canadian Company. I do not know to what extent he has been successful.

"Yours truly,

"(Signed) HUGH ALLAN."

Toronto, 24th February, 1872.

"C. M. Smith, Esq., Chicago—

"Dear Sir—Since writing to you yesterday, I have seen Mr. D. L. Macpherson of Toronto, who is a member of the Dominion Senate and rather an important person to gain over to our side. He has been applied to by our opponents and sees that as a lever by which to obtain better terms from us. He insists on getting $250,000 of stock and threatens opposition if he does not get it. You will remember he is one of those I proposed as Directors. I will do the best I can but I think that McMullen you and myself will have to give up some of our stock to conciliate parties

The 12th of July

Will be a busy day here, but arrangements have been made by which the visitors can attain refreshments at convenient places. All the hotels are preparing to accommodate large numbers, and no pains is being spared to make all as comfortable as possible. The brethren from here will meet the brethren from the east in Ashburnham about 10:30 o'clock, and then proceeding to the station, will meet visitors from a distance. Then, after forming in procession, they will traverse the principal streets. At about twelve to one they will separate for dinner. Speeches will be delivered from 2:30 to 4:30, when the brethren will be escorted to the trains, homeward bound about 6 o'clock.

Attempted Incendiarism.

On Dominion Day an attempt was made to fire two wooden buildings in Millbrook, the property of Mrs. Johnston and lately occupied by Messrs. O'Neil.

The Uxbridge Journal

Gives an account of finding a box of matches and a book saturated with coal oil under an old building. The book was partly burned but the matches were not ignited, the cover not having been removed. It is feared to have been the work of some one desirous of causing another fire in the village.

The Cobourg World

Comes to us this week enlarged. It is one of the best papers in the United Counties and deserves liberal patronage, which we are glad to notice, induced the proprietor to make the change. The World is neatly printed and the reading matter is always select. We wish our contemporary continued success.

The Port Hope Times

Comes this week as a neatly printed eight paged paper. Mr. Trayes, the enterprising proprietor, is sparing neither trouble nor cost in making the Times a first class paper, and he has succeeded. We wish him a liberal patronage in return for his enterprise.

Rev. Dr. Punshon

Has again entered the state of matrimoney. He evidently believes the Divine Word that—"It is not good that the man should be alone," as this is his third wife.

Good for Nash.

The wife of Mr. Nash of Sillery, Quebec, gave birth to three fine boys on Saturday morning, and the mother and children are all doing well.

The Pacific Scandal Unearthed.

John A. Macdonald and the Whole Ministry Guilty

Three hundred and fifty-six thousand five hundred dollars of American Gold used to Bribe the Electors of the Dominion.

TWENTY-SEVEN MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT BOUGHT, AND SEVERAL CLERGYMEN MADE FRIENDS.

In this issue we give the portion of the Huntington letters published, on which he founded the accusation against the John A. Macdonald Government for selling the Country to Americans for $300,000 of Yankee Gold to bribe the Electors so as to carry the Elections of the Dominion.

Sir Hugh Allan has published a statement of this wholesale bribery, in the form of an oath, in which he swears to the guilt of John A. Cartier, Hincks, &c. Sir Hugh coolly talks of these open acts of buying and selling Ministers for certain monetary considerations, of his attempt to corrupt every opponent by large sums of money, of all his intriguing, scheming, and planing to secure the charter and be elected President, as of an ordinary commercial transaction. He boasts of having bought 27 out of 45 members of Lower Canada, and of having seen the Priests and making friends with them, with an air of indifference in regard to the morality of it, that would astonish Boss Tweed and the whole gang of New York thieves and sharpers. Yet Hincks, Cartier and John A. confirmed their aide with that document to money consideration, that has always exhibited itself, in bribing and corrupting those who surround or follow them.

Sir Hugh's oath contains the following statements which the people should know in order to see both sides of the scandal After referring to the road he says:

"That in the autmn of 1871 I learned in conversation with Sir Francis Hincks that certain American capitalists had proposed to the Government, through Mr. Waddington, to organize a company for the purpose of building the Canadian Pacific Railway, but that no action had been taken upon their proposition.

"That inasmuch as no movement appeared to be contemplated in Canada for the purpose in question—and I doubted if Canadian capitalists could be induced to subscribe to it to any large extent—I obtained from Sir F. Hinks the names of the persons who had been communicating with the Government, and immediately placed myself in correspondence with them for the purpose of endeavouring to form a Pacific Company in advance of the measures which were expected to be taken by the Government at the then ensuing session of Parliament.

Mr. Hincks told Sir Hugh of the americans, and he placed himself immediately in correspondence with them. He went to Ottawa, saw the ministers, and found the members opposed to American interference.

He does not believe the Ministers sincere in their Legislation.

"That notwithstanding that the bill which was so introduced contemplated by its terms the exclusion of foreigners, I did not feel by any means convinced that the Government would insist upon any such condition, believing, as I did and do, that such a proposition was impolitic and and unnecessary. I did not, therefore, feel justified in entirely breaking off my connection with my American associates, although I acquainted them with the difficulty which might arise if the Government took the same position which the majority of the people with whom I conversed at ottawa appeared to do. I was aware that by the terms of the bill introduced by the Government, they would have a controlling power as to the terms of contract, and I was willing to abide by their decision as to the extent of interest, if any, which foreigners might be permitted to hold: and untill that decision was communicated to me I felt in honour bound, by the agreement I had made, to leave the door open for the entrance of my American associates into the Company, unless the contingency arrived of a distinct prohibiton by the Government against admitting them.

JOHN A. MACDONALD IN THE SCHEME.

"That Sir George Cartier was, as I was aware, communicating with the premier on the subject of the Pacific Railway, amongst others; and that at one of the interviews I had with him, he showed me a communication from the Premier, of of which the following is a copy:—

"July 26th, 1872.

"Sir George Cartier, Ottawa.

"Have seen Macpherson. He has no personal ambition, but cannot in justice to Ontario, concede any preference to Quebec in the matter of the Presidency or in any other particular. He says the question about the Presidency should be let to the Board. Under these circumstances I authorize you to assure Allan that the influence of the Government will be exercised to secure him the position of President, the other terms to be as agreed on between Macpherson and Abbotts, and the whole matter to be kept quiet until after the election: then the two gentlemen to meet the Privy Council at Ottawa and settle the terms of a provisional agreement. This is the only practical solution of the difficulty, and should be accepted at once. Answer.

"(Signed)

JOHN A. MACDONALD.

"And Sir George Cartier on that occasion gave me the assurance, which he was by that telegram authorized by the Premier to convey to me.

"That on further discussion with Sir George Cartier as to the course which the Government would probably take with regard to the amalgamation and the contract to be granted, I urged upon him certain modifications of the terms of the above telegram from Sir John Macdonald, and finally, Sir George came to entertain the opinion, that I was entitled to have certain of those modifications conceded to me, and expressed his willingness to recommend them to his colleagues. Being desirous of having as definite an expression of opinion from Sir George as he felt himself qualified in giving, I requested that he would put what he stated verbally to me in writing, and, accordingly, on the 30th of July, 1872, he wrote me the following letter:—

"MONTREAL, July 30th, 1872.

(Copy)

"DEAR SIR HUGH,—I enclose you copies of telegrams received from Sir John Macdonald, and with reference to their contents I would say that in my opinion, the Governor in Council will approve of the amalgamation of your Company with the Inter Oceanic Company, under the name of the Canada Pacific Railway Company, the Provisional Board of the Amalgamated Company to be composed of seventeen members, of whom four shall be named from the Province of Quebec by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, four from the Province of Ontario by the Inter Oceanic Railway Company, and the remainder by the Government; the Amalgamated Company to have the powers specified in the 10th section of the Act incorporating the Canada Pacific Railway Company, etc., the agreement of amalgamation to be executed between the Companies within two months from this date. The Canada Pacific Company might take the initiative in procuring the amalgamation, and if the Inter Oceanic Company should not execute an agreement of amalgamation upon such terms, and within such time, I think the Government would not make any arrangements should be made with the Canada Pacific Company under the circumstances, the subscription and payments of stock being made, as dia Pacific Railway Company. I do not suppose that the Government of the Dominion will agree with the Company for the construction and working of the Canadian Pacific Railway with such branches as shall be agreed upon, and will grant to the Company all such subsidies and assistance as they are empowered to do by the Government Act. I believe all the advantages which the Government Act empowers the Government to confer upon the Company will be required, to enable the works contemplated to be successfully carried through; and I am convinced that they will be accepted by the Company to be formed by the amalgamation, or to the Canada Pacific Company, as the case may be. I would add that as I appreciate the measures in which I have been engaged in this letter, I shall use my best endeavours to have them carried into effect.

April of last

Very truly yours,

(Signed) GEO. E. CARTIER.

After quibbles about paying money to Ministers. He says: I declare that I did expend considerable sums of money in various ways, which appeared to me to be advantageous to the Company I had organized, and calculated to strengthen my hands in endeavouring to obtain the contract for that company; but that I did not on any occasion, or in any way, pay, or agree to pay, anything whatever to any member of the Government, or to any one on behalf or in any instance of the Government, for any consideration whatever in connection with the charter or contract, as may be gathered from the letters in question. I co uld not it to be my policy to strengthen my position as far as I possibly could with my own friend and fellow-citizens in the Province of Quebec, and more especially in so far as related to the Montreal Northern Colonization Railway, which I conceived would at some day be the outlet from the Canadian Pacific to the Port of Montreal and a considerable portion of the money referred to in those was expended by me in furtherance of that project in many ways. I considered it for my interest, so, that those members of Parliament who had shown an interest in the Canadian Pacific enterprise, and in other railway enterprises in which I was interested and who were opposed to assist and further them, should be aided in their elections; and I subscribed some money to assist in the election of such persons as were my friends and in whom I was interested, but without any understanding or condition with them or any of them as to the Parliamentary support or assistance in the event of their election.

"In those and in similar ways I expend sums of money approaching in amount that mentioned in those letters, as I received I had a perfect right to do; but I did not state in those letters, nor is it the fact, that any portions of those sums of money were paid to the members of the Government, or were received by them or on their behalf, directly or indirectly, as a consideration for any advantage to me in connection with the Pacific Railway contract.

The letters he says "were written in the confidence of private intercourse," but he does not deny any word and statement in them, and thus the whole accusations of Mr. Huntington are verified by the oath of Sir Hugh Allan.

THE RAILWAY TO BOBCAGEON.

The Independent we trust will not feel annoyed at us for using a few of his own words in reply to an article referring to railway advocacy.

It is curious to note how the "prejudices" of the Independent maleads its judgment The editor of that journal "is so perverse" that he "refuses to publish the nearest facts," for what reason we can understand.

The Independent must know that the Examiner has constantly and continuously advocated railway extension to Bobcaygeon, since ever extension northward was first mentioned, and therefore the side issue of "the stocks" doesn't suit yet. Whenever the Independent gets on the train at Bobcaygeon and passes via Omemee to the front, while the Examiner is asserting the road shall not be built, then has a far fetched comparisons may be admitted, but not till then. The Independent no doubt understands that the completion of the road to Bobcaygeon would be a better guarantee than promises of a Railway Company. Promises are easily made, a preliminary survey cost only a trifle. Just let the Independent wait till the fuss about bonuses is over and then tell us how the work is progressing. For our own part we have the strongest disclination to accept promises of Railway Companies until the work has progressed the promises are verified, in laying down the ties and iron on the road, and our confrere will see things in this way before this generation passes away unless he be called to account sooner than we wish him to be.

In regard to being "backed by abundant means," we do not wish to write, but would ask the Independent, has he got into the secrets of the Company? If he has, it is more than falls to the lot of outsiders generally, especially to newspaper men, unless when paid to keep secrecy. It is not in the interest of the Midland Company to build a branch to Bobcaygeon, unless the Cobourg and Peterboro line, or some other line, be extended, or be proposed to be extended. It has the trade of Bobcaygeon largely at present, why spend $250,000 to get what it now has. It is not so easy raising a quarter of a million of dollars in addition to all other necessary expenses and outlay. The Independent had better wait till the road is built before so much boasting about means.

It is said in the Independent that the editor of the Examiner vents his spleen against Bobcaygeon. There is no truth in this assertion. The Examiner has always advocated a road to Bobcaygeon, in preference to every other route, and an extension to Fenelon Falls, with a main line to Haliburton

In regard to passing the Harvey by-law before the time prescribed by law. the best lawyers will tell the Independent that it is fatal to the by-law unless the by-law should be legalized by Act of Parliament.

That the Ogemah is to be stopped running to Bridgenorth is not very complimentary to either those who control the boat or to those who influenced them. Has the Midland Company bought off the Ogemah? If so Peterboro had better know it and make her own arrangements for the future. We wish Bobcaygeon prosperity, let it be a city, and we will say all we can to get a railway to it via Peterboro. Already Peterboro has voted $30,000 for the urpose. ten miles of road are almost completed, and the remainder will be completed, we venture to say, before the Omemee Branch shall be well begun. In future strictures will the Independent be honest! We are loath to charge the editor thereof with any moral obliquity.

COUNTY COUNCIL, PORT HOPE SESSION

[ADJOURNED MEETING.]

The Council met on Wednesday at 2 o'clock. When Mr. Choate, Chairman of the Special Committee on the petition to grant $40,000 to the Victoria road, reported against the prayer of the petition on legal grounds, and read the legal opinion of Mr. Scott to the effect.

Mr. M. C. Cameron who was present, then addressed the council in favour of the petition, and endeavoured to explain away Mr. Scott's opinions.

Mr. Scott afterwards addressed the council, giving his reasons for the conclusions presented to the council, after which on motion of Mr. Sanderson, seconded by Mr. Moher,—The report was adopted.

This put an end to the debate on the petition except a little sparring about injustice to the northern people, which is simply nonsense. We have in a speech this issue for the report, but merely give the division on accepting it.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—I observed in last week's Times an editorial headed "Our Schools," endeavouring to prove that the published lists of the general standing of the pupils show that the common school department is neglected. I have not got in possession the lists he refers to, but, because only three pupils have received honourable mention therein for writing, I cannot see how it follows that they are the only respectable writers in the school. He then proceeds to say that, in the first place, a higher education is of no practical value: secondly, that in this school it considers what is of practical value. He has not proved his second point and the law is constantly cavilled.

The advantages of a higher education are, unfortunately, not appreciated by the many, simply because, in the words of a writer on Political Economy, "They command the knowledge of facts with the possession of a method."

It appears to me that the editor of the Times is labouring under this delusion. That a higher education is of no practical economic value, is contrary to the opinion of the ablest writers.

Sir J. Stephen, while treating of the productive power of labour, says: "The effects of the increased knowledge of a community in executing its established tasks illustrate on as they have become familiar as the most uneducated. A thing not yet so well understood and recognized is the economical value of the diffusion of intelligence among the people. The number of persons fitted to direct and superintend any industrial enterprise, or even to execute any process which cannot be reduced to an affair of mongrery and routine, is always far short of the demand." From another author we quote that, "as men of business or of general usefulness, and as men with whom an employer would best like to be surrounded, I should decidedly prefer the Saxons and the Swiss, but more especially the Saxons, because they have had a careful, general education which has extended their capacities beyond any special employment." It goes on to say that the English, who have a good common education are utterly useless for anything but ordinary routine work. This all shows that there is something more wanting for practical use than a common education. Because a man in the "dry goods" business can make re yards of tape without studying classical and higher mathematics, it does not follow that one who can the man gets a share in the business he will not be more sagacious in judging what demand there will be for different kinds of goods and regulating his stock purchases accordingly, or that when he advances a step further and gets into wheat or wool speculations his higher education would not be the means of rendering him a wealthy man instead of a bankrupt. There are doubtless many shrewd business men who have not received a higher education, and many who have received a higher education, and have failed in business, but this does not prove that the former might not have had their faculties improved by a higher education, and that the latter did not fail from a total lack of natural astuteness. If so we might, by analogical reasoning, say that, because some thin people drink porter, and some stout people never taste it, therefore porter is a means to fattening properties.

I am well aware, however, far from thinking that the present system of Canada is perfect, I will, in a few lines, speak upon some points considering the Times not to tread on forbidden ground but treacherous ground and should be beneath, and let them remember that "He who seeks the mind's improvement at the world in striving mind."

Yours, &c.,

SIR,—In reply to the letter of George Stingleton appearing last week in your columns, I would say that the following is a true copy of the order for fruit trees, which I held from him:—

30th Aug., 1872.

Mr. W. C. Lawrence,

Fruit Tree dealer:

Please deliver to me on or before 12th of May next the following bill of trees and plants in good merchantable order, for which I agree to pay $13.25 each when notified of their being delivered at Warsaw:

40 Standard Appletrees at 30 cts		$12 00
2 Pear Trees, Dwarfed, at 50 "		1 00
4 Quince Bush,	at 25 "	25
		$13 25

(Signed) GEO. SINGLETON.

Having written twice to Mr. Singleton, asking payment, (without reply) I enclosed this order to Mr. Sherin and paid him for his services in collecting $1.00, and now because Mr. Singleton has been compelled, through fear of the law, to hand over to Clerk of the Court two months after it became due, what by his order over his own hand he had agreed to pay in cash, he would endeavour to lead the public to think he had been ill used. His attempt to obtain some notoriety for a supply of that material known as honesty, I fear has altogether failed him. It would be wise for men of the sort Mr. Singleton has shown himself to be to keep out of the newspapers. They, in doing so, only bring down on themselves the contempt of every decent and honest man in the community.

Yours truly,

W. C. LAWRENCE.

"WHAT HEN DO?"

The last Session of the County Council wasted considerable time over what is known as their "Whitewashing process," and at the close of the scene John Carnegie used the Review to blow his own trumpet, and at the same time blacken Mr. Sanderson if possible. He cannot refrain from falsifying records.

Mr. Sanderson wrote on a slip of paper and put it into Mr. Blezard's hand who handed it to Mr. Pearce, "The Judge has signed Judgement in favor of the County of Peterboro."

Mr. Sanderson received this information from Mr. Fairbairn, and we believe it is true. Mr. Fairbairn got his information from Counsel in Toronto.

Mr. Walton in defence of Sanderson said Mr. Sanderson had told him that "No Judgement had been delivered." Now Mr. Sanderson's slip did not say Judgement "had been delivered," it was "the Judge has signed Judgement." There is therefore no misrepresentation, nor attempt to deceive, on the part of Mr. Sanderson, but there is on the part of Mr. Carnegie.

Mr. Sanderson never spoke of a telegram, nor did Mr. Pearce, yet Mr. Carnegie will represent that "Mr. Sanderson's reply was calculated to lead Mr. McDonald to suppose that the information had been received from Toronto by telegram." This is false in every particular. Mr. Sanderson in the hearing of several members of the Council and while in Session, distinctly said "he had no telegram," and that he got his information at the office of Messrs. Boulton, Fairbairn and Powell; and Mr. McDonald heard this too.

What could be more natural and truthful than to tell how and where he got his information? And Mr. Fairbairn confirmed that he had told Mr. Sanderson, yet Mr. Carnegie would dare insinuate his incredulity.

The fact is Mr. McDonald was unduly excited, and refused to listen to anything reasonable, nevertheless the editor of the Review palliates his haste and unreasonable excitement, but condemns Mr. Sanderson's upright and straightforward course. Nothing more indicative of a spirit of evil could be written than this:

"With regard to Mr. Pearce's 'undue haste' the finding of the Committee although it would scarcely have been justified under ordinary circumstances, yet, in view of the fact that the information was obtained from Mr. Michael Sanderson was perhaps justified."

But when it is taken into consideration that the writer of the slander suggested above will not be believed on any subject unless endorsed by two or three witnesses it will not be wondered at what is written.

That is leave Walton and Sanderson at home and send Mr. Garbutt and all will be well. Now, far be it from us to write against Mr. Garbutt or against any man whom the people may select. Our business is to report proceedings and let the people judge.

In a discussion in the County Council of Leeds, a Mr. Beach is reported as saying while debating about grants to High Schools, that—"The Warden and Clerk yesterday had shown that education was wanting somewhere, as it took them both to read the letter from the Inspector of Registry Offices." Query—Was the educational vacuity in the County officials or in the Inspector of Registry Offices?

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—In the Review of the 27th of June last, we find a table of the equalisation of the Assessment Rolls of the Township of Smith for the last 4 years in which it is stated that the sum of $142,406 has been added to the assessment of Smith during the last 3 years. We believe that the Council of the County commenced to equalize the Assessment Rolls of the County in 1859; at that time Smith was equalized at $7 per acre, at which sum it continued for 5 years, but in 1863 it was enhanced to $8 per acre, and continued at that sum until the year 1871. In that year we believe an argument was raised that Smith contained some very valuable mill and other property near the Town and it was raised to $9 per acre; this we considered an imposition as the whole assessment of this valuable property only amounted to $33,775 and the addition of $1 per acre added to our assessment raised it to $56,566, but the Township of Otonabee having been raised a like sum we past it over in silence. In the year 1873 the Council of the Town of Peterboro petitioned the Governor in Council to so extend the limits of that Town as to embrace a part of Smith, and their petition was granted, they, we suppose, not wishing to infringe on the 2nd amendment took unto themselves a part not in the likeness of ony thing in Heaven above or in the earth beneath; but it so happened it contained the whole of this valuable property the assessment of which amounted to 10 times the amount of any other property of the same area in the Township. In 1873 after the loss of this property our Reeves made a calculation and found that to continue the equalization in the same rates as in 1872, Smith should be reduced to $8.26 per acre, but thought that in equity it should be reduced to $8, its old assessment; but when we read the statement in the Review that Smith had been raised to $10 per acre we were filled with astonishment, for according to the calculation of our Reeves we have been raised 17 per cent above the equalisation of 1872. We had some idea that the property in the County had enhanced in value since June 1872, but how the property in Smith should enhance 17 per cent, and those in Ashburnham, Otonabee and other Townships in the County not one cent we are at a loss to determine, yet we have 17 men selected from the different Municipalities in the County for their superior wisdom, who have by the declaration of their office solemnly declared to the best of their knowledge this is the case.

But the Editor of the Review is of a different opinion for he says the reason why we the ratepayers of Smith have to the piper is by keeping our present Reeve in their present position whose hands municipally speaking, are against every man, and every man against them: and he further states that the political cry won't do this time, as the motion to advance Smith was made by Mr. Chase and seconded by the Warden. We are dubious about endorsing this version of the case as the true one, as we consider our Reeves to be men of judgement and men of integrity and honor, and we have never read that their hands were ever against Mr. Chase or ever opposed to him unnecessarily, but we will just take a look at the equalization of the Assessment Rolls of Dummer. At the commencement, when Smith was equalized at $7, Dummer was equalized at $3, Dummer still continues at $3 per acre while Smith has been raised to $10 per acre, thus raising the property in Smith an amount nearly equal to the whole value of the real property in Dummer. Then again our Reeves hands have never been against the Warden that we can recollect of, for previous to his being elected Warden they voted together on almost all questions coming before the Council, and at his election for Warden they stuck to him with the greatest tenacity. Yet this Warden solemnly declares that notwithstanding the difference in the value of the property in the villages in Otonabee and those in Smith, and the difference in the quality of the land in the townships as a whole, that to the best of his knowledge Smith is equal in value to Otonabee. We must confess that we are greatly deceived in the knowledge of the Warden. We have also read in the Examiner that Mr. Peck defended the report of the Committee appointed to equalize the Assessment Rolls by showing that in all the townships a large addition had been made to the value of personal property, while very little had been added to that class of property in Smith, and in view of this he thought Smith should remain at $10. We must admit that we were again greatly astonished when we read this. It is some years since the present method of equalizing the personal property in the County was adopted, and was and is considered to be the most just most accurate and the most equitable method that could be devised. If this is the case, and we do not for a moment doubt it, and the Assessor of Smith comes nearest to this just, this accurate, this equitable method of any Assessor in the County, we think he justly deserves praise, on the contrary Mr. Peck thinks that the real property in the township should be enhanced 17 per cent in consequence.

We, the ratepayers of Smith are of the opinion that the equalization of the Assessment Rolls of the County by the present Council is a mere farce, and that we are aggrieved and imposed on thereby (thanks to the Editor of the Review for exposing this imposition) and feel certain that we need no further comment to urge the immediate appointment of County Valuators and let them be appointed at the next sitting of the Council—let them be men of sound judgement and unimpeachable integrity and honour—let them commence their duties this fall as the fall is the best season, and they could thus have their valuation ready at the June Session in 1874.

By inserting the above in your valuable paper you will confer a favor on a Grit and a Conservative, and both ratepayers of Smith.

Yours,

GRIT CONSERVATIVE.

BUTTER INSPECTION.

THE NEW ACT.

The last session of the Dominion Parliament passed an Act providing for the inspection of butter, which comes into force on the 1st day of September next. Through Messrs. Nicholls & Hall we have received a copy of the Act, and for general information we give it below, as it is to the interest of all to become acquainted with its provisions.

1 No Inspector or Deputy Inspector of Butter shall brand, mark, or certify any butter as inspected, unless it is packed in the manner hereinafter required; but any butter not so packed, submitted for inspection, shall, by the Inspector or Deputy Inspector to whom it is submitted, be repacked in the manner hereby required, and the Inspector or Deputy Inspector shall receive the actual cost of such new packages as may be required for such repacking, and the further sum of five cents the each firkin or keg of butter so repacked as compensation for his time and labor.

All butter branded, marked, or certified as inspected, shall be packed in firkins or kegs made of the best seasoned wood, and each bound with sufficient hoops, and being of the following sizes and dimensions, that is to say, the firkin to contain as nearly as possible fifty six pounds of butter, the length of the staves from croe to croe to be fourteen inches and a half, the diameter of the head to be eleven inches and a half, the thickness of the staves to be, as nearly as may be three-quarters of an inch, and the thickness of the head, as nearly as may be, half an inch, the package to weigh, as nearly as possible, but in no case to exceed ten pounds when dry; the keg to contain as nearly as possible, eighty-four pounds of butter, the length of the stave, from croe to croe, to be seventeen inches, the diameter of the head to be thirteen inches, the thickness of the staves to be, as nearly as may be, three-quarters of an inch, and of the head as nearly as may be, half an inch, and the package to weigh, as nearly as possible, but in no case to exceed thirteen pounds when dry; and the weight of each package shall be branded on the outside of the firkin or keg, at the centre of the stave or bilge, with the name of the maker thereof, under a penalty of one dollar per package, upon any cooper contravening the requirements of this Act as aforesaid.

2. But nothing herein contained shall apply to any packages other than those containing butter submitted for inspection.

4. In inspecting butter, the Inspector or Deputy Inspector shall take out the head of each firkin or keg, and shall pass the taster through the butter, from end to end, and shall empty out and throw aside all salt or pickle which, in his judgement, is not necessary to the preservation of the butter, and after he has ascertained the quality of the butter, he shall replace so much thereof as he has taken out, and if there is in his judgment a deficiency of loose salt, so that he thinks the preservation and condition of the butter would be promoted by an additional quantity of salt, he shall add such quantity.

5. He shall then have the package securely headed and coopered, and shall inscribe or brand on the head of the package the gross weight thereof in pounds avoirdupois, excluding fractional parts of a pound, and the tare, which shall include one pound weight for each firkin, and two pounds weight for each keg, for soakage over and above the cooper's tare; and he shall then brand on the head his own name, the month year, and place of inspection, and the quality of the butter as "first," "second," "third or "fourth," or as "grease," according to the quality of the butter, and adopting the standard of quality and system of classification in use in that portion of the United Kingdoom called Ireland: first, removing all such marks (the distinguishing mark of owner of the butter excepted) on the package as would interfere with the brands or marks of the Inspector.

6. Each Inspector shall provide himself and his Deputy with suitable and convenient premises for the storage and inspection of butter, and shall keek all packages of butter delivered to him for inspection, while they remain in the possession, in some place safe from the injuries of the weather or of floods, and under tight roof, and any Inspector or Deputy Inspector contravening this provision shall forfeit and pay to the owner the sum of one dollar for every package not stored as aforesaid, besides the actual damages sustained by such owner.

7. For all the services to be performed as aforsaid, including unheading, weighing, salting, heading, tightening hoops, marking and branding, and ten days' storage, each Inspector shall be entitled to recieve ten cents for every package of butter by him inspected as aforesaid; and, if reinspected, seven cents, together with the actual cost or charge of any package by him furnished, or for extra cooperage or repairs done to packages containing butter by him inspected, and no more; the charge for which extra cooperage and repairs shall not in any case exceed five cents per package: in consideration of which all packages shall be delivered in good shipping order, and such charges shall be paid by the person offering such butter for inspection, or his agent.

8. Each Inspector shall further be entitled to recieve two and a half cents per month, per firkin, and two cents and a third of a cent per keg, per month for the storage of each package of butter, which remains stored with him as aforsaid more than ten days after the date of the invoice, weigh note and inspection bill, and such storage shall be paid by the person receiving or shipping the said butter, or his agent but in no case shall any storage be paid or required when the butter has not remained stored as aforesaid during ten days from the date of the inspection bill.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL

Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proporations of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combination. Thus in the proper time, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alcohol is lost in that way, and you get only the small of Oils which they may contain.

MISS SAWYER'S SALVE

HERE you have a safe remedy combining soothing and healing properties, with no dangerous ingredient. A remedy at hand for the many pains and aches, wounds and bruises to which flesh is heir. A remedy which has been in many cases worth more than its weight in gold, and always relieves and never prostrates. This prepared by Miss Sawyer, who has used in her own numerous treatment of the sick. A remedy which has proved its value in many personal cases, with great success. The relief [illegible] Chilblains, Rheumatism, Sore Throat, Quinsy, Old Sores, Scrofula, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Sore Nipples, Abscesses, Fever Sores, Felons, Whitlow, Erysipelas, Sore Eyes, Chapped Hands, Burns and Scalds, Piles, Fistula, Corns, Bites of Insects, Cancers, Tetter, Barber's Itch, Sore Lips, Blisters, Boils, Ringworm, Frost Bites, Scald Heads, Chapped Skin, Sore Nipples, Tumors, Chapped Hands, Cuts, Bruises, Croup, Cracked Lips, Sores on Children.

It never fails to cure Rheumatism if properly applied. Rub it in well with the hand three times a day. In several cases it has cured painful tumors. For Piles it has been discovered to be a sure remedy. Persons that have been afflicted for years have been relieved by a few applications. For Erysipelas it works wonders, often has the pain relieved and crushing the patient. For Chapped Hands it produces a cure immediately. Let those with Rheumatism obtain this Salve and apply it freely, and they will find it invaluable. It is good in cases of Sore Throat and Tumors. Cancers have been cured with it. The best Salve ever invented for Scalds, Burns and Sore Nipples. No way injurious. Be sure to afford relief. Sores or Weak Eyes—Rub on the 5th quarter, once or twice a day. Cancers cure by putting in the sore on a piece of cotton. For Bruises this is superior to anything known. For Pimples take tea like a charm. For Ringworm and Scalds, apply the Salve at once and it gives immediate relief. For Old Sores, apply once a day.

Not among the least of the invaluable properties of Miss SAWYER'S SALVE are its beneficial effects on the hair. Rubbed on the scalp, in five or six different parts, it promotes the growth of the hair, prevents it turning gray, and the habit speedily changes a new growth of hair. No lady should be without this invaluable article as an ornament for the toilet. It eradicates dandruff, dryness from the head, and blotches and pimples from the face.

From Mrs. ELIZABETH COOMBS, Esq.

Brunswick April 4.

MISS SAWYER: I received your letter last evening, and was very glad you concluded to send me some of your Salve. I think I can do well with it, as it will be quite an accommodation to my husband, as he cannot get along without it. He has tried everything else and has never found anything that would do him any good. He has been troubled with Salt Rheum for six years, and have used a number of bottles of your Salve, and can truly say any more than I say for a weak head, and I [illegible] Mr. Coombs has had a fever sore on his leg for thirty years, and would be a cripple for life, but I found a remedy in your Salve. It healed, and takes out the humor, and has left the limb sound and well, and does for him all we claim for it. I can recommend it for a good many more cases that you have not, for I use it for everything. I consider it invaluable in a family. If you can get this testimony together, and it can be of any use to you, you are welcome.

Yours, &c., ELIZABETH COOMBS.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

If your Druggist is out of the Salve, and refuses to keep supplied, send seventy-five cents and you will receive a box by return mail.

Put up in Large Boxes at 50 cents each (nearly three times as large as the box represented above). Prepared by Miss C. SAWYER, and put up by L. E. ROBBINS, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Rockland, Me. A Trial Box sent free by mail on receipt of price as above, by L. E. ROBBINS, Rockland, Me.

THIS VALUABLE SALVE IS SOLD BY ALL DEALERS IN MEDICINE.

For sale by Dr. Taylor, and Messrs Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power in cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to other forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for the incipient consumption, and the danger ous affections of the throat and lungs. As a protection against incipient consumption, Coughs, Colds, or Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to these complaints, no one should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although terminal Consumption is the most formidable disease which afflicts the human race, it is by no means incurable, many cases which are considered settled consumption, and pronounced hopeless by the best physicians, yielding to the use of this remedy. Let those who are afflicted with this disease try the Cherry Pectoral, and they will be surprised to find what a powerful hold it has upon the disease, and how soon it will restore them to health and strength. Let them also have confidence in the remedy, and a perseverance in its use, and the most dangerous cases will be cured. Let the Cherry Pectoral be given in the early stages of the disease, and it will prevent the fatal consumption from ever fastening its grasp upon the system. Let it be kept in the house for the protection of the family against the first symptoms of Throat and Lung disease, and a world of suffering will be saved. Let it be always relied upon and often used, and great protection from danger will be found.

Pneumonia is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral at the first chill, or as soon as the premonitory symptoms appear. Relief will always follow the administration of this remedy in the first stages of the disease. Influenza, Hoarseness, Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, and Consumption yield to its influence. Public speakers and singers find great protection from its use.

Ayer's Ague Cure

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chills and Fever, Remittent Fever, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and indeed the whole class of diseases resulting from the Malarious poisons of Miasmatic districts, this remedy has no equal, and the public need not be told that we do not hesitate to recommend it. Its effects are prompt and certain, and the most inveterate cases yield to it readily. Even those who live in districts where the disease is not indigenous, by taking this remedy on their visits to the sickly localities, are perfectly protected from attack. Travellers and temporary residents in the South and West, exposed to the influence of these fearful maladies, should never be without it. Containing no Arsenic, Quinine, or other dangerous drug, it may be taken by the most delicate child with perfect safety. Those who have been poisoned by Quinine, will find in this Ague Cure a powerful antidote for the disease, and a safe substitute for the drug. Prepared by

TO THEE.

I bring my sins to Thee,
The sins I cannot count,
These all may cleansed be
In Thy open crystal Fount.
I bring them, Saviour, all to Thee,
That freedom in my soul may be.

My heart to Thee I bring,
The heart I cannot mend,
A faithless stranger to my King,
An evil heart indeed.
I bring it, Saviour, now to Thee,
That fixed and fulfilled it may be.

To Thee I bring my cares,
The sum I cannot see,
These will not only churn,
But take it all for me.
O loving Saviour, now to Thee,
I bring the load that wearies me.

I bring my grief to Thee,
The grief I cannot tell,
No words shall sounded be,
Thou knowest all so well.
I bring the sorrow laid on me,
O suffering Saviour, all to Thee.

My joys to Thee I bring,
The joys Thy love has given,
That each may be a wing
To lift me nearer heaven.
I bring them, Saviour, all to Thee,
Who hast procured them all for me.

My life I bring to Thee,
I would not be my own,
O Saviour, let me be
Thine own, Thine alone!
My heart, my life, my all I bring
To Thee, my Saviour and my King.

The Husband's Commandments.

1. I am thy husband, thou shalt have no other husband but me, whom thou didst vow to love, honor and obey, for I saved thee from old maidism, and rescued thee from the terror of single blessedness.

2. Thou shalt not look upon any other man to love or to admire him, for I thy husband am a jealous husband, who will visit the sins of the wife upon her followers, therefore keep thou faithfully to thy marriage vow.

3. Thou shalt not backbite thy husband, nor speak lightly of him, neither shalt thou expose his faults to thy neighbor, lest he should hear of it and punish thy perfidy by a deprivation of sundry items, such as bonnets, dresses, etc.

4. Remember the seventh day to keep it free from all unnecessary labor, for there are six days in which to do thy work. Thou shalt have thine house clean and tidy by 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, and there shall be no washing of children nor baking after that hour. Then shalt do thy exercising alone, least in the company of other women thou buyest ribbons for thyself, instead of cigars for thy husband.

5. Honor thy husband's father and mother, and let not thy thoughts wander selfishly towards their quadrant and pockets whilst so doing.

6. Thou shalt not box the children's ears nor thump them for plundering the sugar pot, or running away with the pastry or jam, for an hungry stomach knows no law, save cut and run.

7. Thou shalt not listen to flattery nor accept gifts and trinkets from any man save thy husband, who esteemeth woman's purity her greatest ornament.

8. Thou shalt not rifle thy husband's pockets for coppers when he is asleep, neither shalt thou read any letters thou mayst find therein, for it is his business to look after his own affairs, and thy business to let his alone—ask no questions but believe.

9. Thou shalt conceal nothing from thy husband, always speak the truth, and make no false representation of the state of thy pantry and purse, for thy husband abhorreth petty larceny in the domestic department, which shall be punished by closing the exchequer till such financial frauds are abolished.

10. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's furniture, nor her dress, nor her caps, nor anything that is hers; and when thou goest out with thine husband thou shalt not wear a crinoline nor any other dangerous machine likely to come in contact with his shins.

11. Look for no jewellery from thy husband on the anniversary of thy wedding, for it is written "blessed are they which expect nothing, for they shall not be disappointed."

Why Some People Remain Poor.

Cream is allowed to mould and spoil.

Silver spoons are used to scrape the kettle.

The scrubbing brush is left in the water.

Nice fried knives are thrown in hot water and spoiled.

Dish cloths are thrown where mice can destroy them.

What a Man Should Have.

Let a man have a fervent love for what is pure, and just, and honorable, let him have a sordid abhorrence of what is sensual, mean and unGenerous, and he will not go far wrong. The only sound way of training men to purity, integrity and honor, is to let them know the broad outline of God's law, and then to trust them to the light of conscience, and the teachings of the Holy Ghost. Moreover, most of the moral evils from which men suffer, will not disappear under most minutiæ what is necessary is the development of positive loyalty to God and goodness. Jeremy Taylor says, "Man do not serve God with honesty and heartiness, and do not love him greatly, but stand upon terms with him, and study how much is lawful, how far they may go, and which is their utmost stretch of lawful, being afraid to do more for God and for their souls, than is simply absolutely necessary.

A Blush.

What is there more mysterious than a blush, that a word or look or thought should send that inimitable carnation over the cheek like the soft tint of the summer sunset! Strange it is, also, that the face only, and that the human face, is capable of blushing, that the hand or foot does not turn red with modesty or shame any more than does the glove or sock that covers them. It is the face that bears the angel's impress; it is the face that is heaven. The blush of modesty that tinted woman's face when she awoke in Eden's sunny land, still lingers with her fair daughters. They caught it from the rose—for all the roses were first white, but even Eve plucked one, the bud, seeing her own fair face—more fair than the flowers—blushed, and cast in reflex on her velvet cheek. The face is the tablet of the soul, whereon it writes its actions. There may be traced all the intellectual phenomena with the confidence amounting to a moral certainty. If innocency and purity look outward from within, none the less do vice intemperance and debauchery make their indelible impression upon it. Idiocy, rage, cowardice and passion leave their traces deeply, even, than the virtues of modesty, truth, chastity and hope. Even beauty grows more beautiful from the pure thoughts that arise within it.

A Good Name

How often rich men and women, in society seemingly forgot the value of a good name!

Money is nothing, position is nothing, power is nothing, without the foundation stone—a good name.

Beginning life the young man who goes into business should remember this thing. In all his intercourse with men, in every commercial transaction, to be strictly honest; to take no advantage of his neighbor's ignorance or his carelessness.

If his character is ever investigated, let men say of him that he never put in his pocket a penny that belonged to any one else; that he would scorn to cheat the man who trusts him and deals with him.

Let him keep consideration of right and honesty, and fair dealing, always uppermost in his mind, and in their train will come the respect and confidence of his fellow-men, and the satisfaction of his own soul, and after labor—wealth.

Beginning life, let the young girl think of: that beauty fades, mere personal attractions vanish, but that a good name is the most precious ornament a woman can wear.

It is a base action to win the esteem, the friendship, the love, of those you meet in our own little world, by hiding under a false, fair exterior, hidden vices of character—to appear to be what you know you are not.

If you would deserve and win a good name, be above trickery of every kind. Be in reality, modest and kind-hearted, frank and friendly, generous and forgiving.

Do not send the starving beggar from your door, and the next breath talk of philanthrophy; do not weave of your falsehood a snare to entangle your neighbor's heart, and then laugh at the pain you have caused.

Oh, remember that the brightest jewels will grow dim beside the lustre of a good name.

Woman's influence is powerful in this world. How many fools sink into despair and yield to the temptations that come in their way, because the wife objects or ridicules aid.

There is one man who is struggling to rise enough to support his family. And in these, among all worldly possessions, can possibly intervene to leave the children you love as your own lives, than this single thing—the glory of the name that is untarnished!

A STORY OF A STAGE DRIVER.

I once knew a man who, now in wealth, was once a stage driver, of whom I will relate an incident.

He was striving to make a connection for the sake of a large load of passengers which he was carrying, and he broke down not far from the dwelling of an old curmudgeon. The driver went to borrow his lumber wagon to take his passengers on with. The man was absent from home and his wife refused to lend the waggon.

"You are perfectly right madam," said the driver, "but I must have it. I shall take it, and settle with your husband for it when he returns."

He took it, and [illegible] back in good order. When he came to settle for it, he had to meet him full of anger and thunderous with rage. After some expostulations, he said—

"I have come to settle for the waggon."

"Well, you shall," said the man.

"What shall I pay you for the use of it, mister or two?"

"You shall pay me fifty dollars."

He made no objection to the charge, handed the man fifty dollars, took his hands [illegible] and mounted his coach and rode on, his passengers protested against his yielding to such an [illegible] demand.

Two or three weeks afterward he found this man hanging around his boarding place, and said to him:

"Good morning, sir."

Said the man, "I came to see you about that waggon."

"I thought I paid you for it. How much do you want?"

"That money has burned me ever since I took it from you. Here's your fifty dollars—I can't keep it.

It was with difficulty that he could be made to take three dollars—a fair price for his wagon. When the neighbors heard this story and looked at the affair from beginning to end, they said:

"Was it for the [illegible] after all? Was it not beautiful."

A Terrible System.

We read an interesting account of the "silent system" which is in operation at the Holloway Model Prison in London. It is an offence for a prisoner to speak one word, and he is never addressed except in whispers, so that he may be in prison two years without hearing the natural sound of the human voice. The effect of this is so terrible on the mind that prisoners will speak out in desperation, at the risk of any punishment rather than endure that horrible silence. They never see one another, but remain in perpetual solitude. There is a fine hole in each cell, and as the wardens wear shoes of India rubber soles they can never be sure of being unwitched. Every day the prisoners are taken to a chapel so arranged that they can see no one save the chaplain, and him only through an iron grating. And then is the order of devotion observed. Wardens are constantly on the watch, lest for a single instant they, through the whole of the service, depart from the rigid rule of "eyes right." They must look steadfastly at the preacher, must rise and lower their prayer-book rest, their elbows squared, and all at once like, soldiers at drill. They may not scrape their feet without having afterwards to explain the movement. They scarcely wink an eye or sigh without danger of rebuke or punishment. Would not a lifetime of this frightful solitude be just punishment for the murderer? The axe and rope lose half their horror when contrasted with it. The most hardened criminal would shrink from committing a crime of this nature were he sure that a life passed in prison under the "silent system" would be his inevitable punishment, ending only with death.

AN ITEM FOR THE LADIES.

Probably, madame or miss, you are the possessor of a summer dress, made from some white diaphanous material; and it may also be imagined that during your shopping you have inspected goods of a similar nature, only of varying colors, from which you have purchased sufficient material to construct a number of those garments, in comparison with the intricacies of which the most elaborate works of modern engineering form no parallel. Now, a learned German philosopher has invented a plan whereby your single white dress may be changed as often as you desire to any color you may fancy, and-this in your own laundry, so that hereafter the money which you would devote to several robes of varying hues may be entirely saved, while you appear daily, if you choose, in toilettes of totally different complexion. The process is very simple, and consists in merely coloring the starch used in the "doing up." Suppose a white dress is to be tinted a beautiful crimson: three parts of fuschsine, an aniline color which [illegible] can readily procure for [illegible] are dissolved in twenty parts of [illegible] mixed in a mortar with a little water. This ordinary carmine, finely pulverized, is stirred in, and the whole mass obtained is poured out and dried on blotting paper. The powder thus obtained is used just the same as common starch, but applied to the fabric. When the latter is dry it is [illegible] ironed with a heated iron. By means of other coloring materials, mixed as above described, any desired tint may be obtained. We should recommend, however, an experimental lamp [illegible] and strongly deprecate going out in the rain, as we doubt if "fastness" of the dye, and would not be at all surprised to behold the garment shortly assume a rather startling and [illegible] appearance. Example [illegible] here.

A Boston young lady declares that she had not once been kissed by any party by the name of [illegible] was at the time a Harvard student languidly replied, "I remember the circumstance perfectly, but I am not certain about the name."

The chief object of a married man should be his wife, but it is not unfrequently her clothes.

Cheerfulness is not a proof that the mind is at ease, for often "on the midst of laughter the heart is sad."

People who believe the current stories about intelligent dogs will read with pleasure that a lost dog in Norfolk Na. having seen his master's advertisement in one of the local prints promptly went home.

Jim A—, out West, tells a good yarn about a "shell bark lawyer." His client was up on two small charges, "frivolous charges," as shell bark designated them (forging a note of hand and stealing a horse.) On running his eye over the jury he didn't like their looks, so he prepared an affidavit for continuance, stating [illegible] of a principal witness. He read it in a whisper to the prisoner, who shaking his head, said Squire, I can't swear to that dokyment. Why I Kase it haint true. "Old shell" inflated and exploded loud enough to be heard throughout the room. What, forge a note an' steal a horse and can't swear to a lie! Hang such infernal [illegible]. And he immediately left the conscientious one to his fate.

Managing a Husband.

Nellie Davis was the prettiest, best, sweetest little girl in Hillsdale, and when Tom Carter fell head over heels in love with her, nobody blamed him in the least.

And when the parson gave consent, and they went to housekeeping in a cosy bird nest of a little house on the south side of the town, everybody prophesied all sorts of happiness for the pretty bride.

And, truth to tell, Nelly Carter was very happy.

It is a pretty thing to go to house-keeping for the first time, with everything spick and span new and shiny, and if you have some one you love very much for company, it is still pleasanter.

Now Nellie did love that great blubbering Tom Carter with all her might, and there was only one thing to disturb her peace. She was the very pink of tidiness, and Tom the most careless fellow alive.

He kept his person neat and nice—but he kept his personal belonging anything else. In vain did Nellie braid a handsome merino case, and tack it inside the closet door for Tom to put his slippers in. Tom would insist in tossing them under the parlor sofa, "to have them handy." In vain did she gently suggest that the rack in the hall was the place for his overcoat; wet or dry, he would lay it on her pretty, smoothly made bed, and drop his hat anywhere.

In vain did Nellie make a place for everything, for Tom invariably tossed everything in some other place. Now Mrs. Nellie was only human, and Tom's ways annoyed her exceedingly. She resolved not to spoil the peace of her cozy home by scolding, but how to cure him she could not tell.

She bore with him with the patience of an angel, till one morning, when he had gone up town she went into the parlor, broom in hand, and there lay Tom's big shawl right across the centre table, ruthlessly crushing beneath it the trifles that lay on the marble top.

"Now, I can't have this, and I won't," said she, as she raised the shawl from the delicate treasure, and discovered the ruins of a fabrole Bohemian vase.

"I don't know what to do, but this I won't have," she continued, with a little bit of [illegible] which every good wife must have if she expects to get along at all with that occasionally unreasonable animal, man.

"Some way must be discovered to cure Tom of such performances as this, went on Mrs. Nellie, and she removed the ruins from the vase, and all the morning she went around at her work with scarlet lips closely compressed, with a little flash in her brown eyes which argued well for Mr. Tom's domestic subjugation.

Woman's wit, having a will, seldom fails to find a way. And when a determined little woman says "I must and shall," masculine insubordination might as well surrender at once.

Before Mrs. Nellie had closed her bright eyes that night, she had arranged plans for that campaign against her liege lord, who slept the sleep of innocence at her side.

But she meant to give him one more chance. So, after breakfast, when Tom drew on his boots, and gave his slippers the usual toss under the sofa, she gently said:

"Tom dear, hadn't you better put your slippers in the case?"

"No—but 'tis cheap; they'll be handy to-night."

"But Tom, dear, don't go so early?"

"Why, no they don't. A thing looks as well in one place as another. What's the use of a closet for, I should like to know, if we don't keep things where we want to?"

"Why then you confess a reason as to why the slippers should be in the case, Tom dear," said Nellie, without the least pang of temper.

"Don't I, eh? Just let 'em go. I'll bet I can find 'em when I want 'em," said Tom, as he gave her a kiss and left the house.

And at the supper the door closed on Tom, and his boots were the same [illegible] they had worn yesterday.

"What is it, Nellie?" said Tom, with a look of surprise, as he saw Nellie [illegible] Tom's big slippers.

"Oh, nothing much, only I thought I'd put your slippers in the case, as you wished me to."

"Well, I'll be [illegible] Tom, and he looked at Nellie, who looked at the slippers, and then at Tom, and then they both laughed, and Tom never left his slippers around after that.

Lacrosse.

There will be a Lacrosse Match this afternoon in the Cricket Ground, between the Independent's of Millbrook and the Young Canadian's of this Town.

Our Champions of the "Willow."

On Monday last a Cricket Match was played here between the Lakefield Club and the Maple Leaf of this Town. The play on both sides was good, and a large number of people assembled on the ground, showing that a lively interest was taken in the result of the match. The Captain of the Maple Leaf winning the toss, sent the Lakefield Club to the bat, they by good play making a score of 50. They were then followed by the Maple Leaf who made a score of 66. After partaking of a lunch which was provided on the ground, Lakefield again went to the bat, but only succeeded in making a score of 30 against the excellent bowling and fielding of the Maple Leaf. This left a score of 23 to win which was made before the first three wickets fell, Maple Leaf beating by 8 wickets and 1 run. The success that has followed the play of this Club for the last year or more is worthy of note, and we hope it will continue so. While such "crack" clubs as Port Hope and Whitby remain, there is work for them to do, and more laurels to win.

Penny Bathtub

Of St. Thomas who lately shot a rough who attempted to enter her father's house in the middle of the night for vile purposes, has been tried and honorably acquitted. He had two associates at the time, and it is almost a pity they did not get some remembrancer of their vile conduct.

A Woman Shot in Lindsay on Saturday Morning.

A man named Nesbitt, a carpenter, shot a woman named Hopwood, on Saturday morning. The woman was married about 21 years ago to a cousin of her own and of the same name. Lately she has not been living with her husband, and Nesbitt was keeping her company, and was desirous that she should marry him, but for some cause she lately refused to do so. In the absence of her brother, Nesbitt went to her on Saturday and asked her if she would go with him, and on her refusing he shot her twice through the heart. He is committed to stand his trial. The unfortunate woman is about 37 years of age. The man who committed the crime is a native of the Township of Cavan, and is about the same age; he has a wife and child in Millbrook—or near it.

Armed Raft.

The officers of our Battalion have received offers from the Cobourg, Port Hope and Bowmanville Battalion's with the different Cavalry Companies, to come here to perform their annual drill in camp. We understand that the 57th are desirous of having the camp here, but the difficulty in raising the necessary funds prevents them accepting the proposition. The funds required would be about $600 and we think the town should raise that sum and have the camp here. If some of the citizens will take hold we have no fear but the funds will be forth coming at once.

Examination of Teachers.

The examination of Teachers is now going on in the Union School building. Examiners—Mr. Brown and Messrs. Moore, Armstrong and Stratton. There are 24 candidates, 8 males and 16 females, and only one applicant for a second class provincial certificate.

Test Appointment.

Mr. Clarkson without influence at Ottawa. Mr. Dormer all powerful. Mr. Thos Belcher has received the appointment of messenger to Mr. Rannie. Mr. Clarkson might as well have acted like a man, and if his candidate has not succeeded it is merely because Mr. C. was so slippery in his conduct that even his friends now despise him. Mr. Belcher will make a good officer, we believe. It is not the appointment, nor the candidates we wish to refer to, but to the vacillating conduct of the pseudo M.P. who sought to act by deputy because he could not trust his own judgment.

Bank Stock.

Our readers are aware that the Assessors of this Town placed considerable Bank Stock on the Assessment Roll. The owners appealed to the Judge against the assessment as fixed by the Court of Revision, and the Judge after consideration made it known that he was likely to decide against taxing the "stock." In the meantime it is found that the Judges of the Superior Courts are against the opinion of our County Judge, and a process in Law has been served on him to give reasons for his decision when delivered. He has the Assessment Roll, and now that the Council has gone so far, he professes to be about to take his own time to deliver his decision and to give up the Assessment Roll, so that virtually, at present our Town Clerk has no Assessment Roll, it is in the sole keeping of the County Judge. The question of the constitutional powers of the Local Legislature about Bank Stock is now likely to be discussed by the Judges at Toronto, as, if our County Judge makes this one plea for his judgement, as we are informed he intends to do, the matter will go before the Judges and be argued and settled.

POLITICS IN EVERYTHING!

This is the standing order of the day. In any one seeking a day's work, the first question is: Are you a Conservative? if not, will you be? Are you seeking election as a Councillor, you must be a Conservative; are you tendering for the construction of a bridge or ten yards of causeway, the question is, are you Conservative? This is in Parliaments, in Councils, in petty offices—it is getting into the Churches, we fear; and in the reasonings of demagogues—a candidate for Heaven must be a Conservative. So we believe Mr. Thos. Stevenson of Omemee, and David Marshall of Port Hope would say. We have heard of a celebrated character in history dying, and getting into Heaven, if the story be true, and shortly after a contemporary in the church died also, and sought admission, but learning on enquiry from Peter that his enemy had entered previously he avoided his dangerous neighbourhood, and went to the other place. Now, we have no doubt that they had not agreed on earth, and could not agree even in paradise.

"Self" Omemee, Mr. Tom Stevenson's or Mr. David Marshall's? The former a contractor from Omemee, who has the impudence to come here to lecture the Orangemen of this County on politics, while he, no doubt, has still the orange and green ribbons in his pocket that he used last election while electioneering for James Dormer, wing the orange ribbon before orangemen, and the green while he canvassed his "weaker brother, the Roman Catholic." We can respect the man who boldly and honestly admits the right of every elector to support and vote for a candidate because of his principles, not because of his creed, but we despise, as all men should, the creature, whose conceptions are so narrow as to insinuate that a Catholic who is a Reformer is not as worthy of support as a Conservative one, and that a Grit Orangemen is not as good as he, as was insinuated by Mr. Dav. Marshall.

We are free to admit that the atmospheres of an underground saloon is not a place where liberal views and lofty sentiments are likely to be inspired, therefore no one need be astonished that Mr. Marshall should enunciate the views held by loafers and whiskey-soaked demagogues Looking forward to a nook in the Custom House as the reward of their vituperation and slanders.

But that Mr. Smart should act the part he did, was not expected. Mr. Marshall spent half an hour abusing the grits and grit Orangemen, and then Robert Smart acted shamefully, being so noisy that a reply could not be made. Yet these men are the champions of equal rights! and freedom of speech! and toleration! ¡Not unaccustomed to address some of the unfortunate creatures who are foolish enough to visit the dens of demoralization and the lowest groceries of the back streets and alleys of Port Hope, they have the impudence to become the touts of political renegades, whom the Dominion is ready to spew out of it, and on the 12th of July degrade the Order by turning the celebration into a political meeting for the basest partisan purposes.

The Council adjourned.

WOLVES IN SHEEPS CLOTHING.

There are persons in every county whose aim is mischief. Intermeddlers, who are dead to the disgrace they are under to the society, as well as to the individual members thereof. Yet these men put on all the appearances of fraternal sympathy, while they are bent on their own aggrandisement at the expense of the society to which they ally themselves. Such men are the deadly enemies of whatever they engage in, as their sole aim is to use their position for their own advancement, not caring what evil they bring upon those with whom they may associate.

This has been verified, and is day by day exemplified in the Orange association. Men have crept into the order who disregard the commonest moral obligations; who are bound by no fraternal association, and who are seeking only their own aggrandisement regardless of the consequences to the Orange association.

All men who desire the welfare of the association are aware that they can only make it useful by making it united. There can be no union if sources of discord are introduced and promoted. It is wise, therefore, to remove from it everything on which there are strong and well grounded differences of opinion.

It can only be made respectable by removing the elements of shame and disgrace that discovered in the association. One of these is the name of being influenced by whiskey rather than reason. To do away with this source of evil it must be guarded strongly against those who indulge in it, and against the demagogues who use it to degrade their brethren and to render the name of Orangemen a taunt rather than an honor, while they are merely seeking their own sordid gain.

It is well known that Orangemen are divided in their political opinions, and it is reasonable to expect that they will remain so. And as every man in the Order has an inalienable right to investigate for himself, and to act according to his best judgment; dictation is foreign to the order, and as hateful to Orangeman as it would be to any other set of men. Is it not wisest and best, therefore, to allow no interference with individual rights, and to set the face of every member against the introduction of subjects that must produce contention where only harmony should exist? Every member of the order, therefore, who attempts the introduction of political subjects into the gatherings of Orangemen is only sowing the seed of the dissolution of the association, and the seed will ripen in quick time. What sane man will allow his son or associate to join an order that, under the pretence of making Orangemen, is seeking the cloak of secrecy to make Tories? as must be the case if Orangemen, to be consistent, must be Conservative, as is foolishly and ignorantly asserted by some demagogues.

Orangemen are not the only defenders of the liberties and rights claimed as wrested from the church and state in the past. There are many thousands of noble and brave men who have never joined the order, yet who would as readily and as devotedly contend for those rights even to the death; those men, although not in the order, have the same love of liberty, justice and equal rights that Orangemen have, and are not to be despised because they are not Orangemen, perhaps not Conservatives. To be true Orangemen there must be sincere love of the brotherhood, fear of God, and just respect for the powers that be. Does he love his brother who is engaged in destroying him morally, socially and religiously by undermining his judgment and dethroning his reason? Does he fear God who sets at nought his precepts and engages in a business diametrically opposed to virtue and honor and to the most sacred obligations? Can he be a true Orangeman who, while he shouts loyalty, is undermining law and order and filling the courts of justice with criminals, very often members of the brotherhood to whom he is sworn to do no harm, or know it to be done, without preventing it, if in his power? And yet of such a class are the men, too often, who work themselves into the order, and under the guise of brotherhood slay their thousand and perhaps tens of thousands, and still claim to be Orangemen, par excellence. As well might Satan claim to be a saint and seek church membership! They are wolves in sheeps' clothing, and should be avoided as the upas, the atmosphere around which is contaminated and destroys.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—I beg to offer through your columns a few remarks in addition to those in my former letter.

The Editor of the Times in his last issue accused me of putting in my "ill-judged haste" words into his mouth which he never made use of. I beg to state that I never attempted to put words into his mouth; my object was to put some ideas into his brain, and to remove others which, although erroneous, seem to be pretty firmly rooted there. If I had intended to use his exact words I should have indicated the quotations in the usual manner. It matters not for my arguments whether he used the identical words, "a higher education is of no practical value" or not. My arguments went to prove that instead of needing more attention paid to the common school education we needed a higher standing in the more advanced branches.

The Editor says my letter "merely goes to show that the higher branches of education are frequently of practical value." My letter did not go to show anything of the kind. I must again quote the extract I took from Mr. Mill, viz:—"A thing not yet so well understood and recognized is the economical value of the diffusion of intelligence among the people. The number of persons fitted to direct and superintend any industrial enterprise, or even to execute any process which cannot be reduced to an affair of memory and routine is large far short of the demand." Is the same value attached to show that the study of the higher branches of education was the only method of acquiring increased intelligence. Mechanics are found for routine work; but for intellectual work, something more is needed a common ground of knowledge, intellect by higher education than we have at present. The Editor says "it would be well for the parents of intelligent men who attend the school to consider how little practical use the classical studies of the children's education will be if the children are deficient in the practical and useful branches of education, reading, writing and arithmetic." I repeat that the parents generally were ignorant of their children's and other community of a higher education. Consequently it is evident "it would be well if the parents could be induced to find the necessity of a higher education for them." The "all" who has to do with the matter is the Editor of the Times, and he must be no ordinary man in knowledge if he can tell with a definite certainty what branches of education, reading and arithmetic will find himself at a good disadvantage, and will have to go to the wall while his more practically educated boy goes out of the highest order will be in the best position to fight the battle of life." I have brought authorities to prove and I think none will deny the assertion that in which the mechanical occupations of carrying or keeping accounts a money per-centage are required all accounts with a knowledge of arithmetic.

With regard to reading, writing and arithmetic, I would merely remark that it would be difficult to imagine a boy capable of reading Greek, Latin, French and German who was not to be able to read English in the ordinary acceptation of the term. If, however, he means that attention should be paid to the elegancies of reading and to rhetorical action he is treading on the bounds of higher education.

Moreover, the Editor seems to forget that a boy who has studied algebra and the higher branches of mathematics is necessarily a much more thorough master of arithmetic than one who has not. In fact many processes in arithmetic are the results of algebraic investigation and have properly no place in arithmetics. Further the number of persons required to write a good hand is comparatively small, and the number that can do so is in excess of the demand, as is evident from the fact that the salaries of clerks in banks or any writing clerks or book-keepers are very small compared with those for positions requiring intellectual skill.—It is an undeniable fact that the most eminent men write as a rule very illegible hands. The case is first reduced itself to this, that there are two money possessed of only a good common education, and not a sufficient number who have received a higher education. We don't care whether they write copper-plate or not, they will by practice soon get into a rapid hand which is in most instances more desirable. They must be good arithmeticians if they are good algebraists. They will likely be able to find english if they can read classics. I would further like to see in the next issue of the Times the list of the subjects the editor includes under "mathematics." He speaks of "Classics, Mathematics, Algebra, &c.," and again suggests that a thorough drill in arithmetic is preferable to the study of these. I should be inclined to class algebra and arithmetic both under the head of mathematics.

I would add that the governments have shown their superior understanding in encouraging higher education, for there is yet this mistake. The attempt is made to give a Common School education first, whereas, the true method is to study the inflected languages first and then the aptotic which have sprung from these. Lastly the inefficient masters are often engaged for the lower departments instead of giving them, if anything, the preference in order that the ground work may not be defective.

I earnestly hope that there will never be another instance of the press claiming in with the vulgar opinion and proposing to curtail higher education. Rather let it be a beacon—a shining light to warn the uneducated, to direct their course from the rocks on which the ship of state is so often in danger of being wrecked.

In closing I would say to the Times,

"Perditur ecsupa Portum" for "Nonne vides, ut
Nudum remigio latus!

Yours, &c.,

MUSIS AMICUS.

THE RAILWAY SCANDAL.

Now that the dust raised by the Ministerial press, since the publication of Sir Hugh Allan's letters, in order to conceal the facts of the case, has, to some extent, cleared away, there will be little difficulty in showing that the Huntington charges have been virtually substantiated by the evidence for the defence. These charges were, in effect, that an understanding existed between the Government and Sir Hugh Allan that he should get the Pacific Railway charter for himself and friends, as a consideration for certain services and money expenditures during the last general election, the amount so spent by Sir Hugh being somewhere in the neighborhood of some hundred thousand dollars.

Well then, in the first place, with regard the amount. The letters published have established that at between three hundred and three hundred and sixty odd dollars. And, secondly, in regard to the spending of it, Sir Hugh says, in his affidavit, that the money was spent partly in advancing the interests of two railroads, aided by a large number of constituencies whose votes were needed; and partly in securing election of members friendly to himself and the Canadian Pacific Railway. He was manifestly advancing "a large sum of money for the purpose of aiding the election of ministers and their supporters," as charged by Mr. Huntington; for were not two of the parties who carried the Pacific Railway bill through the House, viz, Messrs. Cartier and Allan and his friends the control of it? It is not to be supposed that the arrangement understanding, with the Government was entered into with all the formalities of a lease or a conveyance of real estate. John A. Macdonald is too astute a lawyer and too old and artful a political dodger to be caught in that way. That shrewd schemer may not have gone the length of telling his brave Knight that there must be no such understanding or agreement; but then if was understood, and existed all the same; the money was paid by Allan and his friends, and they got the charter as their reward.

A celebrated professor once advised his students not to put an intellectual obstacle to him under the pump, for that individual got an involuntary bath as the result of that advice. If the Hungarian of these days had made a charge against that professor of advising his students to commit the contempt, that learned gentleman could have flatly denied the imputation and produced an affidavit by the students to prove that he advised them to do exactly the opposite of what they did.

And so the minions of power may fret and foam, and resort to all dust and smoke possible; but the evidence of their own witness is dead against them and none, except the wilfully blind, fail to see it. But we must caution our readers that Sir Hugh's affidavit is not to be taken on the witness stand, as our Ministerial friends fondly assume it to be. In that court he was under no obligation to tell more than he chose to tell; on the witness stand he will have to answer the questions put to him, however inconvenient the answers may prove to his political friends and fellow conspirators.

The 12th of July.

The Anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne was celebrated this year in this Town with considerable display. The brethren from Cobourg, Port Hope, Hope, Cavan, Lindsay, Emily and Bobcaygeon, a meeting with the Peterboro Orangemen on the occasion.

The lodges from Lakefield, some from Emily, Smithgreen, Norwood and Otonabee assembled about ten o'clock and marched through the principal streets to Ashburnham, and then to the train to meet those from a distance.

About 12 o'clock one train arrived from Lindsay, with 9 cars well filled with visitors, and shortly after the train from Port Hope brought the lodges from Cobourg, Port Hope, Hope and Cavan, in 16 cars. A procession was formed at the station amid immense numbers of citizens, there being at least 6,000 strangers in town on that day, and led by Bro. J. B. McWilliams, County Master of Peterboro, they paraded the principal streets, proceeding along Charlotte to George street, thence to London, west to Water street, from Water along Simcoe to Bridge street, to Rubidge street, along which they proceeded to Water again to the Court House Square, where they dispersed for dinner.

It was the largest procession ever witnessed in this section of the Country and one of the largest, perhaps, that hasbeen in Canada.

The following is the order of procession.

County Marshal.
Grand Marshals.
Peter Hope Band.
Port Hope Grafton Young Britons.
Port Hope Britons.

After refreshments the Brethren assembled in the Court House Square, wherea stand had been erected, to listen to addresses. Speaking commenced about half-past four, and lasted till about half past five, but in this time several lodges left, as they had to return by carriages 15 to 20 miles.

The County Master opened the afternoon's proceedings by expressing his great pleasure at seeing such a vast assemblage of Orangemen from the County and surrounding Counties, present, to do honor to the day and to the memory of one whom Orangemen felt bound to remember with honor and gratitude. He felt that it would be out of the way for him to detain them, as the array of Rev. Gentlemen and Brethren who were to address them would do so with more eloquence and effect. He then introduced to them—

Rev. Mr. Godfrey of Bobcaygeon, who congratulated them on the grandeur of the occasion, and the prospects of the order. Orangemen he represented as the stay and support of religion and liberty and opposed to the encroachment of Catholicism, and as such, he advised them to keep to their order, and to their processions. He concluded by expressing his pleasure to see them all so pleased and happy looking themselves.

The Rev. W. C. Scott of Lakefield being called on, expressed his pleasure at being again at home among his brethren, in this County. He had been in Lower Canada and there had studied Roman Catholicism and he felt that it was still the same as in the past, requiring to be watched. As true men, the members of the order must, however, not, remember the blessings and liberal thoughts their enemy was seeking to establish in America, a city stronger than the one on "the Seven Hills." Let them be true to themselves, their protestantism and their God, and God would bless them.

P. Pearce, Esq., of Belmont next addressed them, expressing himself delighted with the large numbers. It was not, he said, the first time he had addressed the Orange body, but he believed it was the first time he had done so as one of themselves. When addressing the body before, he felt the inconvenience of not being one of them, and he had therefore determined to be one, and he was proud to be one, if for no other purpose than to show his side and colors.

The Rev. D. Smith, N.C., succeeded Mr. Pearce. He remarked that he had merely dropped down amongst them and therefore did not intend to make a speech but merely a few remarks. The celebration of the day brought to their remembrance the deeds of the past, and that from which they had been delivered by the victory at the Boyne. He believed that that system was not changed, it was the same still, although they had aside the screws and rack, it was only an changed exterior, as he felt constrained believe that if it had the power it would be as bad as ever, it was opposed to religious and civil liberty, and no one need doubt its willingness and readiness to bite, if even she teeth were lost. It was said there was no need for Orangeism in Canada, this was only one way of seducing them aside from duty. The Orangemen had been fruitful of good in Ireland, and why should they not in Canada, and he would advise the nourishing and cherishing of it here, as it had been the means of their protection in their own land.

Rev. Mr. Clark of Lakefield being called on, was also pleased to be present, not with the intention of making a speech, but to witness the procession and join in the celebration. He reviewed the history of Orangeism from the time of William's being asked to assume the Kingdom to the defeat of James, how the people met and received him gladly because of the oppression that hung over them under James, and the result was the overthrow of that power and influence that blighted the nation hitherto. He feared it was not changed for he had just read of Father Chiniquy having been stoned for speaking in one of the Churches of Canada. He feared if they had the power they would go back to the same state as existed before the victory now being celebrated, and they were called on to remember those things they had gained as protestants, as christains, and respect their liberties while they were ready to maintain them.

Mr. Stevenson of Omemee followed Mr. Clark. He said there was no need of him saying anything as there were so many ministers present. There were always a number of ministers on the platforms to speak, but he thought if they were as ready at other times to do their part, the Green would not hold the half of those who would be in it to celebrate the day. If they were so proud to be present, why had they not on their colors? Why had they not badges? As Orangemen had given them the right to preach and speak and teach. He then rushed foolishly into politics, abused the Ontario Government and called on all Orangemen to be Conservatives, to prepare for the battle, for their rights were in danger as their religious liberty had been refused them. After making a fool of himself in this way, he sat down, merely referring to his grand feat in Peterboro some years since on the 17th of March.

The Rev. Mr. Hooper, B. C. was next called on and made a very sensible speech. When asked to speak, he had thought his being without a badge might appear out of place, but perhaps might be admissible in him. It is true he was not an Orangeman, but it did not require to be an Orangeman to be a protestant. The principles of the Order he believed to be sound, founded on eternal truth, and the rights of man, founded on civil and religious liberty, and hence must abide. It might be that many of them had steadfast catholicism in close proximity to it; he, on Hindostanee, had not been so close but he had learned to dislike it from the logic of facts everywhere. The more clear logic of cause and fact, had, perhaps, led him to [illegible] and hence he would [illegible] the Orangemen, and also of the Order, and should they succeed in getting such an organization would sometimes prove, as it had in Newfoundland, that Roman Catholics and Protestants could live together in religious unions, but was on their sides, fully grant that, should be independence—freedom! Not freedom in name, but as an essential principle, so that whether in church or as holiday meets, with whatever they came in affiliation, their views, their principles, their conduct should be freedom, to the exclusion of judgement and action in all manner. Then they would be a blessing. He was pleased to see the young blood enlisted in the Order, for this showed their determination to maintain a bold front. Catholicism he believed to be only the same, and it required them to be ready to defend their position to be loyal to their country, to maintain as Orangemen the principles of the Order, to feed and rule which [illegible] and these manner have it, for 16 years he had watched their actions and never had he seen them under the excitement even of such a day as this, do wrong, and this character they should maintain.

Rev. Bro. Davis of Emily then addressed the assemblage, but like Mr. Stevenson, he was in politics—the politics of England and Canada—the Disestablishment of the Irish Church does not yet permit him to slumber in peace. He admitted the Catholic character of his Church, but although Catholic, it was opposed to Catholicism, and was protestant He concluded by advising moderation towards their erring brethren the Roman Catholics.

Mr. W. H. Scott addressed the people next, his theme was British Connexion, insinuating that some Orangemen desired something else. He pointed out the dangers of annexation and talked of a

THE COMMON COUNCIL.

The Council met this day two weeks since Monday, but business pressing of the Report of the Committee on Finance, very little was then done. Not so, however, with regard to talking, there has been enough of that. The greater part of Wednesday was taken up in listening to Mr. M. C. Cameron in reference to the Victoria Railway. His arguments, however, demonstrated that he had no good grounds for urging the submitting of a By-law as petitioned for. We may refer to these arguments at another time.

Thursday was taken up in a regular debate, offensive and defensive, in which Messrs. S. S. Peck and F. Peters took a large part, but ended as it commenced—no effect. We will give a full report next week.

A Report of the Committee on the Building of the Registry Office was received, and after discussion, Mr. Peck moved to pay Mr. Croly, the contractor, $600 extra for losses caused by increase of labor and material. Mr. Collins moved that he be paid $400. Mr. Powell that he be paid $200, and Mr. Choate that he be paid $1. After a long debate as to the method of putting these motions etc., for money, they were put, the highest sum first, when it was found that Mr. Powell's, to pay him $200 above his contract price was carried.

Friday Session lasted till one o'clock. A motion was introduced by Mr. Peck again to give Mr. Croly $200 more, this last, the Warden voting it a "tie" and declaring it lost.

Mr. Peck then sought for an opinion of the Council in reference to granting aid in any way to a Railway to the North, when on motion of Mr. Choate, seconded by Mr. Peters—A motion pledging the municipality to aid to the north, was agreed to, provided the Road proceeded from the County Town, i.e. Peterboro.

Some By-laws were then passed and the Council adjourned.

We will give a full report next week.

ROAD AND BRIDGE COMMITTEE.

This Committee reported somewhat as follows:

They did not recommend the application of John Reid for leave to occupy, temporarily, a portion of the boundary line between Otonabee and Douro.

They referred the application of G. W. Pendash to the Council of Otonabee.

They recommended the payment of $108.07 to Mr. John Boyd, one half of cost of repairing the bridge over Dixon's Creek.

They stated that the cost of repairing the Bridges on Bobcaygeon Road by Mr. Hartley was $60.90.

They recommended the adoption of the Report of the County Engineer, and to be printed with minutes.

The Report recommended referring the petition of S. R. Price to the Councils of Douro and Otonabee.

No action was recommended in reference to the application of Mr. Burnett for assistance in reconstruction of the Monaghan Bridge.

They recommended the grant of $125 to meet the Government Grant on the Bobcaygeon Road, and $150 for the same purpose on the Burleigh Road.

They recommended Messrs. Millar, Calcutt and Collins as a Committee on the Locks Bridge to act with a Committee from the Town.

The also recommended Messrs. Millar, Wilkins and J. P. Brown as a Committee to repair the Mud Lake Bridge and Locks.

Gone up.

The Farm of Mr. Donald Gillander, of South Monaghan, was sold last week for $75 an acre, cash. Mr. Gillander is removing to British Columbia to settle; he has visited the country and likes it so well he is going to settle in it. Mr. G. will prove a worthy citizen of that distant province.

Distant View.

Mr. Sproule, Artist, has taken some views on Stoney Lake, and also in the neighborhood of the Town that are really fine, and deservedly praised. We understand that a great number of them have been ordered by parties at a distance who admired their beauty. He has purchased type lenses of the best makers, and is prepared to furnish and take stereoscopic views of all places of interest and picturesque scenery in the locality.

—From the Irish Canadian.

In the letter of instructions issued after the assistance of the electors, Sir Hugh Allan to Mr. Rose, it was stated that he was prepared to advance $2,500,000 in gold, which will clean everything off. Such the Allan made terms and such by the Hugh between the 7th of August and 10th of September, and at the period, be it remembered, all Sir Hugh's parliamentary officers on the spot, Messrs. Abbott, Ross, Macdonald, Langevin, Cartier, Irvine, Archambault, Brousseau, Beaubien, Loranger, Archambeault, Irvine, Archambault, Brousseau, Beaubien, Loranger, Archambeault, forming commissioners to influence Carter's 45 followers &c., were at an end slaughtered, and put at their ease. The 7th of August, Sir Hugh knew that the election would cost him $256,000 more than he anticipated at that time. Sir Hugh is too shrewd a man to make terms with his own contractors with nothing to back upon; the large discretionary funds he could only be paid by getting hold of the treasury chest, and at 10 had lost so much upon the 7th August, it would never do to close the purse strings over an odd fifty or sixty thousand dollars more. Sir Hugh was the private banker of the Dominion Government during the elections of 1872. They drew upon him to the amount of $350,000 to insure the election of their friends, and remembered that the Canadian Pacific Railway was sold to Sir Hugh Allan and his American associates.

Can anything equal the infamy of the purchase? Sir John A. Macdonald and his Cabinet went to political extremities. Their backs gone, on their words, would have resigned them to an infamous obscurity, but their political depravity suggests a remedy for their moribund power—and a champion is found in the person of Sir Hugh Allan—the Yankee-knight-Canadian—who, in his haste to become a plutocratic Croesus, would not hesitate to trample upon Canada, and to retard her, in her race for empire and greatness, one hundred years at least to fill his own pocket. Sir John A. Macdonald, who would sell the property of his country to strangers for a paltry consideration—the Empire Minister to power a few years longer—and to corrupt the entire public morality. Shame—shame—shame—let groups—in death. Sir John's crimes and corruptions can never be attoned for, for a nation is not like an individual. Canada is suffering because a political debauchee is wielding HUGH her, and a nation is to be made what to corrupt politician is destroying her with his political intemperance. If a corporation is not soon handed in the country should not be satisfied with anything less than an indictment. The effects of an intoxicated [illegible] never save the reputation of Sir John Macdonald—he must make up his mind to the cruel necessity of abdicating his position—or of being impeached for high crimes and misdemeanors against the country. Canada by all means before Sir John. His condemnation is a foregone conclusion. His effacement should be demanded in unmistakable terms.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL. Worth Ten Times its Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have attained the unqualified confidence of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six oils—one of the best. Oils that will heal, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power—extraordinary effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. This is the separation, of old Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop, whether with other appropriations nearly all the virtues is lost in that way and you get only the smell of Oils which they may prescribe.

LEISURE HOUR MUSINGS.

Mr. A. Graham, Otonabee, a gentleman who is well known as a writer of verses and who has employed his leisure hours in this way, has been induced by his friends to publish his musings in the form of a book, intended to be sold by subscription for himself, and which no doubt will find a ready sale among the many people of the County who know him.

The book will contain about 300 pieces on different subjects, all of a religious tendency and calculated to produce a moral effect. The following has been selected as a specimen:

CITY MISERY.

Could we peep into garrets and low cells
We there would see fruits of the "ustlis."
Where punishment for crime is fully wrung
Out in full measure, both on old and young.
Hunger and cold, these objects make there,
And in their souls, feel naught but dark despair.
Sin has brought misery, and the deepest woe,
That would appal the stoutest heart to know,
In places such the new born babe is found,
With its poor mother, fleeing upon the ground
Without a morsel, there nourishment to give:
In thought we wander into such creatures lieu,
Where many there's die, but without the tender tears
They by friends mingled in their hearty tears,
And there start shivering in a cold dark nook,
Without the comforts of the Holy Book:
And many being there better days have seen,
Misfortune and their degradation been.
What Christian heart can know such is the case
And not feel pity for the wretched race?
Feel in their hearts inclined to aid and plan,
Some method to remove suffering fellow men?
Which misery quite remove the vile and prize,
One half would fully meet their suffering state.
Would feed and clothe the needy every one,
And God would bless them for the good thus done.
What Scotland's Bard said, "Fully meet the prize,
The one half duth it, spent-st and dost."

PAIN KILLER

...SALVE
...PORTLAND, ME.

HERE you have a salve combining soothing and healing properties, with an almost...ness required. A remedy at hand for the many pains and aches, wounds and bruises to which flesh is heir. In many cases applied there is...relief, and always relieving pain, however severe.

It is prepared by Miss Sawyer, who has used it in her own extensive treatment of the sick, for nearly twenty years, with great success.

The principal diseases for which this salve is recommended are, Chilblains, Rheumatism, Sprains, Sprains, Old Sores, Salt Rheum, Sprains, Bruises, Sore Throat, Piles, Pimples, Ringworms, Sore Eyes, Burns, Scalds, Chilblains, Sore Breasts, Corns, Bites of Insects, Cancers, Chilblains, Sore Ears, Sore Nipples, Boils, Sore Breasts, Sore Heads, Scald Head, Felons, Scrofula Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Cramp, Cracked Lips, and Sores on Children.

It never fails to cure Rheumatism if properly applied. Rub it on well with the hand three times a day. In several cases it has cured palsied limbs. For Piles it has been discovered to be a sure remedy. Persons that have been afflicted for years have been relieved by a few applications. For Erysipelas it works wonders, allaying the inflammation and quieting the patient. For Chapped Hands it produces a cure immediately. Let those with Salt Rheum obtain this salve and apply it freely, and they will find it invaluable. It is found in cases of Scrofula and Tumors. Cancers have been cured with it. The best Salve ever invented for Scalds, Burns and Sore Nipples. No wet application, but sure to afford relief. Sore or Weak Eyes will rub it on the lids gently, once or twice a day. Cures dullness by putting in the eye as a piece of cotton. For Felons this is superior to anything known. For Pimples take agie like a charm. For Burns and Scalds, apply the Salve at once and it gives immediate relief. For Old Sores, apply once a day.

Not among the least of the invaluable properties of Miss SAWYER'S SALVE are its...to...on the hair. Rubbed on the scalp, in five or six different parts, it promotes the growth of the hair, prevents it turning gray, and will heal where it...causes a new growth of hair. No lady should be without this invaluable article as an indispensable...cosmetic for the toilet. It eradicates dandruff...disease from the head, and blotches and...from the face.

From Mrs. ELIZABETH COOMBS, E...

Bremen st., April 4...

MISS SAWYER: I received your letter yesterday, and was very glad you succeeded so well as to take your leave. I think it may be worth while for it will be quite an accommodation to my husband, as he cannot get along without it. He has tried everything else and has never found anything that healed his leg as that salve of yours did, and we have both found it to be all, and even more than you recommend it to be. We have had it by us for...five or six years, and have used it...and can truly say we have never found anything like it for a great heal, and it never...Mr. Coombs has had a sore leg for...thirty years, and would be a cripple to this day had not found a remedy in your Salve. It...it healed, and takes out the...from the...flesh and swelling, and does for him all...ask. I can recommend it for a...that you have not, for I use it for everything...remember it invaluable in a family. If you can...this testimony together, and it can be of any service to you, you are welcome.

Yours, &c., ELIZABETH COOMBS.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

If your Druggist is out of the Salve, and refuses to procure it for you, do not be put off, but send to the proprietors, enclosing the price, and receive a box by return mail.

Put up in Large Boxes at 50 cents each, (nearly three times as large as the...shown above). Prepared by MISS SAWYER, and put up by L. M. ROBBINS, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Rockland, Me. A Trial Box sent free by mail on receipt of fifty cents, by L. M. ROBBINS, Rockland, Me.

THIS VALUABLE SALVE IS SOLD BY ALL DEALERS IN MEDICINES.

For sale by Dr. Taylor, and Messrs Orm ond & Walsh, Peterborough.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections need disorders, which were supposed to be the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, the human and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. A pale, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, Sore Nose, and other scrofulous or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia; and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Hemorrhage, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. In Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great reformer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the kindred symptoms of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, and none ever any before so universally acceptable as this, in every country and among every class, for this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a sure remedy for those many derangements which require only the occasional use of a cathartic to restore health. Every one knows when he needs such a medicine, and the dose required. These Pills are sugar-coated, so that the most sensitive can take them pleasantly, and they are the best aperient in the world for children. As they operate, they remove the foul humors which cause disease. A cold, fever, headache, or pain of any kind, is relieved by taking them, according to directions. They are an excellent dinner pill. Take one to stimulate the digestive organs and relieve a weak stomach. As a mild physic, they are the best thing known for Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Dropsy, Worms, Gout, Erysipelas, Scrofula, Ulcers, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, Sore Nose, Sore Lips, Cancer, Piles, Female Complaints, Uterine Hemorrhage, Suppression, Retention, Irregularity, Gravel, Stone in the Bladder, Kidney Complaints, Diseases of the Bladder, Urinary Organs, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Lowness of Spirits, Hysterics, Headache, Dizziness, Colic, Cramp, Pain in the Stomach, Sour Stomach, Loss of Appetite, Foul Breath, Worms, Ulcers

THE REASONS WHY
LAZARUS, MORRIS & Co'n
CELEBRATED
Perfected Spectacles,
AND EYE GLASSES,
have come with such extraordinary success, and now so much in demand:
1st. Because they are found to possess all the qualities claimed for them.
2nd. Because they will restore lights clouded by the common glasses, and will often be found to restore failing sights to its natural state.
3rd. Because no glimmering or indistinct lights are produced by them—under both indoor or outdoor use, and whether reading or writing, they are particularly adapted to those whose sight is failing from improper selection.
4th. Because the process of fitting is the most simple and sure, upon examination of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—solely our own.
5th. Because we cover the eyes and last many years without the necessity of change.
6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.
Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable value.

"Katy vat Lift on de Blain."

Air—"Flash, the Flower of Dumblane."

Oh! how was your heart when summer primroses do your bosom raise,
Und left de bark alight to cover on us seats,
Vere I shoostidied along, 'mongst de schweeness and de sweets,
To see vonce more Katy vat lift on de blain.

How schweet to de lily, with its proper yellow plumage,
Und so is de meadow, all color'd mit green,
Put see Shingy's so bribby, und chickens so mohs pooty,
Mine schweet little Katy vot lift on de blain.

She's pushed as any, almost like her sweet Chinny,
She's nother high horse, nor yet vorkish or vain,
Und both a great fifties, against any vuffer
Dat would hurt mine schweet Katy vot lift on de blain.

Sing on, you schweet bird, mit your song for de night
Bringt schweet Little Katy vot lift on de blain.

Mein boys vas lift nothing still I see Little Katy,
All dings in de vorld seems down into nothing
I vish I vas a gun I vould call "make tear lady,"
Dill I meet Little Katy vot lift on de blain

I don't care how high I might get in de nation,
Vrom all dem high blaces I'd come town again,
Und dink it vas nothing to hef a great station
Ven I couldn't hef Katy vot lift on de blain.

Choice Literature.

The Inviting West.

As no small number of our young men have an unused itching to follow the advice of Horace Greeley, and "go West," we call attention to the annexed paragraph from a Kansas letter in the Cincinnati Commercial, which very clearly shows that the people out there have their troubles as well as we in the East. The same expenditure of muscle and money in our own country would realise more than all the jack-o-lantern prospect of the cold and forbidding West:—

"An enormous crop was raised last year, wheat excepted, and the people are all out of money. Corn is fifteen cents a bushel, oats eighteen cents, potatoes twenty cents, ground crops you cannot sell at any price, and hay can be had at two dollars a ton. Only one branch of produce 'holds up'—cattle—and most of the farmers are holding on like grim death to what few they have, as if the daily sight of them alone prevented them from feeling the pangs of conscious poverty. The low prices of living are simply amazing. Pretty good board can be had at one dollar and fifty cents a week, extra fine at twice that sum. One fourth of the houses in Iola are vacent, and meals at the hotels are but twenty-five cents each."

It is simply impossible for farmers to thrive with produce at such figures, and it is but a question of time between them and the sheriff's seizure of their property.

Advice to Travelers.

Walking brings out the true character of a man. The devil never yet asked his victims to take a walk with him. You will not be long in finding your companion out. All disguises will fall away from him. As his pores open his character is laid bare. His deepest and most private self will come to the top. It matters little whom you ride with, so he be not a pickpocket; for both of you will, very likely, settle down closer and firmer in your reserve, shaken down like a measure of corn by the jostling as the journey proceeds. But walking is a more vital co-partnership; the relation is a more closer and sympathetic one, and you do not feel like walking ten paces with a stranger without speaking to him.

Hence the fastidiousness of the professional walker in choosing or admitting a companion, and hence the truth of a remark of Emerson, that you will generally fare better to take your dog than to invite your neighbor. Your cur-dog is a true pedestrian and your neighbor is very likely a small politician. The dog enters thoroughly into the spirit of the enterprise; he is not indifferent or preoccupied; his is constantly sniffing adventure, lays at every spring, looks upon every field and wood as a new world to be explored, is ever on some fresh trail, knows something important will happen a little further on, gazes with the true wonder-seeing eyes, whatever the spot or whatever the road, finds it good to be there—in short, is just that happy, delicious, excursive vagabond that touches one at so many points, and whose human prototype in a companion robs miles and leagues of half their fatigue.—June Galaxy.

A Woman's Strategy.

Last Sunday evening promenaders on King street, between York and Simcoe, were made the spectators of a "scene." A young gentleman, decked in his very best and evidently conscious that he was making a favorable impression at every step, had been strolling leisurely behind a couple of young ladies and cherishing an irresistable desire to introduce himself. The fair ones stopped at the door of their home and were about to enter when our hero, suddenly resolute, stepped up and "did" speak. This advance being reciprocated graciously by the young ladies, left the young man to think he had made a conquest of at least one heart, for the second latter had excused herself and slipped into the house. What happened within passed on the doorstep of course is not known—certainly they intervened the embarrassment of the lady during the confidence of the hour. Presently, the other lady re-appeared on the step with a peaceful smile and a scrap of paper, which she delivered with smoothering directness in the face of the visitor. There was a "grand transformation scene" on the latter's behalf—a sudden changing of his broad cloth into a blank ing of his "check." He was at once a soldier and a young lady, for not only did he face the powder [illegible]

A reading exercise should be a recreation, a country ride, all work without play soon wins, being indeed only the old story with the rest, "The child be [illegible] to another church.

Finding a Bootjack.

A housekeeper writes the following complaint to the Cleveland Leader:

When the average husband of the period wants to find a bootjack he steps to the battery door, and leaning against the doorway with his hands in his pockets, whistles meditatively as his eyes wander along the upper shelves. When a break in the tune occurs, you may know he has found the cake, which he devours absently, still looking for the bootjack. Being now deprived of that aid to reflection—whistling, he executes a waltz in slow movement, sustained by a large piece of cake in one hand and a nimble pickle in the other. After a while, as the bootjack does not make its appearance, the husband does, at the door of the room where you are getting the baby to sleep, and shouts "Jane," at the top of his voice, under an impression that the mind must have some relaxation and it is time for another set of faculties to come in play. It is time when all should be rested, cheered, yet stimulated, with the right kind of conversation. And, besides, the occasion demands our present attention. We have no right to sit down sullen and morose, and despatch a meal in hot haste when it should be seasoned and made palatable with pleasant converse.

It may be difficult to have much sociability at meals in a boarding-house where foreign elements are brought in contact, yet I have seen one or two persons, possessing tact, introduce subjects of such general interest that all could have a "finger in the pie," and thereby improve its flavor. But in the family there is no excuse for a glum, persistent silence, making the latest table seem the emptiest.

There is a household that I frequently visit, who serve such delightful meals that there is an instinctive disposition to linger at the table; yet I think the steak is not always tenderloin, but always juicy, nor the coffee pure Java, very fragrant, and I have known the butter at some seasons to be touched with age, but it is sweet in memory, and the oysters not the genuine Saddlerock, but very palatable. I may have eaten soggy potatoes, but I don't remember it; and I am sure the gingersnaps have relished like pound-cake, but in the centre of the table always stands the dish of pleasant talk, prepared and served without vinegar, sending forth its appetising odor, and giving a relish to all the other dishes, so we could but eat, linger, enjoy, and become refreshed and rejuvenated. Husbands and wives, cultivate talk at table. Share with your guests even more than your dishes, some part of yourselves. Fathers and mothers, see to it that your meals are not passed in solemn silence. Make them palatable, enjoyable, memorable by pleasant conversation—the society of a dinner is its greatest charm.—Ill. Christian Weekly.

Love and Glue.

The following rare bit is from the Saturday Evening Post:—We shall never forget that evening we spent at Magruder's years ago. We admired Miss Magruder, and we went around to see her. It was summer time and moonlight, and she sat upon the piazza. The carpenter had been there that day glueing up the rustic chairs on the porch, so we took a seat on the step in front of Miss Magruder, where we could gaze into her eyes and drink in her smiles. It seems probable that the carpenter must have upset his gluepot on the spot where we sat, for after enjoying Miss Magruder's remarks for a couple of hours, and drinking several of her smiles, we tried to raise for the purpose of going home, but found that we were immovably fixed to the step. Then Miss Magruder said "Don't be in a hurry," and we told her we believed we wouldn't. The conversation had a sadder tone after that, and we sat there thinking whether it would be better to ask Miss Magruder to withdraw while we disrobed and went home in highland costume, or whether we should give one terrible wrench and then ramble down the yard backward. About midnight Miss Magruder yawned, and said she believed she would go to bed. Then we suddenly asked her if she thought that her father would have any objection to lending us his front steps for a few days, because we wanted to take them home for a pattern. We think Miss Magruder must have entertained doubts of our sanity, for she rushed in, called her father and screamed. Magruder came with a double barreled gun. Then we explained the situation in a whisper, and he procurred a saw and cut out the piece of step to which we were attached. Then we went home wearing the patch, and before two o'clock crushed out our young love for Miss Magruder. We never called again, and she threw herself away on a dry goods man. There is a melancholy satisfaction in recalling these memories of youth, and reflecting upon the influence of glue upon the emotions of the human heart.

Talk at Table.

Nothing gives such a delightful flavor to dinners as pleasant, lively chat at table. The courses may be counted by the first numeral, and the variety of dishes may be small, yet bright, cheery talk is a spice that suits all tastes, and goes a long way towards making the plainest meal a delightful repast. I do not mean heavy, heated argument on abstruse subjects which would render indigestible a well-ordered meal, nor a lecture from one of the two heads of the table which would blunt the appetite and depress the spirits, but light, airy talk—more chat than talk—the kind that plays upon the surface of things without going very deep, interlarded with jokes and smiles and amusing anecdotes.

Dr. Franklin says his father always managed to have some instructive conversation going on between him and the boys at table, engaging their attention so entirely that after the meal was over it was the talk and not the dinner that [illegible]

Solemn silence at the table, broken by the clatter of dishes, the swallow of your elbow friend's coffee mingled with the discomfort [illegible] your own, is enough to [illegible] eating entirely or drive him, by its vulgarity to a [illegible] dinner. The rattle of knives and forks is pleasant music as an accompaniment, but metallic harmony, and monotonous as an orchestral symphony; let the voice be mingled with the [illegible] and ripple of conversation. Even the cat and dog will growl their satisfaction when cracking a particularly sweet and tender bone.

Some people talk [illegible] constant hurry; [illegible] in rushing during meals, but, on the contrary, it is a waste of time. Mixing the two things up is both. You throw away the enjoyment of the occasion, and you miss the educational interest in all that which otherwise would be connected [illegible] with food, if [illegible] is [illegible] of [illegible] I say leader should not be [illegible] of table. The morning paper [illegible] read aloud, if read at all, at both a time. It is [illegible] to monopolize the dish of news so as to [illegible] the whole steak or mackerel on your plate, while your opposite neighbor only gets her hungry face reflected in her china. Conversation should be general, handed round like the bread and butter. Give me the dinner of herbs, served with a side dish of pleasant talk, rather than the fatted stalled ox, eaten in sullen silence. Sudden news, protracted thought, great weariness, anxiety, the indulgence of grief, expectancy, anger, all take away appetite and spoil the enjoyment of a meal. The conversation should be light, animated, instructive, and always on pleasant subjects.

The merchant should leave the sale of his goods to be finished behind the counter; he should shut in the worry and vexation of business with the long column of unbalanced figures in his ledger; the lawyer dismiss the case of his client for the time being, however important the decision he pleads; the banker his stocks. The mind must have some relaxation and it is time for another set of faculties to come in play. It is time when all should be rested, cheered, yet stimulated, with the right kind of conversation. And, besides, the occasion demands our present attention. We have no right to sit down sullen and morose, and despatch a meal in hot haste when it should be seasoned and made palatable with pleasant converse.

It may be difficult to have much sociability at meals in a boarding-house where foreign elements are brought in contact, yet I have seen one or two persons, possessing tact, introduce subjects of such general interest that all could have a "finger in the pie," and thereby improve its flavor. The Purposes of Party.

The character and line of conduct pursued by the most pronounced opponents of Party Government are perhaps, the best testimony to the value and necessity. The chief of the "no party" party in this country is a political whose maxim is that men "must be governed either by force or by fraud." It can hardly be denied, then, that the interests and safety of the nation demands the existence of an active, vigilent and intelligent opposition, who feel it to be a duty and responsibility they owe to the people, to watch, scrutinize, and, at all times of need, challenge the proceedings of the Government. The possession of office for a lengthened period has a tendency to make all men and all parties more or less morally sluggish, even if ambition and love of power do not educate them up to the "force and fraud" doctrine Where the one side, representing the majority, happens to be led by men naturally unscrupulous, and encouraged by a long career of apparent success to act with comparative impunity, the demand for a resolute, united and active operation is all the greater.

The Pacific scandals of 1873 are the fruits of the "no party" cry of 1867. Neither the rash legislation of 1871, the gross outrage upon the Constitution perpetuated in 1872, nor the immoral compact that resulted in the wholesale debauchery of the elections in the last named year, would have ever been attempted, if the abnegation of political principles and the partial obliteration of distinction party lines and issues had not given a large majority to a leader who turned the general numbness of the political feeling and conscience that ensued to his own advantage. But whilst the weakness of the system of party Government rendered a great wrong possible, to the fact that, altho' weakened for a moment, party was not destroyed, may be attributed the arrest at an early stage of the evil. The American newspapers, we observe, are disposed on the whole to assume towards us rather a [illegible] tone, inasmuch as, whilst our great scandal was brought to light before the Pacific Company had time to work any mercifeul mischief, they, on their side, found out too late that Pacific stock had sapped the morality of some of the best and herotofore purest of their citizens.—There is some truth in this view of the case, and whatever credit is due to our earlier discovery must be ovvilted to the existence of a resolute party minority, who [illegible] in Parliament or the press, [illegible] years of comparative discouragement, the same unresting watchfulness over the dark and devious ways of their opponents in office.

At this [illegible], so far as Sir John A. Macdonald's own [illegible] and sense of [illegible] are concerned, in spite of Sir Hugh Allan and Northern Pacific Americans might be still in existence, and the national highway through the Canadian Territories [illegible] to the schemes and [illegible] of Mr. [illegible] and [illegible]. His organs are [illegible] by [illegible] to take credit for A. Macdonald, because [illegible] in [illegible] those people being [illegible] from the Company. But what lead to their exposure, if not [illegible] party? What first warned the public that [illegible] schemes were in peril? Everyone knows it was the sons of alarm first sounded by the Opposition, supported by [illegible] of the Globe. "All right" said Sir [illegible], don't scare anyone into [illegible] by raising obstacles; let us all

A horse is said to be hide-bound when his skin will not slip under the pressure of the hand, but sticks as if it was glued, which condition is always dependent on a deranged state of the stomach and digestive organs—by correction which, and giving to them a healthy tone and condition, the disease or complaint will disappear. Experience has proved that the means best adapted to this end is "Dorleys condition Powders and arabs tan Heave Remedy." It has been used in numerous cases with complete success, generally effecting a cure in a few days. It is the best condition medicine known, and may be given with perfect safety at all times, and does not require that the horse be kept from work. A Misunderstanding

Has existed between Mr. Hinds and the Commissioners about dredging the harbour has been amicably settled

Three convictions have taken place for violation of the Liquor Law.

Our town readers will be pleased to learn that Mr. J. H. Dumble has concluded to build a handsome block on King street, on the vacant space East of Mr. Stewart Hoocy's grocery and liquor store. The block, we understand, will contain three spacious and handsome stores, with a large suit of offices, etc., on the upper flats.

Quebec Returning.

The Hon. Joseph Howe's old constituency lately returned a Reform candidate. This week Quebec returned another Reform candidate. Both constituencies had been represented by Ministerialists.

"An election took place on Friday and Saturday last in the County of Beauharnois, for a member of the Local Legislature. The two candidates were Mr. Bergevin, Ministerialist, and Mr. Blanes, Opposition. Beauharnois has hitherto been a ministerial constituency, and Mr. Chapais, in the interests of the Government, went down to Beauharnois, and told the electors with as much assumption of authority as a Privy Councillor that they must vote for the Ministerial candidate, and they backed up the voice of the Minister, and returned Mr. Blanes by an overwhelming majority, rendering one of the majorities with which East and West Montreal were carried at the last general election. This is the third election that has been held in the Province of Quebec since the Ministerial changes were made, and the effect of the Ministerial corruption has been to increase the Opposition majority in each case. It is a clear indication of the effect on the people of the conduct of the Government and Sir Hugh Allan has produced among the people of the adjoining Province of Quebec. When a Government that wishes place themselves in opposition to the will of the people of the public money to carry out their own ends, Sir John A. Macdonald in connection with the Intercolonial Railway Commissioners, and the publications of Sir Hugh Allan's correspondence, the Government would receive a crushing and overwhelming defeat in almost every constituency in Canada."

The Ecclesiastical Gazette

A thick and thin supporter of Sir John and Sir Hugh is at last obliged to confess that the correspondence published affords prima facie evidence of the guilt of the Government. The words are

"It is now clear that there must have been another letter on the same day, because otherwise the order of Sir George Cartier and the receipt of Mr. Rowsley and others, would be unintelligible. If that letter was a bargain to give the Pacific contract on the condition of receiving certain sums of money to be used in the elections, then the making such arrangements was an offence against the country, which cannot for one moment be sanctioned. It is this fact which makes it very desirable that the letter should be given to the public."

THE LINDSAY MURDERER.

From the report of the inquest in the Lindsay papers, the post mortem revealed two bullet holes in the deceased. One four inches below the clavicle or collar bone, and two inches to the right of the median line; another bullet hole about an inch from the nipple, and to its left through the mammary gland. The first ball passed through the upper lobe of the left lung, through the pericardium or membrane of the heart, and through the ascending aorta, and was found in the cavity of the thorax. The other bullet was found behind the third rib, and somewhat indented. The doctors were of opinion that the wound through the heart alone have brought instant death.

VERDICT.

The jury after a few minutes deliberation brought in the following verdict: "That Sarah Alice Hopwood came to her death by pistol ball wounds from the hands of David Nesbitt."

THE MURDERER.

The Lindsay Post says:—The murderer, David Nesbitt, is about thirty-five years of age. He has been all his life a native of Cavan; being of a roving disposition he went to the Southern States, to South America and to California, where, it is said, he made considerable money. His home to this town three years ago, and became a first-class carpenter, and got employment in getting work. He could command the highest wages and constant employment; but he would go on occasional "sprees." He was a hard-working drunkard, and bore an indifferent character. He was known to carry a revolver, and only a short time ago fired it at a young man who happened to offend him.

Opening of the Midland R.W. to Orillia.

THE ROAD IN A VERY GOOD STATE.

Through the kindness of Mr. Hagel, President of the Midland Railroad, we enjoyed a trip to the enterprising village of Orillia, on Tuesday.

A special train took the Town Council of Peterboro, Mr. Edwards, Mr. Dumble Jr., R. Upton of Ashburnham and the representatives of the Press, to Bridlewood where a train from Port Hope was in waiting to convey the party along the new road. The train left Bridlewood at 9 o'clock, and reached Orillia at 11:30, having made the run in two hours and a half. At every station, and about every 10 miles, during the very pleasant trip in about three hours. All expressed themselves highly pleased with the line, its future prospects, and the liberality displayed by the President of the Midland Railway for his readiness in considering their wants by grants on the projected extension of opening his road so far on its way north and westward.

PITIABLE!

Mr. Clarkson has gone into hysterics over that appointment, but especially over the fact that he has no influence at Ottawa. A friend showed him the Examiner, on a day that we will not name, and when he read that Mr. Dorion was all-powerful at Ottawa, he gnashed his teeth, and almost rolled over like a spoiled child. He then plodded up Simcoe and read it again, and changed colour, when letting his feeling gain expression, he said somewhere, some way, John A. you came to Peterboro, you got Carnegie to bring me out because I could spend a little money, I did so, I was beaten, you know I was beaten, you then got me to welter through the mire to hold the seat, to vote for your dirty Pacific swindle, I tried to get away from your meshes, I went to church, I prayed, I endeavored to get away from your wiles, but I was so deep in the mud I could not get out, you did not even provide old rags or a rope to put round me to draw me out of the pit, you left me in the filth: like Ephraim you said "let him alone." I went bewildered to Ottawa, after having the day before tried to calm my consciences, I voted for you, I sat there at your beck. True you gave me $1,900 for my time, but see the dirt I have had to eat, and now I am humbled to the dust. I paid my own bills, and you paid Dorance, yet Dorance can get what he pleases, I can get nothing. Then clenching his first till he burst his glove, he was about to shout out "I wont stand it," when a friend caught him, and with soothing words calmed his troubled spirits. We did not hear whether the friend used any of Mrs. Winslow's soothing cordial or not, but they steadied his hand till he signed a petition against the late appointment, when he fell over into a soft and peaceful slumber.

SCHOOL EXAMINATION.

The examination of the pupils in S. S. No. 9, township of Smith, took place on the 30th ult. There were not many visitors present. Classes were examined in arithmetic, grammar, geography, history, reading and dictation. The fifth and fourth classes did their dictation and answered questions in geography and grammar in a manner that reflected much credit on their teacher, Mr. John W. Dixon. The second and third classes pointed out geographical questions on the maps, and also the nouns, adjectives, pronouns and verbs in their reading lessons with amazing rapidity and correctness. After the examination closed, prizes to the amount of $10 were awarded to the deserving pupils, viz:—To Walter Mellmoyl, Thomas Loughlin, Emma Branch, Mary Stabler, Hannah Boyce, — Sweeting, Huldah Maan, Laura Branch, Wm Loughlin, Wm Stabler, Jane Stabler, Mary Loughlin, Jane Loughlin, Jonathan Sweeting, Ellen Bell, Martha Boyce, Victoria Maan, Ann Sweeting, Willie George Boyce and others.—Com.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—In your issue of the 3rd inst. I briefly described a transaction in fruit trees between myself and W. C. Lawrence, in which communication I asked you to publish, which you kindly did, a specimen letter of this gentleman showing how he did business. As Mr. Lawrence has replied without noticing what I complained of, would you allow me to repeat a few plain statements and to ask him a few plain questions in reply? I ask the favor of your columns as a plain farmer, believing they are ever open for the ventilation of any imposition which may be practiced upon us.

I do not deny that in common with many other persons here I signed an order to Lawrence for trees at thirty cents each, but I do say, positively, I was told that at delivery I could settle for them by note at three or six months, as my circumstances would allow, and if paid in cash, twenty-five cents was only to be charged. Does Mr. Lawrence deny this to be my agreement with him? Or will he explicitly state over his signature that, after getting my order, he did not tell me if I paid cash the trees could be settled for at the latter figure? I await his answer.

While I complained of was that I was not dealt with on the same terms as my neighbors. What would be thought of a grocer who had three separate prices for the same article, or who sold his tea on long credit at the same price he would to a cash customer? or of a blacksmith who had three distinct prices for shoeing a horse? Would their customers feel somewhat inclined for this treatment? Yet this is precisely the manner in which Lawrence has dealt with me. Some have had to pay $1.50 per tree, others $1.00, others 75 cents, others 50 cents, others 40 cents, others 30 cents, and I myself 25 cents per tree, and I am told that some have got them for 20 cents. Now, Sir, I ask Mr. Lawrence, in the name of fair play, why this difference? Why should I have to pay 25 cents for trees that others got for 20 cents? Why should I have to pay 25 cents for trees that others got for 30 cents? Why should I have to pay 25 cents for trees that others got for 40 cents? Why should I have to pay 25 cents for trees that others got for 50 cents? Why should I have to pay 25 cents for trees that others got for 75 cents? Why should I have to pay 25 cents for trees that others got for $1.00? Why should I have to pay 25 cents for trees that others got for $1.50? Why should I have to pay 25 cents for trees that others got for $2.00? Why should I have to pay 25 cents for trees that others got for $2.50? WHAT IS YOUR PRICE ?

Sir Hugh Allan says he bought up M.P's and editors. How much did he pay for newspaper advocacy in this town ? This question should be answered. There is a rumor that there was a promise of four per cent for the advocacy of the $150,000 By-law. Was this really so ? Did Sir Hugh Allan pay $6,000 to a man to write and talk and work for the By-law ? If he did, who got the money ? Newspaper men are supposed to work pro bono publico. Should they then get $6,000 for writing up any scheme, no matter how worthy or desirable ? Can any man feel safe in following the advice tendered by a man who is subsidized to the tune of 4 per cent on every undertaking ? Are editors so corrupt that they will sell themselves and their country for a few paltry dollars ? Yet so it appears. How much was paid for the speeches made through this County during the canvass on the By-law ? Who will answer ?

Piano Tuning.

Mr. R. S. Williams' tuner will be in Town in about eight days. All orders left at this office will be promptly attended to.

A Strange Murder

Is recorded as having taken place in Harmony, Pa. on the 14th inst. A man named Frazier had been keeping company with a Miss Faulstock, against the wishes of her parents. Owing to the opposition she eloped with Frazier, but was brought back. The parties met again, and succeeded in getting married before detected. They then went to Pittsburg and put up with a worthy couple named Chauncy. Before retiring Frazier entered their names as John Frazier and lady. They seemed on the best of terms and remained in their room next day. However near evening, the landlord heard the report of a pistol, and hastening up the stairs to the room from whence the sound proceeded, where he was met at the door by Kate Faulstock, partly disrobed and with face covered with blood, which came from a wound in her forehead. Chauncy caught her in his arms and speedily conveyed her to a room in the lower part of the house, but while attending to her he suddenly heard again the sharp, clear ring of the pistol, and rushing up the stairs to the room he had given the strangers, he was horrified to find Frazier lying upon the floor with a wound in his forehead also, from which the blood was rapidly flowing. By his side lay the pistol from which the two shot had been fired. Frazier did not speak after he was shot, but lingered suffering greatly until about o'clock next morning, when he died. It is said that Frazier was a married man at the time of his elopement, and had a wife and two children and at Zanesville O. The excitement here ceased by the tragedy is indescribable.

Business.

On Thursday afternoon about three o'clock, a very heavy thunder storm passed over this section of the country doing much damage. It was accompanied by very heavy hail or rather blocks of ice of every shape imaginable. The lightning was very sharp and struck in several places in the town, especially trees, but did no serious harm. In the immediate neighborhood of the town considerable havoc has been done. Wm.underneath that it struck the stable of Mr. John Garbutt, knocking it down. It also struck the barn of Mr. Jas. Armstrong of Otonabee, east of Ashburnham, and setting fire to it, the barn, sheds, a horse, and all his hay, were consumed. Two trees in the neighborhood of Auburn were struck, and the people in the vicinity were considerably alarmed but no harm was done there. The track of the storm was small and broad, but crops in its line must have received considerable damage.

Ashburnham.

We clip the following from the Globe of the 16th inst :

"A Company has been organized in Canada on the manufacture of various articles at Peterboro, with a nominal capital of $200,000, and a subscribed capital of half the amount. In the notice of application for a charter, contained in the last Ontario Gazette, the following names appear as corporators :—Messrs. George Stephen, Montreal ; Edward Mohr, Geo. A. Cox, John Bertram, Peterboro ; and William Peters, Johnstone, Scotland."

The Aurora Banner says :

"That it is currently reported that A. G. P. Dodge is about to resign his seat in the House of Commons for North York.'

Prosperity does not accompany his political career, Canon Bleasdell has lost his petition. His chief ally in the Election committed suicide, one his own business is not flourishing since. Did corruption cause all this.

The Parish Scandal.

The Aurora Banner says :

Almost from the first commission of the Canada Pacific Road, Sir John A. Macdonald and his Ministers have made it a fast and significant boast-ing feature of trying to make it a national undertaking which would enlist the support of all parties and deter every patriotic citizen to look upon it as a question. Everybody connected with the construction of the road has been prostituted to enable the Government to retain their seats, and to this Government our Member, Mr. A G P Dodge has promised his "unswerving" support. It may be that the enthusiasm with which he announced this determination as soon as he had an opportunity after entering the House, had something to do with Sir Hugh Allan's influence. Whether this was the case or not we cannot say, but they appear to have both pursued the same course in gaining the influence of the clergy with this difference however, that Sir Hugh appears to have paid the clergy that he corrupted, while Mr. Dodge refused to pay the one he has found the means of causing to lose his position unsolicited.

A Horrible Murder

Has been committed in Chester County Pennsylvania. A man named Uddersook, murdered a commercial traveller, cut off his legs and arms, placed them beside the mutilated head and body, and buried the whole in a hole not far from the road side, where it was discovered by a gentleman, who, passing along, was led to the place by a flock of Buzzards he noticed hovering over the piece of woods where the body was found by him. The traveller was believed to have had about $2,000 with him when inveigled by Uddersook.

St. Andrew's Society Pic-Nic

Is to be held 12 miles down the river, this year, at Richardson's Landing, on Friday the 25th of July. For further particulars see large posters. Preparations are being made for a pleasant day, and a merry time. What Scotsman will stay behind ! Ticket for a whole family only $1.00.

A purser going his rounds on the steamer Peerless while on her way to Ottawa, on the 11th inst., taking up tickets, tapped a man who was apparently sleeping, lightly on the shoulder, and asked him for his ticket. He made no response and the purser shook him again, but no shaking could wake him from his sleep of death. The man's name was unknown.

COUNTY COUNCIL—FRIDAY.

The Council met. All the members present except A. Brown and Hickey.

The Warden, James Millar, Esq , in the Chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

On motion of Mr. Brown, Mr. Anderson addressed the Council, asking to be relieved from being bondsman for the completion of a contraction on the Hastings Bridge, the contract having to be re-let.

Moved by Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. Brown, J. P.,—That, having heard the statement of Mr. Anderson respecting the repairing of the bridge at Hastings, we recommend the Committee appointed to superintend the repairs to release Mr. Anderson from being security for said repairs. —Carried.

Moved by Mr. Anderson, seconded by Mr. Blezard,—That this Council appoint two or more County Valuators, and that a Committee be appointed to select the same Valuators and make regulations for them.

In amendment moved by Mr. Golborne, seconded by Mr. Collins,—That the appointment of County Valuators be laid over till the January session,

The amendment was carried.

On motion of Mr. Peck, a By-law for levying County rates was read a first time, and afterwards a second and third time and passed, the amounts to be levied in each township as given in another column.

Mr. Peck introduced a By-law to provide for the payment of certain accounts and claims, which was also read a second and third time and passed. The accounts are also given on the report of the Finance Committee.

Moved by Mr. Peck, seconded by Mr. Pearce, that the sum of two hundred dollars be granted to Mr. Croly, over and above the sum granted to him yesterday.

Lost on the following division :—

YEAS—Messrs. McDonald, Peck, Calvert, Calcutt, Parker, McCarthy, Pearce, Golborne and Collins—9

NAYS—Messrs. Moloney, Mober, Brown, Powell, Choate, Blezard, Walton, Sanderson and the Warden—9.

The motion was declared lost.

On motion of Mr. Blezard, seconded by Mr. Brown, the sum of $40 was granted to John Walton, Esq., for his extra trouble as commissioner for the building of the new Registry Office, and that the 3rd clause of By-lay 331 was suspended for the purpose.

Mr. Peck wished for an expression of the Council as to the course likely to be pursued in reference to granting aid to a railway to the north part of the County, as the people there were not going to take any steps in the matter of the petition just presented.

It was moved by Mr. Choate, seconded by Mr Pearce,—That in the matter of the petitions presented at this session and those presented at former sessions of the County, asking aid to the Victoria Railway, this Council declares that in the present and former action thereof in reference to said railway, no injustice is sought to be done to the northern part of the County ; but leaving of view the legal points in the matter, their desire to express their action on the said railway question was largely dictated by the fact that the front townships of our County would, in a measure, be made responsible for said proposed aid. Should, however, a scheme be proposed to aid railway communication from the County Town to the northern portion of the County, they are prepared to grant liberal assistance.

YEAS—Messrs. McDonald, Peck, Calvert, Brown, Powell, Choate, Parker, McCarthy, Pearce and Golborne—10.

NAYS—Messrs. Mober, Moloney, Blezard, Walton, Sanderson and Collins—6.

On motion of Mr Choate a By-law was introduced to amend the standing rules as to the mode of electing a Warden. It was formally passed.

The Council adjourned.

Sir Hugh swears he bought up editors. Just hear Mr. McMullen :

Montreal, July 15.

The following appears in the Herald and Gazette :—

"To the Editor of the Montreal Gazette.

"SIR,—Your offer of space in your columns to give the particulars on which I based the following statement is readily accepted by me. The statement is this :—The intimation in this attempt to vilify me seems to have been taken by the Montreal Gazette, the confidential organ of Sir Hugh Allan, as a sufficient excuse that I am called upon to explain what have been to indifferent, as to be favorable to his interest. As I believe stated, this letter is merely to explain my motives, and not to defend myself in any manner, I want it to be understood that I am ready to demonstrate in a court of justice, if necessary, the truth of every statement I have made in my letter to the Gazette, and its proprietors will find it is not quite enough to reserve their defence for their own paper. This matter is of my business, but as an instrument of a fact within my own knowledge. Sometime in January, or February, 1872, I cannot remember on which of the occasional meetings of my political friends, I met with Sir Hugh Allan at his own house. Quite late in the evening the Hon. J. J. C. Abbott came in by appointment and I was for the first time introduced to Sir. Sir Hugh had several times before told me that the Gazette was his personal property and that he had made a considerable sale to Messrs. T. & R. Whyte, but as they seemed unable to pay unless their a small amount down, he had not given a full delivery to them. Among other things Mr. Abbott came that evening to report the result of a conversation with Messrs. Whyte on the subject of giving a better support to the Northern Colonization Railway, then about being put before the people, and generally to hasten after stand strongly by that and the Pacific Railway schemes. He stated that the Messrs. White feared the fear of a large Grand Trunk and other patronage if they took this stand, and consequently urged that they were entitled to some reward for taking such a course, to which he (Mr. Abbott) assented. The result of the interview was reported by Mr. Abbott to be a proposal that Sir Hugh should disburse $4,000 when the contract was done on the paper, and also allow the Messrs. White to enter into full possession, materially as well as editorially. Sir Hugh consented to giving so much out of his own pocket, but offered to share for the present in the proposed propositions with the other Colonization Railway promoters, having the understanding with me that as it was likely the negotiations would benefit the Pacific Railway, the amount [illegible] Association, [illegible] been formed to build it. To this I assented and on early one morning Mr. Abbott over-authorized to [illegible] and hand it to Mr. Abbott as soon after as the delivery of the Gazette was all that should be desired. I fancy no one will be surprised at my adopting this mode of reply to your unparalleled abuse in the editorial of July 16th, and I believe I credited your readers to the proper source.

Yours, &c.,

(Signed) D. E. McMULLEN."

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it ? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best [illegible] Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Then in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alcohol is lost in that way, and you get only the smell of Oils which they may contain.

MISS A. BARTLEY,

[illegible]

Select Poetry.

For Ladies Only.

How will you manage your husband?
I will tell you, my dear, if I can,
He is really a wonderful creature,
Than Providence engineer—man.
Yes, really a wonderful creature,
Ignorance and queer,
But you'll soon master the secret by hearing
The maxim I transmit, my dear.

If he stays out too late in the evening,
Fuddling at supper and wine,
Don't storm him a loss fabricator,
When he comes by asking the time.
For he surely will tell you the city clock
Had the moment before rung out one—
When it struck for last counted it over
Just three times before it had done.

And then if his hat in the morning
Is smaller by far than his head,
Don't hint by moral allusion,
That his brother went tipsy to bed.
But rather regret the occurrence,
A phenomenon puzzling, queer,
With a strange look of mystification,
In your eyes, if he's watching, my dear.

And don't fall to sew on his buttons,
And mend all his clothes with care,
Don't tatter him for money for shopping,
Don't frown when he eats like a bear.
Don't tell him too often, my dear,
That your head is aching with pain,
Lest he whisper, way down in his bosom,
"Oh, I wish I was single again!"

Don't tell him that Mary the housemaid,
And Ann, the chairwoman cook,
Refuse to receive your suggestions,
With even as much as a look.
Don't tell him how very annoying
You so often found it to be,
To be told to "get out of the kitchen,
And don't come a bothering of me!"

But always seem cheerful and happy,
And always look pleasant and gay,
Then a frown there is nothing more potent
In driving a husband away.
And then you must ever keep striving,
And you'll find it an excellent plan,
But, whatever you do, dear, remember
That your husband is only a man.

ALLAN vs. ALLAN.

(From the London Advertiser.)

Sir Hugh Allan is the Government's chief and chosen witness on whose testimony we have the Premier's word they relied to prove their innocence and without whose presence they would not permit the investigation to proceed. Since the publication of the witness's testimony—as contained in his private correspondence and carefully prepared affidavit, the Government organs have been laboring hard, to show that though Sir Hugh has been guilty of buying his way to the Presidency of the railway and the possession of the charter, the Government were ignorant of his designs and not party to the intrigues of the self-confessed briber. Let us see what the witness says on that point. We will quote Sir Hugh against Sir Hugh.

In his affidavit he says:

"I positively declare that up to the date of this letter (July 30th, 1872) I had not any understaking of any kind or description with the Government, either directly or through any other person."

In the same affidavit occur the following statements of a directly opposite nature:

"I Sir Hugh Allan of Ravenscraig, in the Province of Quebec, Knight, being duly sworn, depose and say that in the autumn of 1871 I learned in conversation with Sir Francis Hincks (the Finance Minister), that certain American capitalists had proposed to the Government, through Mr. Waddington, to organise a company for the purpose of building the Canadian Pacific Railway. I obtained from Sir Francis Hincks the names of the persons who had been communicating with the Government, and immediately placed myself in correspondence with them."

Further Sir Hugh states:

"I placed myself in communication with the Government, offering to organise a Company which would undertake the construction of the road..... I endeavored, as far as possible, to secure for myself the position of President.....And as to this point I had reason to believe, from the first that the Government was prepared to admit my claim."

So here we have Sir Hugh, with all the apparent solemnity which an oath can give, declaring that up to July 30, 1872, he had no undertaking "of any kind or description with the Government," and in the same breath also confessing that "in the autumn of 1871" he had, through information given by the Finance Minister, undertaken to form a company, with the understanding that he was to be the President, and that "from the first the Government was prepared to admit his claim." What occurred between the autumn of 1871 and the date of Cartier's letter of July 30, 1872, as related both in the private correspondence and public affidavit, shows conclusively that the Government were consulted at every step throughout the entire intrigue, and were fully aware of what was going on. In the correspondence we find:

Dec. 9, 1871—"Sir Francis Hincks called at my office this day, and said that whilst as anxious as ever to arrange with us, the feeling of the Government is that if they closed an agreement without advertising for tenders they would be attacked about it in the House."

Jan. 1, 1872—"I go to Ottawa on Wednesday, and will see what they (the Government) intend to do."

Feb. 5, 1873—"I returned yesterday from Ottawa, everything looks well."

Feb. 16—Every day brings up some new difficulty, but I hope to meet them all successfully.....I think you will have to go it blind in the matter of money—cash payments.

March 4—"I intend going to Ottawa on Monday."

April 16—"You might make use of your time in seeing such of the ministers as you can reach, but I wish especially that—you and I together should see Sir John A. at 11 o'clock on Thursday.

June 12.—"By means that you are aware of—WE HAVE THE PLEDGE OF SIR G. that we will have a MAJORITY and other things satisfactory!

Could anything be plainer! Is not the connection between Sir Hugh and the Government, as shown by his private correspondence, maintained unbroken from the appearance of "Sir Francis" at "my office" in December, 1871, to the time the gamesters secured from Sir G. "by means you are aware of," his pledge, that "we will have a majority and other things satisfactory!" How does Sir Hugh's affidavit, that up to July 30, 1872, he had no undertaking of any kind or description with the Government, either directly or through any other person, stand the test of Sir Hugh's secret history of the plot to buy the charter! Sir Hugh in evidence against Sir Hugh is sufficient of itself to establish the truth of Mr. Huntington's charges, and to secure the conviction of every individual concerned in this gentleman's bribe.

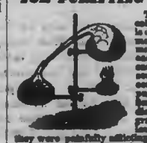
Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.



The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Innumerable cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by its powerful action, and the popular affections and disorders, which were oppressed by the weight of this universal foe, yield to its subduing influence, when they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in each great manhood in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or merits.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and wasting agent of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of embodying or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and plant, on some favourable occasion, rapidly developing into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be seen developed in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: Ery'sipelas, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotch, Blood, Boils, Carbuncles, Sores, Ulcers, Sore Mouth, and Throat, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Pain in the Side, Kidneys, Nervousness, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilitic or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing those obstinate maladies by any medicine. But keep continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Obstructions and Female Irregularities, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, published gratis. Pimples, Blotches and Sores, when caused by accumulations of corruptions or impurities in the blood, rise quickly to it, as the Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Constipation or Inactivity of the Bowels, or Piles, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great remedy for these and many other diseases of like origin. Those who are Languid and Listless, Depondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the long catalogue of symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic. Few can or will long endure the pain and prostration which attend the use of the drastic pills that are generally sold, when they require to be purged, as they all do, at times. Hence, a mild but thorough cathartic, which can be confidently taken when needed, by those who dislike to make a serious matter of "taking physic," is desired by many families. Such a cathartic we offer in these Pills. Their sugar coating renders them pleasant to take, and they are the easiest to take, and the safest and best purgative that can be employed for children, while they are equally adapted to the needs of grown persons. Being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity. They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action, relieving the system of disorders of long standing, which are making the sufferer miserable, and developing the seeds of more serious complaints. They are sugar coated, so that the most sensitive can take them pleasantly, and they are the best purgative yet known for general use in the family, because they are certain in their operation, and do not gripe or sicken except when the dose is too large for the patient. THE PACIFIC SCANDAL.

ASTOUNDING REVELATIONS!

HON. MACKENZIE BOWELL ON THE STORY IN FULL.

To the Editor of the Globe.

SIR,—So much has been of late said about myself, and my connection with the Pacific Railway negotiations, that I think it better to lay a full statement of my position in regard to it before the public, than no longer allow myself to be placed in so many wrong situations by those who are of necessity ignorant of many important facts. I have chosen, therefore, to place it in the form of an historical narrative, embracing the incidents that came under my own knowledge from first to last. I engaged in the matter from the printing of the charter by the Government to its present holders.

I visited Ottawa in March, 1871, on a Grand Trunk Railway matter, and met the late lamented Mr. Alfred Waddington and Mr. W. Kennaway, who were agitating the subject of a Canadian Pacific R. R., and who introduced the matter to my notice, with a view to organize a company to build the proposed road. After looking at the ways and explorations of Mr. Fleming, on the physical feature of the Pacific Railway, I considered to make the best of the new friends, with a view to its serious consideration. In a few weeks, at my request, Mr. Waddington and Mr Kennaway visited Oshawa, and the result was, on their representations, the bulk my Wesley to proceed to organize a company which would undertake to build a road, on terms approximating those which current rumor reported the Government willing to recommend to Parliament. [illegible] New York and Philadelphia in shortly afterwards, and in about six weeks later (being early in July, 1871), we visited Ottawa with an influential [illegible] from parties of the highest respectability for undertaking the work. The only member of the Government whom we met was Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir Francis Hincks, and it was very [illegible] apparent to myself and associates that Mr. Waddington had been over-sanguine in his views that the formation of a company would be entrusted to his hands. After some conversation which resulted to make this clear, and which intimated that the Government would wish to incorporate prominent Canadian names in any company undertaking the work, we left our address with the [illegible] Minister, with the understanding that if occasion to arise, we were to hear from them. Some few weeks afterwards, Mr. Chas. M. Smith, of Chicago, who was my colleague in this matter, received a letter from Sir Hugh Allan, stating that Sir Francis Hincks had requested him to communicate with us in order to effect a union of Canadian and American interests in the Pacific Railroad Company that was to be formed.

I afterwards found that Sir Francis Hincks had visited New York in the early part of August, 1871, and had interviews with two prominent railway bankers, whose names still steadily come to him, had advised them and their associates to cease negotiations through Messrs. Smith and myself, and open them directly with Sir Hugh Allan, who, being a leading Canadian, was looked upon by the Government as a proper person to figure prominently in the matter. As the gentlemen applied to were both unwilling and unable to change existing arrangements, Sir Francis, on his return, seems to have given the advice he took with him in July to Sir Hugh Allan, and his letter to us followed [illegible] Mr. Kennaway, in Montreal, early in September, 1871, at which preliminaries were settled between Sir Hugh Allan, Charles M. Smith and myself, by which Sir Hugh was to receive a large personal interest in the stock, and an amount for distribution among persons whose acceptance was desirable, and that the cash instalments on stock should be advanced and carried by others. [illegible] An interview was held by myself with Sir John A. Macdonald at the St. Lawrence Hall, the day before we met Allan, at which he expressed the approval of the Government at the proposed meeting, and requested me to meet him at Ottawa, after it was over to let him know the result.—I accordingly went to Ottawa and explained to him that Sir Hugh had entered into verbal arrangements which would assume a more formal shape, had that we had proceeded further without communication of such other Canadian gentlemen as would be of advantage. He seemed quite pleased with it, and promised, on communication with Allan, to put an early day for entering into preliminary arrangements with the Government, in order that the whole matter might be in shape for an early presentation to Parliament. Shortly afterwards, in accordance with this understanding, Sir Hugh notified Mr. Smith and myself to come, and we three met the Cabinet at Ottawa, Oct. 13th, 1871, to settle, as we supposed, the general features of the charter. There were present Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Francis Hincks, Sir Geo. E. Cartier, and Messrs Tilley, Tupper, Mitchell, Morris, Aikins and Chapais. It was [illegible] apparent that they were not willing to accord Sir Hugh themselves, in consequence, as Sir Francis Hincks informed me, of the jealousy of Allan, represented by the important personage of Sir Geo. E. Cartier. The consideration of matters had, therefore, to be postponed until the return of Sir Hugh Allan from England, he sailing on October 7th, and returning the 1st of December, Mr. Smith and I proceeded to New York to inform our friends of the state of affairs. It was then that we first learned of the visit of the Finance Minister, which I have before narrated, and it was also then that Sir Hugh's first telegram of the published correspondence was received.

After the return of Sir Hugh Allan from England he telegraphed to Mr. Smith, of Chicago, that Sir Francis Hincks had called and suggested that the Government would be obliged to advertise for tenders in order to avoid [illegible] and that the time of no agreement would have to be postponed for several weeks, but suggesting that we have a meeting in Montreal shortly afterwards in New York, to execute the contract which was to follow our verbal [illegible]. Mr. Smith and myself accordingly [illegible] Chicago on Dec. 13, 1871, and after visiting Montreal and closing all matters with Allan, we went [illegible] to New York, where the contract was signed by all the parties under date of Dec. 22nd, 1871. A variety of copies were distributed to interested and by correspondence [illegible] during the winter, and the [illegible] by the Government remained in this unsatisfactory situation. While at first Sir Hugh [illegible] that no money would be required from the shareholders, he subsequently informed me that it would be necessary to provide some 10 per cent. on the shares subscribed, or $400,000, which he agreed to be responsible for, and which was subsequently [illegible] by the shareholders. In a letter [illegible] Sir Hugh [illegible] that he would [illegible] to Ottawa, and [illegible] Sir Francis Hincks, and [illegible] Sir Hugh [illegible] Sir Francis [illegible] Sir Hugh [illegible] Sir Francis [illegible] Sir Hugh [illegible] Sir Francis

PETERBORO', JULY 31st, 1873.

Editorial Items.

Personal.

Messrs. Dorrance and Barron, solicitors, Lindsay, have dissolved partnership.

The Victoria R.R.

Bonus was voted down in Fenelon last week. The promoters intend trying it again, it is said.

Accidents.

On Monday week, a son of Mr. John Walsh of Dunsmore fell from a load of hay and received injuries of which he died in about an hour.

The Contests

Are gaining important positions in Spain.

A. & T. Stewart

The great Dry Goods merchant of New York, made his will before sailing for Europe a short time ago. It shows him to be worth one hundred million dollars.

Better Still.

Mr. Thos. Wilson of North Monaghan informs us that he has cut and saved this year, 12 loads of hay off three acres and a half of meadow, or over seven tons of good hay. This would be about two tons to the acre, which is considerably more than Mr. W. Wood's average. If all the hay in the county equalled this of Mr. Wilson's there might be no fear about a scarcity the approaching winter.

Accident.

On Saturday, while some men on the Cobourg & Peterboro Railroad were taking stones along the road on "lurries," one following the other, the forward one stopped at the foot of a down grade, we understand, the succeeding party, either neglecting to put on the "brakes" or not succeeding in time, allowed theirs to run into the forward one. Cornelius McAuliffe of Ashburnham was on the forward one and attempted to jump off, but fell, when some of the stone flying off the other "lurrie" fell on him and broke his thigh in two places and causing also a splinter of the bone towards the hip, the large bone of the thumb of one hand is also broken. Dr. O'Sullivan was sent for as quick as possible and set the bones. We are glad to hear that McAuliffe is getting along as well as can be under such a complication of injuries. He is about 60 years of age.

Found.

Mr. Davis, of the firm of Whyte and Davis, found a bundle of clothes in a back shed at their foundry and machine shop on Monday. The bundle contained a woman's dress, a little girl's dress and a man or boy's flannel shirt. The parcel it is thought was stolen at the fire on Sunday night, and left in the shed till a more convenient season to get it away, or the thief became too drunk to take it at the time.

A Large Sum.

The largest sum of loss that we remember having heard of passing down the river, was yesterday let out of the Little Lake. It consisted of 50,000 to 65,000 logs, and belonged to Messrs Ullyott Saddler & Co.

Harvest.

The prospects of a more than average yield is every where in this section of the country being [illegible] wheat is [illegible] out well, and spring grain promises a good yield, since the rains set in. Hay is the only light crop spoken of, yet even hay is much heavier than was anticipated during the early droughts. On the whole, a more than average crop is now expected.

Quebec.

A Mass Meeting of the citizens was held in Quebec on Sunday last at which the Government was condemned for their part in the Pacific Scandal, and resolutions were passed praying the Governor General for an investigation. Mr. Tessier Cazeau declared he would go over to the Opposition if the Government refused an investigation by a committee of the House.

Petitions.

Are now being signed, praying the Governor general not to prorogue the House after the 13th August, until a full investigation of the Pacific scandal.

Monstrous.

A Mass meeting is being held in Montreal to request the Governor General not to prorogue till after a full investigation of the Huntington charges.

Consistent Advocate

Calls the Montreal Witness one of the most unreliable papers in the Dominion, while the desire the Witness is one of the most reliable papers in America. The Montreal Witness is always on the side of truth, Justice, Honesty and Integrity, and opposed to corruption, trickery and partizan chicanery. Would God all our Newspapers were controled by the same high toned moral principle as it is.

Another Accident.

On Tuesday last as Miss Moynes was driving home along the first line of Smith in company with some friends, her horse became restive, ran the buggy against a stump and threw her out, breaking her collar bone. Mr. James Davidson kindly drove the parties to town, where Dr. O'Sullivan attended to the broken bone. The patient is doing well.

Notice.

Read the new advertisement of Messrs. Nicholls & Hall, in this weeks issue. They are offering bargains during the month of August, in order to make room for fall importations, now being selected in England and Scotch markets by Mr. Richard Hall.

Insurance Officers.

Are selling the balance of their Summer Stock at reduced prices for one month. Give them a call and examine their goods and prices.

Petition.

Every person should sign the petition to the Governor General to have an investigation of the Pacific Scandal.

Going Up.

It will be seen by the prices realized for the buildings known as the Gaiety Hotel on the Market Square Lot, that property is going up wonderfully in Town. The former stable brought $6,250. The hotel, was purchased by R. Peddar, brought [illegible]

FIRE IN ASHBURNHAM.

A fire broke out in Ashburnham on Sunday afternoon last by which a dwelling house occupied by Mr. Hawkins and the dwelling owned by Mr. Hawkins and the dwelling partly occupied by Mrs. Crossling, the remaining part by Mr. Hall, grain on their way to the "Whistlewing" to get away from the din and bustle of business to enjoy the air and a sail on the Otonabee. About 6 o'clock the boats and crews were well filled, and were on their way down the river, and without any mishap reached the [illegible] about 12 o'clock.

In the absence of the President, Mr. Hall, J. Elder, Esq., 1st vice president acted as general director and manager. In a short time he got his clansmen and party on shore, and all fixed their selves a spot to spread their cloths and enjoy their pic-nic, after their especial fancies. Soon the dainties were arranged, and in Canadian rather than Scottish style all were busy at work to supply the wants consequent on the trip on the river, dancing, aye, and plenty to eat, at breakfast.

After doing their duty nobly in this way, the party divided itself according to its fun loving proclivities, some were throwing the quoits, others running, leaping, rowing, fishing, and here and there were to be seen some young gallant whispering love into the ear of some bit lassie, whom he wished to impress favorably: and under the shade of evergreens could be seen the older ladies discussing their own affairs, or perhaps the fun and frolic of days long gone by.

All amused themselves in the most cheerful and happy way several hours, till about six o'clock, when the whistle's call warned them to prepare for home again, soon the baskets were packed and on board, and the party got themselves arranged, some for song, some to tip the light fantastic toe, and some to engage in merry chit chat as the vessel steamed along. Terpsichore had by far the greater number of devoted worshippers, and many of them would feel next day that their worship will not less demanding of sacrifice than that of other rites.

On the way up the river, Wm. Telford Esq., host to the St. Andrew's Society, read the following piece comp osed by him for the occasion.

LINES EXTENDED FOR THE ST. ANDREW'S SOCIETY PICNIC, JULY 30th, 1873.

Lads, Brither Scots, an auten chield,
This day I left the harvest field;
Hand wark an' me had baith to bield,
I cou'dna stay,
The I had been on harrow wheeled
Doon here, this day.
I said, "guid wife, we baith maun gang
An' join the social, merry throng."
To work she went, wi sic a bang,
Some scons to bake,
She kenned, I wad like a sneckle whang
Gaen doon the lake.
Now Brither Scots, baith ane an' a'
Here let us spend an hour or twa,
Gie care an' grief, an unco thra,
Richt owre your shoulder;
Near mind the ye shoud puff an' blaw
Like puffs o' poother.
This day rekindles in our pows
Our early days, on Scotas knowes;
Perhaps recalls some youthfu vows
Premature broken,
Deep buried thoughts this day arouse,
Lang since forgotten.
Our childish play ground—cherished spot,
The grassy hill, or bumble cot,
Twas there we learned what gies the throt
Their honored name.
Fa, scorn the man that brings a blot
On his auld hame.
Scotia thy scenes we love them still
Whare scrubbs, scrogans, scours the hill
The drumlie burn or gurglin rill
Rin thro the glen,
Sic grandeur baffs the painter's skill
Or poet's pen.
The we hae left the land o' cakes,
Hills clad wi heath, wi brecn or kjukes,
On days like this our fancies wakes
Like earls bee
Wafton our thoughts o'er land an' lakes
Or bield them free.
Tnen some o' us are old an' gray,
We canna join the youmer's play.
It grieves us sair, we wad fu unv
To mount hoop'n.
I ken richt weel, anes in our day
Them we wad skelpet.
This day fine dantion stand in rows,
Mair mouth o' compost fills our noses,
On pic-nic day Scots sup wee brose,
Partich nor bannock.
The Queen hersel at dinner shows
Coudna cost brag us.
She gatherins muckle guid impart,
The stir up friendship in our heart,
The different stations, trades or art
Have we are seen,
Baith richt an' left, we perform their part,
Comfort or pen.
Guid man stir crankin' wi his dame,
Contentin' this day's fun wi hame.
Watch that young birkie—what's his name?
How he endeavors:
That young fellow's heart to hope
Wi love haivers.
Ye needna hauch at what I tell,
When young, we did the same oursel,
Aft watchin their young bosom swell
Wi sobs and sighs.
But keen hae focused on wi'ds spalle
In wedlock ties.
One sang wants to sing hame to-day,
He has the warses fell a prey
Gin cellarin an wi harmony play,
Large hearted Scot.
With reverence I these words will say,
"Dead not forgot."
Mayr Brither Scots, I say good bye
Drink very light, if ye hae nyn,
And you, that's grackin', tie it sly,
Oh dyvorsin hae nae
If disaster does on'y endeavor to
To mak a snag out.

The Captain and hands on the boat did all in their power to make the passage pleasant, and they succeeded admirably. Arriving at the locks with daylight, they soon landed their charge at the wharves, and each repaired to his or her home again.

The day was pleasant, and the party one of the most amicable and cheerful: and nothing occurred to mar the happiness and pleasantries of the day.

The games were harmless, and the parties engaged in them with a zest hardly equaled on other occasions.

The stronger beverages were absent or obstacled. The most favorite one being the admixture of the juice of the tea plant of the far east with the sugar cane of the west.

THE RACING REGATTA.

The course of spiritual degradation and self-abasement exhibited by the supporters of Canada's Governor of the manufactures of bribery and corruption connected with the Pacific charter, so completes public attention, that it is the all engrossing subject of conversation, in every circle. People are astounded to find men occupying the highest places selling their honor, their politions, their character and their passports for money to bribe, corrupt, degrade and destroy the electors of the Dominion, for destruction must follow a disregard of justice and moral rectitude in political acts as well as other acts which are immoral and unjust. The state to which the country is brought by this corruption in high places, as manifesting itself in the defence that is every where set up in behalf of the grossest acts of corruption that has ever been brought to light in any country. Men in whom the greatest confidence may be placed in other matters are not afraid to palliate, excuse or remove away, if possible, the most corrupt and degrading political wrong doing. They will tell you "Sir Hugh has a right to do what he likes with his own money." That "it is no ones business how much he gave to the funds for electing his friends." His friends meaning those who were prepared to vote him the Pacific charter. They palliate this bribery by asserting that $360,000 was no more to him than $10 would be to many men who subscribed to election funds throughout the country, and thus they pretend to reason, but only pretend, as their better judgement condemns them out of their own mouths. But let us examine these arguments. Sir Hugh has a right to do what he likes with his own money! Then he may spend it on the vilest prostitutes, he may hire men to commit perjury, he may bribe men to betray the most solemn trusts. In fine, since the money is his own, he may use it to undermine the most sacred ties of society and to corrupt the whole people. Surely no one man will attempt to defend such a line of argument, as it only requires to be read to be condemned, and would not have been set up but that they are driven to such straits. When wickedness, bribery, lying, venality and deception are rampant in high places, the masses will soon be effected by the contagion of such vices and the country will become so polluted that every thing will defile, until the nation, groaning under its own wickedness must be purged as an expiation for offended justice, or it must undergo some great national calamity to bring men to a sense of their degradation and villiany. The sooner therefore the axe is laid to the root of the corruption that now finds so many defenders, the better for the future of the Dominion and for the prosperity of the people.

The argument that both parties are corrupt is a weak one. If they are, let some purifying process be resorted to get rid of the black sheep of both parties, if they exist. No wise man would refuse medical assistance in his family because it was needed in the family of his neighbor, but on the other hand he would accept first and then permit the physician to go on his mission wherever needed. The present government of the Dominion is corrupt, all know it, purge them out then, that the body politic may be cured and become healthy. Should their success ors become or be found corrupt, purge them too, Why retain a monstrous evil and curse for the sake of a party? From the Minister of justice to the lowest member of the government their hands are defiled, their evil influence is contaminating. Their conversation even is filthy. Blot their names from the record of public men and let us get better men. If all the parties in Canada be blotted out, other parties will take [illegible] of the wreck to man the ship if it be not contagious.

Let the present old hull be put on the stocks and renovated, let the vile stench of contagion be purified. Let new men rear the vessel, new captains, new pilots, new men; let her get a fair start under the most favourable possible circumstances, don't have her dashed to pieces by the waves on the quicksands of corruption on which she is drifting and must soon be destroyed, if not manned by better seamen.

WHAT IS SAID OF THE PACIFIC SCANDAL.

The Ottawa Citizen says: "A damaging statement, if true."

The Ottawa Free Press says: "It is a bad show."

L'Evenement, Montreal, claims that its editor has all the original letters, which were probably published last night.

The Kingston Daily News, smarting under a former opinion, says—nothing.

The Kingston Whig says: "Sir John's friends are disgusted that he got only $10,000 while Sir George got $30,000." They forget. This $10,000 was Sir John's "last call."

The Montreal Witness shows its appreciation of Sir Francis by the remark that he wanted something "likely to pay out well." The Witness says further that the Government must not only either prove their innocence or cease to govern the country, and adds that the honor of its Sovereign demands that His Excellency should require his Ministers to clear themselves.

The Montreal Herald, in regard to the revelations, says: "We publish this morning a series of documents, which we believe we may justly describe as the most extraordinary which ever saw light in any country enjoying the British system of Government."

But it remains for the intelligencer the organ of the Independent member for North Hastings, to strike an attitude and stand in the breach. He guards furiously, calls the Globe a foul fouller and Mollifies an adventurer, and accuses the Grits of misrepresentation, adding at the same time that he has not "examined" the evidence on which he makes these accusations. The man is mad. And finally this "Independent" member, who opposes Sir John when he is wrong, you know, asks his readers to suspend judgement. Considering all the circumstances a very grave suspicion attaches to all this debasing zeal.—Ontario.

The Watford correspondent of the London Free Press writing under date of Saturday says: an immense sensation and excitement has been caused here and at Petrolia by the elopement of the well known singer, Mrs. Tyndall, with a Mr. Brown, of Petrolia. Her husband last week gave her $250 to visit her mother in Toronto, and she had also his gold watch and chain. In company with Brown she went north from there stated as a buggy on Thursday evening, and it is supposed they have gone to the States together. She left her trunk, which is said to contain some valuables tagged, as this station. She is a fine looking woman, and has been quite "the rage" in these parts as a vocalist. It is said that was formerly a bathelist in one of the London Music Halls. Tyndall, the deserted husband, who had his arm broke in three places while coupling cars at Petrolia last Monday, is here seeing after the trunk. Mrs. Tyndall was announced to sing at the concert here next week. The people of Petrolia, Sarnia, Wardsville and their neighborhood, are greatly scandalized by the affair.

The ornaments of the ladies women are estimated to be worth $600,000,000. Children that your nothing else wear ornaments, and all the gold and women wear rags.—Globe.

The Municipal Council of Dalhousie held a meeting at Perth on the other day, at which the contingent Monmouth crop of 1873 was struck at 2,100,120 bushels. The estimate is over 100,000 bushels more than that of last year. Given the yield 2,000,000 bushels more than the estimate. What an equal weight the crop will be very large.

THE DUTY OF CONFEDERATE PRESS.

Several months have lately been chronicled in reference to the resignation of our Minister, Mr. Dodge. It is said he is about to resign, and that Mr. Beaubien will resign his seat in the Lower Legislature in favor of a prominent local politician, and try his chances for the Commons. If this be true we think Mr. Beaubien will find that the electors of North York will not be deceived again by his fair promises of independence, and endorse his conduct in the Local Assembly by sending him to the Commons to support the present corrupt Administration. Whether these rumors are true or not we cannot say, but it is clearly the duty of the Reform party to prepare themselves for any emergency, for as long as Sir John A. holds the reins of power every effort will be made to retain the constituency in his grasp, and we know not the day nor the hour the writ may be issued for a new election. The two last campaigns have been lost to the Reform Party by their indifference, local prejudices, and the fair promises of untried political adventurers. The consequence is, this county that once was represented by the most able statesmen of whom our country can boast, has now about the worst representatives, of when any county should feel ashamed. In view of the probability of an election, the Reformers should begin at once to work, and select some one outside of the Riding of known ability and political standing, against whom no local feeling or prejudice can be brought to bear. Not that we would cast any reflections upon the local gentlemen, Mr. Farnham, who contested in so able a manner the Riding at the last election, but it is well known that local prejudice, to a great extent, was the reason why he was defeated; therefore, we think the best means to uniting the Reform element in the Riding is to select a man outside of the County who will be an honor to the constituency in this day of our country's need. The Reform part in our Dominion are now trying to rid the country of the most gigantic crime of corruption that ever disgraced any nation, and if North York has the opportunity we hope to see her again at the front in defending the country's welfare.—Aurora Banner.

RIEL IN MANITOBA.

Riel continues to figure very unctiously in Manitoba. At merry-makings as well as political meetings he occupies a prominent, if not a first place, and is apparently the observed of all observers. At the late fete at St. Boniface, in celebration of Jean Baptiste's day, the ex-President read the address to the Archbishop, made two or three speeches and among all the leaders of the Runaway.

On Thursday a horse belonging to Mr. G. H. Green, of Otonabee, ran away in Ashburnham, going down Strickland's hill to the Little Lake. A woman, just Mrs. Green we understand, and baby and a boy were in the buggy, and were thrown out, the buggy upsetting, but fortunately they were not much hurt. The buggy was dragged along across bridge but not much damaged, and the frantic animal, endeavoring to jump into the old Ledgate lumber yard, left the buggy on one side of the fence in more pieces than one, but got away. He was soon caught and had not received much damage.

Ben Hur's Great Show

Is advertised to visit Peterborough on the 1st day of August, Friday next. The exhibition is said to be one of the best that has visited this section of the country.

TO REMEDY THE EVIL.

We clip the following from the Victoria Warder :—

The Orangemen and the Ontario Government.—Wherever the 12th has been celebrated throughout the Province the course pursued by the Ontario Government, in connection with the Orange Bills has been severely censured, and we notice that the Peterboro Examiner has been conspicuous in its attacks upon T. Stephenson, Esq., of Cobourg, and D. Ross Mitchell, Esq., of Port Hope, for daring to express their opinions on the subject. These gentlemen can well afford to laugh at the Examiner, for all it can say against them will not affect the trickery of the Ontario Government, or make Orangeism forget the treatment received at the hands of Mowat & Co.

The Warder, like all of that class of newspaper writers, cannot afford to give the facts of any case.

The Examiner did not assail T. Stephenson, or D. Marshall, for expressing their political opinions, but for their doing so at a time when brethren of opposite political views, from a sense of respect for the Order, and to maintain harmony among the brotherhood, would not have an opportunity to reply to the diatribes of political hacks, who care nothing for the Association except so far as condones to their individual aggrandisement.

The Examiner is not opposed to free discussion, but it is opposed to demagogues mounting the rostrum on the 12th of July to convert the Orange Association into a political machine, which must inevitably, destroy itself by virtue of inherent forces tending to its destruction, if every celebration is degraded into a political meeting to suit whoever may for the time gain the control of Orange opinions, which may not be the opinions of the members of the order. He is an enemy of the Association who attempts to prostitute it to the services of the vile, unholy alliance too often made by political leaders, with the sole object of their own gain to the eternal shame and disgrace of the brotherhood.

And who are Tom Stephenson or David Marshall, that they should come to Peterboro to dictate to more intelligent men what course we should pursue? The Examiner expresses the views of a numerous class of Orangemen who spurn dictation, and as sincerely the creatures who, void of decency and selfrespect, sought to turn the Peterboro celebration into confusion and disorder which always accompanies the speeches and howlings of the wolves who have got into the Order in Canada, and who delight to feed on the misery who create the brotherhood with holier and more devoted motives, but less designing.

Let the Warder and Tom Stephenson and David Marshall call a meeting of Orangemen to discuss politics, and guarantee free expression of opinions, and Orangemen of the county of Peterboro will not fail to attend such meeting and give sound reasons for the independence of the order from all parties, leaving each member to act according to his own judgement, uninfluenced by whiskey or clap trap.

Orangeism vaunts a boast of freedom of speech and liberty of conscience in all matters. But the freedom of speech, allowed by some of them, would be like what Mr. Robert Stuart would permit, when in Peterboro, viz : Beat the drum and howl to prevent a hearing ; and their arguments after the Dav Marshall style, vituperation such as is learned in bar rooms.

The Orangemen of the county of Peterboro advise such men to stop at home until they learn to respect themselves and the Order. The Warder need not hope to gain applause by the advocacy of the course pursued by his political friends on the 12th of July, here.

When a person has proved on article and found it good, and answering the purpose for which it is intended, he will not readily abandon it for one of doubtful reputation, or concerning which he knows nothing. We are led to make these remarks owing to the case always pursued by many who have used that celebrated and truly valuable horse-medicine known as "Darley's Condition Powders and Anodyne Horse Remedy." All are so well pleased with it that they will not use any other ; many have waited several weeks until the agent could obtain a new supply. There is nothing equal to it as a condition medicine, or for any complaint following the wind of horses. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hurd Allen's $500,000 [illegible] on the wrapper of the genuine Horse of Course. Sold by all medicine dealers.

THE PEOPLE'S JOURNAL.

The letters and telegrams given by Mr. McMullen, have as far as letters can, established the authenticity of John A. Macdonald's bill for enlightening the history and, corruption charged against him by Mr. Huntington.

They have now to meet Parliament and clear themselves of connection with Sir Hugh and his $350,000 ; and this no doubt will be attempted.

The arguments of the Conservative press indicate the line of policy likely to be pursued, viz : That Sir Hugh did spend his money to help his political friends ; but John A. is innocent. He didn't pocket any of it ; he used none of it for his own purposes—merely for election purposes. And Sir Hugh had a right to do what he wished with his own money. This will not satisfy the country, however, and we fancy it will not even satisfy the present House of Commons. Twenty-seven of the 200 are there, by virtue of Sir Hugh's gold. Shall they be allowed to continue to vote on matters affecting the country, while their hands are still filthy with the bribes ? It cannot be, and we hope to find honest men enough in the House to stamp this thing out.

As to Sir Hugh using his own money for what purposes he thinks right, we fancy no sane man will defend. If he may corrupt the first Ministers of the crown and at least 27 of the people's representatives, then he may as reasonably hire false witnesses, corrupt judges, and bribe jurist. In fact do anything, no matter how immoral, or destitute of honor and justice and truth, to suit his own avarice, or love of gain. It is said that John A will mortgage the Manse in August without an investigation. The temper of the people and of the House may not permit him to sit as Minister of Justice while he is guilty of the most glaring acts of injustice, bribery and corruption ever charged against any man.

SUICIDE.

SHOOTING AFFRAY—MAN KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

HUNTSVILLE, Ont., July 20.—This afternoon about four o'clock, while the Bracebridge and Bala Ball Clubs were playing a friendly game with the Beaver Club of this place, a heavy thunder and rain storm arose, obliging both players and spectators to run to the nearest place of shelter, which happened to be the Drill Shed. Some 200 had to take shelter there when in about five minutes afterwards the lightning struck the flag-staff, splintering it into shreds and scattering it in all directions. The field running from the staff into the shed, which caused for a time to be filled with small balls of fire, in its descent instantly killed one man, a Mr. Wm. Bagley, from the Tenth Concession, injuring many more others very severe strokes. On examination of the shed afterwards the carpenter and exit of the field be plainly seen and the wonder is that they did not lose their lives instead of one, who was sitting in the centre of a large group. Mr. Bailey leaves a wife and one child to deplore his loss.

SUICIDE.

A YOUNG WOMAN ALSO KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

BRANTFORD, July 19.—Yesterday afternoon a terrific thunder storm passed over this section of the country accompanied by hail and torrents of rain. The lightning played extensive havoc, destroying scores of Telegraph poles, and reading trees in all directions. It struck the house of a Mr. D[illegible] in the Township of Brighton Township, killing his eldest daughter, aged twenty-two, instantly ; badly burning his second daughter, and slightly burning two of his sons. It struck the chimney, and followed the stove-pipe ; the house was badly shattered, the windows and sashes broken, and one side nearly driven out. It also struck several barns.

VICTORIA SEMINARY.

The midsummer exhibitation of this excellent institution took place Friday morning week in the presence of a large number of parents and friends of the pupils. The young ladies were ranged in a semi-circle, facing the drawing room wherein the spectators were assembled, and when the city reporters call the tout ensemble was very effective. The examinations in history chemistry, etc., were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Smithett, and covered a wide ground in each ; and the young ladies displayed a remarkable proficiency that was very gratifying. In arithmetic and geography they were also unusually expert. The French class under Miss B. Smithett read a few pages of Gil Blas with extreemly creditable care and accuracy, and translated with such readiness that the audience thought they were reading English. A noticable and pleasing feature of the examinations was the practical bent given to every study. An objective or personal application was in various ways made of historical events, chemical facts or discoveries and arithmetical matters, and it was not a little interesting to hear the young ladies elucidate the atmospheric conditions and forces which are supposed to be known only by the "Old Probabilities" at Washington. These things demonstrate the instruction imparted at Victoria Seminary is of a solid and practical character, most likely to become useful in after life, and in these days of flimsy, helter-skelter education that is an important consideration. At the close of the examinations, which lasted over three hours, prizes were presented to the successful [illegible] by the Rev. Mr. Bolt, who in some felicitous remarks, expressing his pleasure at the many evidences given of the sound intellectual training received by the pupils. Strawberries and cream formed a pleasant termination of a pleasant morning.—Victoria Warder.

THE CENSUS.—The Monetary Times says that by an official notification from the Department of Inland Revenue traders and others are informed that the provisions of the present law relating to the weights of grain, seeds, roots, fruits, &c., will cease to have effect on and after the 1st day of January, 1874, and therefore all these articles when bought or sold by weight shall be specified by the quantity or parts of a quantal—that is one hundred pounds. Those, therefore, who after that date make contracts based on bushels will only be bound by the bushel of capacity—and not of weight. This important change may be attended with some inconvenience for a short time, but will on full trial prove as satisfactory as did the exchange of £. s. d. currency for the decimal.

MORE BARBARY.—We understand that the proper steps have been taken for presentation of a petition to the House of Commons, on its assembling in August, praying that august body that the Honorable Thomas Nicholson Gibbs be unseated on the ground of bribery and improper influence being used to secure his election. The evidence to be laid before the House is so direct, that it is hardly possible for themost partisan of Committees to reject it. In a word, even if the House is not dissolved, as is now anticipated, it is beyond doubt that the Minister of Inland Revenue will be unseated under the petition to be presented against him.—Ontario Reformer.

AFTER RAIN.

(Written for the Peterborough Examiner.)

O lovely eye to walk abroad,
The air is vocal praising God
For His most gracious rain,
Which for dry weeks we waited long,
But still drought made his hands more strong,
Our prayers seemed in vain.

The farmer spoke in mournful tones,
As though they were among dry bones,
And heard "Can these bones live."
When suddenly God's mercy broke
Their deathly slumber, each one woke
And to Him praises give.

So graciously in God's own way,
Rain from the clouds down came this day
Upon the parched earth.
Infused new life, new vigor gave,
Saved nature from a famine grave,
Her sorrow changed to mirth.

The fields glow all in varied shades,
For myriad yellow drooping blades
Raised from a drought bound sultry blur,
Have changed their hue, in one short hour
All quickened by the Heaven sent shower,
In greener robes appear.

The flowers look up with tearful eyes
And bloom afresh in glad surprise,
And sweeter fragrance spread.
While folding clouds reveal the sun
All smiling, while his rays each one
A rainbow's radiance shed.

Sweetly grand the dripping woods
Rejoice, new beauty gain intrudes
Upon its tranquil haven.
Its plumy shade in gladness lays
Sing, all inspired by lingering rays,
In glades of sweet wild flowers.

Let us, to whom, these marvels come
No gloomiest night in deepest gloom,
John nature's grateful psalm.
And in a covenant God rejoice,
While anthems sung with joyous voice
Float in the peaceful calm.

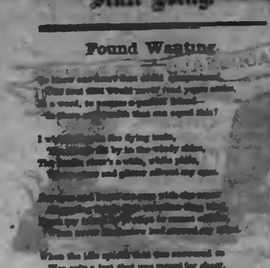
Found Wanting.



When the life opened that was measured so
We only a just that was meant for ghost,
And to hide the feeling I would not show,
The passionate pain, and the yearning fear.

It quickened half-heard; but night to the pulse,
While its stillness, and silence will silence still.
This liver to-day it is not the first,
Nor will be the last I shall have at his hand.

I hung hot and dizzy of a friend—alas,
Pride deigns the confession to him who is
But, learned, it never alright sense of pain;
It would have too little to do or to feel.

That dream fulfilled would suffice for me,
Hope and effort, and all desire
For this world that is, and the world to be,
Would rests on itself to a tongue of fire.

If ever my heart that has starved so long
Should find its manna, and take its fill—
Better to suffer, perhaps, and be strong,
Than rest in patience, and suffer to still.

For what is life but a fight to win,
That beats on an iron Fate's anvil and
And what but failure of life and pain
I may discover and win my friend!

—From The Aldine for August.

ODDS AND ENDS.

A crusty old bachelor says he thinks it is woman, and not her wrongs that ought to be redressed.

Sis, said one girl to another, I am so glad I have no beaux. Why so? asked the other. Oh, 'cause I can eat as many onions as I please.

A Kentucky paper gives the following warning: Delinquent subscribers should not permit their daughters to use this paper for a bustle. There is being an epoch days (Feb) on it there is danger of their taking cold.

The dashing style of dress with which a newly married woman appeared at a dance the other evening, created no more attention than the agile motion of her husband on the floor, which was remarkable in view of the fact that one of his suspenders was held by a match.

People who believe the current stories about intelligent dogs will read with pleasure that a lost dog in Cobourg, having seen his master's advertisement in one of the local prints, promptly went home.

The rage for ending female names with "ie" has had a disastrous result in Ontario county. A farmer named Ake christened his daughter Belle. She adopted the style of the Mollies, Susies and Jennies of that region, got some cards printed "Bellie," and now her name appears to a distracted world as Miss Bellie Ake.

Light Clothing.

The practice of laying aside flannels in spring is a most pernicious one. They are as necessary in July as in January. We can better do without woollens next the skin in midwinter than in midsummer. We do not get over-heated in winter; we do in summer; and the most frequent exciting cause of coughs, colds, and consumption is a rapid falling of the temperature of the body. All are familiar with the fact that a sudden checking of perspiration is always dangerous; very little exercise causes us to perspire in summer, and a very slight draft of air checks the perspiration; hence, colds taken in summer excite the most incurable forms of consumption. White woollen flannel is a most efficient guard against these sudden changes, because it keeps the heat of the body in, while it expels the excessive heat from without; it conveys the water of perspiration to its outside, while the surface next the skin is drier. We all know that silk, cotton, and linen next the skin get saturated with water, and if, for an instant, the slightest draft of air gets between the skin and the material, there is a charnel-like chill when that material touches the skin. The rule should be to wear white woollen flannel next the skin all the year round; thick in winter, a little thinner in April, and a gauze material on the first day of July; on the first of October, resume what was laid aside in July; on the first of December, put on the the thickest, extending to ancles and wrists. Old people and children, especially, need much care in this particular. The health of many a child is wholly undermined through parental disregard of the rules of health.

An Awkward Blunder.

It happened in a certain city, never mind what city. There were two pretty sisters who had admirers, one an eminent lawyer, the other a distinguished literary man. Literary men also sometimes leaves youngest daughter a widow. Some years roll away and the widow lays aside her weeds. Now, then, it happens that a certain author and critic has occasion, on a broiling day in summer, to call on the eminent lawyer, husband of the elder sister. He finds the lawyer pleading and sweltering in a crowded court; says the thus lawyer is suffering dreadfully from the heat, pitieshim, rejoices that he himself is not a lawyer, and, goes for a cool saunter under the shelterting trees of a fashionable park or garden. Among the ice-eating, fanned crowd there, he meets the youngest of our five sisters, and for a moment he thinks he is speaking to the elder.

"Oh! Mr.——" answered the lady, "how dreadful hot it is here!"

"You madam," rubbed our luckless critic; "it is hot here for I can assure you, the heat of this place don't a circumstance when compared with the heat of the place where our dear husband is suffering to-day!"

A horror stricken expression comes over the face of the lady; she rises from her chair, and flounces indignantly away; and——

"Disagreeable," soliloquised our wretched critic, "I have been mistaking the one sister for the other, and she thinks I mean to say that her husband is not in Heaven!"

Young men should no longer be described in law as spinsters, for they toil not, neither do they spin. It is equally certain that Solomon, in all his glory, was not arrayed like one of these.

Mr. Jessop, of South London, declares that on the morning of his apartment next month, he will shoot Mr. Hugh's claim to have won over twenty-seven members of Parliament, and warn that Sir Hugh be brought to the bar and interrogated as to the names of the members he had bribed as alleged.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine has any remedy gained such unbounded confidence in so many communities, or performed so many wonderful cures of pulmonary complaints, as the above. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men, it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its wide-spread character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a remedy for pulmonic complaints. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a protection against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are liable to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it is nowise injurious to any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we know of no remedy without a parallel in the history of Ague medicines. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in distressing cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Disorders of the Stomach, either resulting from the irritating influence of malarious localities, will be protected by using the AGUE CURE daily.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of feeding the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a it is unsurpassed. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil the finest linen, nor leave a stain upon the skin. Consequently nobody will object to its use. For sale by druggists and dealers in perfumery everywhere.

HAIR DRESSING,

THE REASONS WHY
LAZARUS, MORRIS & Co's
CELEBRATED
Perfected Spectacles,
AND EYE GLASSES,
have met with such extraordinary success and are so much in demand:
1st. Because they are to procure the qualities claimed for them.
2nd. Because they will sustain sights shown by the common glasses, and will often be found to improve failing sight to its natural state.
3rd. Because no glimmering or dizziness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed against injury to the Eyesight from improper selections.
4th. Because this system of fitting is an unerring guide to the true requirements of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this apparatus gratis our own.
5th. Because the glasses last several times many years without the necessity of change.
6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.
Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable value.

A PRAYER.

Gently close thy eyelids, darling,
Baby lay thyself to sleep,
While the spirit of our Father
Watches near thy soul to keep.

Angels hovering near thy pillow
Whispering words of truth and love,
Lead thee on through dreams of pureness,
Dreams of peace and heaven above.

One by one the stars are shining,
Shake the sun for in the west,
Up on high the moon is climbing,
Babies wraps herself in rest.

Spirit of our God, our Father,
Tell her, as she calmly sleeps,
How the great enemy is waiting
Over the within, and o'er the deeps.

Tell her keep her soul from blackened
With the blotted, hue of love—
Then the world may be enlisted
Blended fair daughter of heaven above.

Choice Literature.

Be Slow to Accuse.

Mother, I can't find my seventeen cents anywhere, said Arthur, coming into his mother's room with quite an anxious face. I put it right here in my pocket. It had been hanging up in the hall all day, and I do believe that new girl has taken it out She saw me have it last night and put it away.

Look in your other pockets, Arthur. A little boy who is so apt to forget things must not be too positive that he puts his money in his pocket-book. And never accuse anybody of stealing without a shadow of evidence. This is very useful as well as unkind. What if Emma should lose her money and accuse you of stealing it? Remember the golden rule.

But mother she looked guilty when I said I had lost it, and then I knew some one had taken it out of my pocket.

But very likely she did look confused on hearing you make such an unkind speech. She knew very well that there was no one in the house you could suspect of taking it but herself. You might as well have said so in plain words. An innocent person is more apt to look guilty, when accused of a crime, than one who is hardened in wrong doing. The latter usually has a face ready made up to suit the occasion. A gentleman once said that the most guilty looking person he ever saw, was a man arrested for stealing a horse which afterwards proved to be his own.

But what has become of my money, mother? It is gone, that is certain.

I believe you lost a five cent piece, that it was supposed a little neighbor had stolen, said his mother with a smile.

But I can't have lost this in the grapevine swing this winter weather.

But there are plenty of other losing places about. Did you have on that jacket last evening?

No mother, I believe I had on my every day coat, but then I knew I put it into my pocket book.

Do not say you know, my dear, for it may be an untruth. Please bring me your gray jacket.

Arthur walked slowly up to his room, but he walked back slower still and looked very foolish when he came into his mother's room again.

His mother comprehended it all at a glance, and smiled as she said—

I wonder who looks guilty this time.

Oh mother, I am sorry, but I did not mean to accuse Emma so wrongly. I remember now, just as plainly as can be, snapping up those three five cent pieces and two pennies in that bit of paper and putting it into my basket pocket.

It is a serious thing, Arthur, to make such charges as you did a moment ago, against an innocent person. What if you had mentioned it among your schoolmates? It would not be long before it would be told all about—Emma at Mr. Reynold's steals. I wonder they keep her. If she ever wished to get another place, it might be a very difficult matter. Though you corroborate the story afterwards, it would never undo the mischief. Many will remember no further than the story which never takes the trouble to correct itself. I will pay you dear boy, that you may learn to correct this sinful habit, and I hope you will pray with me. You will never suppress a bad habit until you pray over it. Then now, and tell Emma that you have found your money, and try to make some amends for your injustice by being more than usually thoughtful and obliging.

Family Attachments.

One of the saddest things about a large family who have lived happily together for years under the old roof-tree, is the scattering to distant homes, which takes place as they grow up, one by one, to years of maturity. It is often the case that, in the order and battle of business, fathers grow more and more enthroned, and finally brothers and sisters will sometimes lose sight of each other. These kindred ties are much too sacred to be thus lightly severed. It will be such a little while to write a letter, and the expense is so trifling, that these ones family tie an actress for the neglect.

A loving family circle, thus widely severed, adopted a curious but beautiful plan for keeping information of each other's welfare. The two most remote, on the first of each month, write a part of a page. This is then sent, accompanying the preceding letter to the family next in order. Some member of the household adds a little contribution, and sends it on to the next, and so on till the whole is complete. Then the family circle gets the round-robin home a part, and each one in large and small letters of his age, sickness, plans and anxieties of the others. Family gatherings are frequent in such households, and the old home attachments are kept cold.

Some, in particular, away from home are apt to grow very negligent of letter writing. They know the dear ones at home are in a perfect ecstasy of delight at the receipt of their every word, and so they neglect them. Many a time and oft have I known a letter that pilloried their fond hearts for childhood, they would be so thoughtless. Finally Elder sends for a letter himself, and could ride here for fifteen miles over creek and hollow by the fireside, they would not do so sparing of these messengers. Are we sensible of the reality in this particular?

Time Philosophy.

On a lovely day in the commencement of spring, a young lady who had been severely confined by the cares of home by the habits of her mother, went out to take a little exercise and enjoy the fresh air. After she had walked some distance she met a young gentleman, who was also taking a walk for the benefit of his health. They soon fell into conversation, and walked on together. The young lady was very much interested in the conversation of the young gentleman, who was a perfect stranger to her. He was a very intelligent man, and had travelled much, and was very fond of conversation. He was also very much pleased with the young lady, and was very much interested in the conversation. They walked on for some time, when the young lady looked at her watch, and found that she had been absent from home for more than two hours. She was very much surprised, and said to the young gentleman, "I must return home immediately, for I have been absent from home for more than two hours, and my mother will be very much alarmed about me." The young gentleman replied, "Why, madam, you have been absent from home but a few minutes." The young lady looked at her watch, and found that it had stopped. She then said, "Sir,

All the Plant and Material

Used in connection with the business, and the sale to the purchaser of the Mill, should he so desire, at a valuation.

The MILLS above mentioned are situate on the Monaghan Creek, near the waters of Rice Lake, and have already had almost cut over five hundred feet of standing Pine. There is a Town Railway from the Mills to the western edge of said Lake, at which the timber cut at the Mills can be put on scows and towed on the waters of Rice Lake to Port Perry, and the Victoria and the Cobourg Lord at Cobourg Lake, thus saving three re-handlings of the timber after the lumber may be conveyed by scows.
The LIMITS lie on and adjacent to the various Colonization Roads, and the logs and timber can be driven to the Mill with comparative facility. Gravel and level roads lie on either limit upon the said roads, and the purchaser of the property will be free from the disturbance that Lumbermen have caused where drives have to be constantly engaged in driving and repairing logs in the streams.
Upon the Limit in the Township of Cavendish there is a portion cleared and containing a Farm of 200 acres or thereabouts, under cultivation, and in connection with the Limit, in which there is a good road from the Town of Peterborough.

Further terms and conditions of Sale as to payments and obligations, will be made known at time of sale.

PETERBORO', AUGUST 7, 1873.

Municipal Items.

Young Reminder Lodge.

The regular monthly meeting for Aug., of the Young Reminder L. O. L., No. 1316, will be held next Tuesday eve'g, in the Orange Hall. A full attendance particularly requested.

Cricket Match.

A Cricket Math was played here yesterday afternoon by the Maple Leaf of this Town and the Norwood Cricket Club, which resulted in a victory of 32 runs for the former.

Right.

The Chairman of the School Board has at length adopted the legal edict of voting when seven votes or a majority is required. It will prevent much bickering and delay in future.

The Agricultural Show

Of South Monaghan and Hamilmore will be on the 30th of September this year. The prize list will be issued in a few days.

The Whistle-ring.

Received a new and large engine last week, and has otherwise undergone repairs. She is again making her regular trips.

Public Meeting—Next Friday.

There will be a Public Meeting of Electors of the East Riding at Keene, on Saturday the 9th inst., to give expression to their views in regard to an early investigation of the charges against the Government known as the Huntington charges or Pacific Scandal. There should be a large meeting, although the time is not opportune, being the middle of harvest, yet no one should remain at home. The meeting will be at 2 o'clock p.m.

Auction Sale.

There will be an extensive auction sale on the farm of Donald Gillanders, Esq., South Monaghan, on Thursday 14th inst. Mr. Gillanders is removing to British Columbia. He is boarding on the Chilliwhack river about 60 miles from Westminster. He has visited the country indeed, is now there himself, and speaks favorably of it, as to soil, climate and progress of the country.

The Crops in Harvey

Are better than they have been for many years, wheat especially promises a very full yield, hay has been a little light but spring crops of all kinds promise abundant returns for the labors of the husbandman.

Rain.

This is a very important feature in all business and no small loss is occasioned by irregularities in keeping it. We believe the chief constable does his utmost to secure correct time, but it is sometimes difficult to be secured. We believe Mr. Malcolm has an excellent clock, which could be purchased at a very moderate price, considering its worth. Now would it not be advisable for the Town Council to secure it, and then to make arrangements to have the time corrected, say twice a week, by telegraph, perhaps once a week would do. Uniformity would then be possible, there would be a reason to accept this time as correct, and the whole expense would be trifling compared with the loss occasioned now by the existence of several times all claiming to be correct, but not agreeing.

High School Inspection.

The following circular to the Trustees and Head Masters of the High Schools, and the Public School Inspectors has been issued from the Department of Public Instruction.

"Gentlemen—With reference to the Circular from this department, dated the 4th July instant, I have the honor to inform you that the Council of Public Instruction has thought proper, in consequence of representations as to the shortness of the notice, and the difficulty of holding the examinations for admission to High Schools, at the close of the Midsummer vacations this year, to adopt the following minute, which has been approved of by His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor in Council:

"Ordered—That in order to afford the amplest opportunity for notice and preparation for the first uniform examination for admission of pupils to the High Schools, that part of the thirteenth regulation, which requires the examinations for admission to the High Schools immediately after the close of the summer vacation, be suspended for the current year, and that those first examinations this year take place the first two days of the Autumn Term of the High Schools, namely, the thirteenth and fourteenth of October next."

Mr. Jamieson versus the Mail.

Mr. McMullen has commenced a libel suit against the Mail, damages placed at $50,000. The best Counsellors in Toronto have been engaged by him.

The Crops.

The prospects of a good crop in Canada this season are now accepted as beyond doubt, except as to hay.

Personal.

Mr. A. Graham of the Township of Otonabee, is now publishing, in book form, his "Leisure Hour Musings." The work will consist of about 300 pages and will be in a neat and very readable shape. Already he has a large number of subscribers and is daily increasing the number. It is expected that he will sell about 600 copies in his own township. He expects to have it ready for delivery at the first of September, or thereabouts. The pieces are all original and many of them of local interest. The spirit of the whole work partakes largely of the author's warm Scottish sentiment. As it will only cost 60 cents, it will be a cheap book considering the fact that the number printed will be under 1000.

Sunnyside Situation.

The Excursion held in aid of the Independent Band, on Tuesday evening last, was of great success, and all seemed to enjoy themselves. The Cobourg bands of our popular Rolls steamer, the "White-wing," did all in their power to have the evening pass pleasantly, and how well they succeeded requires to be told by those who so well enjoyed their selves on Tuesday evening last.

The Intercolonial Inspectorate Says:

"Mr. Charlton is about erecting a Lodge for himself on Pigeon Lake." He is getting tired of this vale world, and is seeking a place of retirement where John A. cannot influence him. Perhaps he is doing so for the sake of his party.

A Rumour

Was current here yesterday that Sir John A. Macdonald had committed suicide, but as it was not confirmed, it is believed to have been a hoax.

Personal.

We see by the Session Roll Supreme that Mr. S. C. B. Dean, formerly practising Law at Port Hope, and a brother of Dr. Dean of Keene, a Bar[illegible] having [illegible] for Mayor of the place, and [illegible] without opposition. Mr. Dean is [illegible] of his standing, but [illegible] in the city, but a little [illegible] years.

SCHOOL BOARD

Board met on Tuesday evening. Present: The Chairman and Messrs. McDonald, [illegible] Tupper, Gow, Kidner, Hall, Hall, Hamilton, Hall, Hall, Hall

PETITION TO THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

It will have been seen by our yesterday evening's telegrams that a mass meeting was held in Quebec, on Tuesday last, to consider the charges against the Government in connection with the Pacific Scandal. The election of day is to be regretted, but, unfortunately, our French-Canadian fellow citizens are not taught to keep the Sabbath as holy as the [illegible] it to be. The attendance at the meeting is reported at about 4,000, and addresses were delivered by gentlemen of all political shades, leading Mr. Dorion, who is a leading Government supporter. Resolutions were passed declaring, first, that the charges brought by Mr. Huntington were of a character to destroy all confidence in the Dominion Ministry and demanded instant investigation; second, that in spite of the necessity of investigation admitted by themselves, the Ministry did all in their power to retard or frustrate the same by offering to have it conducted by a Royal Commission, the members of which would be chosen by themselves; third, that, in the opinion of the meeting, the Ministry procured the disallowance by the Provincial Secretary of the Orchid Bill; fourth, that the majority of the Committee having refused [illegible] the disallowance papers from going on with the enquiry, a report to which effect will be laid before Parliament at its meeting on the 15th proximo, the meeting call upon members to be in their places on said date, and continue in session till the Committee [illegible] and the Ministry [illegible] on the report; and that a petition to this effect be presented to the House of Commons; fifth, that the meeting considers that these charges, from their gravity, affect the position of the Ministry even more unfavorably than a vote of no confidence, and they should not be allowed to transact the business of the country while such charges are hanging over them, and that the Governor-General be petitioned to interdict his Ministers from meddling with important business until the Committee has made its report; sixth, that the Governor-General in the above petition be also prayed not to prorogue Parliament till an investigation has been made. The seventh, and last, resolution affirmed the necessity of the North Shore Railway to the City of Quebec; recognized the services of Mr. Cauchon to that enterprise and denounced the intrigues that had for the time frustrated its passage then. This bit of "cheap" [illegible] out of place in this connection, but doubtless Mr. Cauchon and his friends thought the opportunity too good to be lost.

Mr. Tarte[illegible] declared that he would go over to the Opposition not only if the government were found guilty, but also if it went counter to the desire of Parliament to have the enquiry conducted by its own committee even without oath, or if it prorogued the House before an investigation was had.—Witness.

Items of Interest.

Sheriff Macdonald.

Of Goderich died on Thursday from the effects received about a week ago.

Drowned.

A man named McNeil was found drowned at Cobourg. He was from Baltimore.

Mr. Howley, a Returner,

Is the popular candidate for the Local House in West Montreal.

The Port Hope Times says:

The whole force of this Brigade Division will assemble for their Annual Eight Days' Drill in the town of Peterboro, on or about the 9th of September next. We understand an arrangement has been made by which the Force will perform its drill here next year.

Horrible Accident.

One of those horrible accidents incident to the haying season occured in the town of Owego lately. A little son of Samuel King, aged five years, lay down in the meadow where his father was mowing, and fell asleep. The father not knowing his son was there, struck the scythe into his face, and inflicted a wound that caused death in a few moments.

Blairton.

We learn that, as the train was nearing Blairton one day last week, a car load of Nitrate of Soda caught fire, caused by a spark from the engine; the soda was nearly all destroyed, as what was not burned was strewn along the track approaching the village. Unfortunately a number of cattle grazing in the vicinity licked up the soda, and in consequence died in a short time after.—Register.

Fatal Accident.

One day last week, a little son (about five or six years of age) of Mr. James Walsh, of Dummer, met with a very serious accident. At the time of the accident, he was on a load of hay, when he fell off the load under the waggon, one of the hind wheels passing over the little lad's chest, and seriously injuring his heart, from the effects of which he died shortly after the accident occurred.—Register.

The Aldine.

Every reader of the ALDINE for August is sure to be charmed with its beautiful and reasonable illustrations, as well as pleased with its fresh and piquant literary contents. A magnificent full-page marine view opens the number, from the pencil of M. F. H. de Haas, N. A., one of our great painters of water scenes. It is a truthful sketch of what may be seen almost any day on Long Island Sound. Mr. F. T. Vance, who has made the region a study, contributes a series of original pictures of the grand Adirondack mountains and lakes, which are very timely, as that region is now full of pleasure seekers. There is a page-picture of "Lake Colden," remarkable for its lights and shadows, depth and feeling; one of "Avalanche Lake;" another of "Calamity Pond Brook;" and a charming one of "Flume Falls of the Opalescence;"—four as fine views from the proposed great National Park, as ever appeared in an Art journal. A tender and eloquent full-page picture illustrates a poem called "A Good Dog." The remaining illustrations, all fine works of art, are "Group of Deer," by Specht; "The Explanation," after Herpfer; "Vot Dosah You Peddles?" a humorous sketch by W. M. Cary; "Shoo Fly; and "Picking Flowers." The literary contents of THE ALDINE keep pace with its gems of art, and are this month unusually interesting. There are two delightful stories: "The Crown Requiem," by Erckmann-Chatrian, and "A Graven Image," by Clara F. Guernsey. The miscellaneous articles are "Across the Atlantic in an Old Liner," from the pen of that graceful sketch writer, Charles Dawson Shanly; "Old New-England Traits;" "Nature's Forest Volume," pleasantly written by Elizabeth Stoddard, and a very amusing article called "Press Oddities," by Geth Brittle. Music, Art, and Literature receive, each careful attention. The poems in this number are, "Found Wanting," by Mary E. Bradley; "An Unpublished Sonnet of Edgar A. Poe;" "On the River," by Robert Kelley Weeks; and "A Good Dog," by S. Long. Subscription price $3, including Chromos "Village Belle" and "Crossing the Moor." James Sutton & Co., publishers, 23 Maiden Lane.

Stabbed.

On Saturday last Mr. Wm. Jordan Jr., of Preston, received a severe kick on the right side of his face and nose from a colt on the farm. His eye was bloodshot and the bone of his nose fractured; but, judging from present appearances, it does not seem probable that his countenance will be at all disfigured. On Tuesday, as Mr. Young, another farmer, was about to examine the face foot of one of his horses, the animal suddenly kicked and kicked violently, striking Mr. Young on the front of his thigh and knocking his body over both for some considerable distance, but fortunately not inflicting any serious injury.—Preston Gazette.

Mr. Justin Hinds

A Telegram from London states that the Government proposes upon the marriage of the Duke of Edinburgh with the Grand Duchess Maria of Russia to increase his yearly allowance to $150,000.

The Contents Statistics

Have been received and can be had by those entitled to them at the office of the Clerk of the Peace.

Gold Mining.

We see by the Review that a Company has been formed called the "Gosling Gold and Silver Mining Company," to purchase a "valuable mining property" in Maguesa. The experience of Gold Mining Companies in these regions does not warrant us to believe that the Gosling Company will find many Jupes. Before purchasing stock or taking shares, the public should know how much has been promised to "write the concern up." Nothing is ever done in this line without pay or a good promise to pay. Mr. Chas J. Blandfield is ready to dispose of shares on application, we are told. His name must prove of infinite value to the Company. Ten per cent down however will be of more infinite value.

Hunt's Wash Investigation.

The Review thinks that the House of Commons will not be in a better position until relieved of the presence of Mr. Ross, member for East Durham. The Editor of the Review would feel relieved of four for corruption if all the liberal members were removed. John A and Sir Hugh and all the corruptionists would then breathe freely and revel in their ill gotten gains.

WHOSE DUTY?

We do not intend to cast reflection on the Fire Brigade nor on its members, except when we believe their own and the general welfare demands a word of warning.

The Ashburnham fire teaches a lesson of unfitness, somewhere. At present we will leave the Fire Co'y to find where that unfitness is. We do not hesitate, however, to say it was not in the engine, nor yet in the management of the engine. It was too visible in other places to be laid on the engine.

The Chief Engineer says he had not sufficient hose, and that he has petitioned the Council for several hundred feet.—The Council then should provide sufficient length of hose to meet any emergency, and then the Firemen should be practised in the selection of officers, as 10,000 feet of hose, and 10 engines would prove useless without skill in dealing with the devouring element. We believe the members of the Brigade are ready and willing to do sacrifice for the welfare of the town and to save property, and without accusing any one, we ask the whole Co'y to search out the cause of failure, and try and remedy it. The polite interrogation: What the h—l do you know? won't satisfy a discriminating public.

We understand that if a fire took place on Hunter Street west to-day or to-night, that the engine could not get water at Doherty's Bridge. Now whose duty is it to remedy this? Surely a day will not be lost in attending to this, if the safety of property depends on it.

In the past the firemen have been seriously annoyed when criticism at their course at fires appeared. The object of criticism is to point out failure and its cause, so as to prevent a repetition of it. There is not a single firemen but we believe ready to take a hint when offered in kindness, and they should not look on what newspaper men write, as condemnatory unless they write what is not true, or when it is dictated by personal spleen.

GUILTY OR NOT GUILTY?

The day is fast approaching when the temper of the House of Commons will be tried anent this base swindle of Sir Hugh Allan and the darinz bribery of John A. Macdonald and Co. All honest men of both parties say let there be a full investigation. If John A be guilty, let the people know it, if he be innocent, acquit him. The Ontario Observer, an out and out supporter of the John A party, says:

"The undertaking was a gigantic one and such as but few men dare touch, but those who dare grapple with it appear to regard the undertaking as a profitable one and worth contending for, and even worth paying a large amount to secure, as now appears from the admissions of the parties concerned.—There were two companies who eagerly sought to obtain the contract, but Sir Hugh Allan, whose purse appears either to have been deeper or to have had a wider mouth than that of the rival company, secured, as he says himself, the return of a sufficient number of members to carry the charter and give him control of the contract.

"Mr. Huntington, a member of the Commons, by some means or other, got wind of Sir Hugh's wholesale corruption of members, and believing that the Government had touched the wages of sin, he rose in his place in the House of Commons and publicly charged the Government with having granted the charter to Sir Hugh Allan and others for a money consideration, said money having been employed in securing a ministerial majority at the late elections.

"This charge fell like a thunderbolt amidst hon. members, both sides of the House were equally amazed—struck dumb in fact. Mr. Huntington moved for a committee of the House to give him an opportunity of substantiating his charges or the Government an opportunity of vindicating their characters by refuting them. On neither side was there a word of explanation either given or asked Mr. Huntington simply made his motion without a word of comment. The motion was put to the House and voted down without a single remark."

After referring to the failure of the Committee to proceed, our contemporary goes again:—

The Premier offered to secure them the powers of a royal commission, thus enabling them still to take evidence on oath, but Messrs. Dorion and Blake objecting, the committee arose without doing anything. And here the matter was like to stand until the House assembled on the 12th prox. This created a general feeling of unrest throughout the country, and some of the papers with more zeal than discretion appeared to rejoice over the failure of the committee, and went so far as to predict that no further notice would be taken in the matter; that the committee having no report to make the House would be prorogued as soon as it met on the 12th. Now, however, Mr. Huntington has laid his charges before the public in black and white. The documents are extensive and over the signatures of the parties concerned; they are blank as night and sufficient to damn the reputation of all concerned, so far at least as the charges can be sustained.

The result of these whom Sir Hugh thought to could buttoned then given, when our readers heartily admits that,—

Sir Hugh, is cornered, blind from every pore,
Like the great Hannib wherever he was struck by the parliamentary rod
Streams of gold flowed abundantly. Sir George's committee wanted $90,000 more and Sir John's wanted $40,000 more; they could not get at Sir Hugh and they could not get at Sir Hugh and they quarrelled among themselves for the amount required.

Our contemporary then concludes in these words:—

That the published letters and correspondence of Sir Hugh, Senator Macpherson, Mr. McMullen and others demand an immediate and searching investigation will be admitted by every lover of his country and by all who value moral worth as of the first importance in our legislative halls. This is no party matter, it is evidently out of the range of party. The trampling upon a nation's honor, the trailing of her fair countenance in the mire, the bartering of a people's rights and interests for sordid pelf are beneath all party, and he who would endeavour to stifle or embarrass an early and searching investigation as a disgrace to his country, and ought to be hooted out of any party as its greatest enemy. No party deserving the name would wish to retain within its ranks for one hour any confessed guilty of the charges contained in the published documents; and would it not be an act of the most heartless cruelty to deprive those who are charged of the only means they can have (a searching investigation) of fully establishing their innocence before the country and the world.

Some are measly, and, we think, foolishly adopting the more than doubtful practice of abusing the prosecutor and witnesses even calling their honor in question. There could be no surer evidence of a weak case or of a great fear for the result. The country is indebted to every one who jealously watches over and protects its interests and fair fame.

LOST IN THE WOODS.

Some idea of the dangers and vicissitudes attending life in the backwoods may be gathered from the following incident:

On the 10th July, Mr Wm Hall, who resides near Thanet, P.O., North Hastings, Ont., went some distance into the woods to examine land that he intended purchasing. That night and the day following strange cries were heard proceeding from the woods, which at first were supposed to be those of a wild animal, but on learning that Mr. Hall had not yet returned, fears were entertained that becoming bewildered, he had lost his way. His friends at once instituted a search, which extended over several days, but failed to get any trace of him. In the mean time a deer hunting party in another part of the county struck his trail, and communicated the intelligence to others, a large party was speedily organised fully equipped with rifles, provisions and other requisites for making a protracted and thorough search in which they displayed wonderful sagacity and perseverance, as his trail was very difficult to keep, owing to the many turns he had taken and his frequently passing over broad ledges of rock, which threatened to baffle their skill. Yet they persevered, and we can imagine their joy when on reaching a rocky knoll about noon was answered by some one in the valley beneath. A very few moments sufficed to bring them to the spot from whence the answer came, where they found the object of their search busily engaged digging for water.

He had been gone eight days, during which time he had to live entirely upon berries, and for three days previous to being discovered he had no water. In his wanderings he "interviewed" a bear, deer, and other animals.

Though very weak, a few days with proper nourishment and rest, will under Providence, restore him to his usual health.—Com.

THE SASKATCHEWAN INDIANS.

Those who know these Indians look for predict trouble with them this summer, and give well-grounded cause for their apprehension of danger. Ex-Governor Archibald's inconsiderate message to them promising a treaty last year, has sowed the seeds of discontent and a want of faith in the promises of the Government which the continued delay in the administration of their affairs is fast deepening into a settled conviction that the Government do not intend to act fairly with them. On all hands they see their country being occupied, not only by exploring parties, but the recent surveys and allotment of the lands around the Hudson's Bay Company's posts, has given very serious grounds of offence to them, and may be the means of bringing us into hostile collision at any day with those powerful tribes to the West of us. Why it was necessary to run this risk with the Indians we cannot conceive, without it is that morbid desire which the land and survey officials seem to have to take care of the Hudson's Bay Company's interests. That astute corporation, of course, reaped the best of the land, and it must be surveyed for them at once, even when the consequences of the act may be at war with the Indians, who naturally wish a treaty, or at least a promise of one, before their country is handed over to a company which has always been distrusted by them.—Norwester.

MINISTERIAL HYMEN.

Under the heading "Mieux vaut tuer le diable que le diable nous tue" (literally, better to kill the devil than be the devil kill us) the Minerve devotes a long article to defending the great expenditure of money on elections by the Government. It is not for bribery; no, no; but there are so many things to be done, wheels within wheels, committees, sub-committees and other costly and complicated machinery designed to ensnare votes for the Government, that large sums must unavoidably be spent. Besides, it says, Reformers spend money in the same way, and Government must beat them at this. Both parties, in fact, at elections play the game of "beggar my neighbor," and the longest purse wins. Such is the Minerve's view of this election squandering, which is ruining the political morality of the country, and which it seems to consider quite a natural thing as long as the money can be got. It does not allude to the fact that the Reform party has long been trying to reform this state of things, and last session compelled the Government to adopt its measures for putting an end to electoral corruption; also, that it looks a great deal more likely that the Reformers are forced into spending money by the example of the Government, than the latter are made to do so by the action of Reformers. The Government expenditures at last general election was no enormous as to excite general remark, and the Pacific disclosures point to one source of supply therefor.

Applying its peculiar code of election ethics to the question for Montreal West, the Minerve, assuming that Mr. Jo[illegible] his friends were carrying the election by bribery, maintains that the G.T. Corporation his friends had a right to raise money in same way to exercise a counteracting influence, and resolved to get it. It says:

"It was in fixed circumstances like these that Sir George applied to the richest of all our friends for the necessary advances. There was no question either of a [illegible] or of Sir Hugh. Mr. Allan was acting as a friend of the party, for such a man as his fortune would allow him to give, and the latter as a loan.

In these circumstances Sir Hugh had other right to exercise, that of watching over the success of the immense enterprise that was to be confided to him.

We hold therefore that in his efforts to obtain a perfectly honorable object, even on the conditions imposed by Parliament, without the least favoritism on the part to be granted, Sir George and Sir Hugh [illegible] so far as he was able, in looking after the composition of the House. He subscribed largely to election funds, and he did well; he also gave loans, and he did equally well."

We have found this kind of doctrine before, and it will be interesting to the people of Canada to know that many are [illegible] to the principles of the [illegible] Ecclesiastical and Ignatian Loyola. "Kill your enemy or he will kill you." "The end sanctifies the means, such are two of the leading rules in the ethical code of the Dominion Ministry, as laid down by one of its most faithful expos. They mean to say in their pungent "[illegible] Sir Hugh Allan, means to have, put on "Old Man of the Sea" rotted on her back, whom she may have to carry about, no one knows how long, a spectacle to gods and men.—Montreal Witness.

THE MAN TO BE PITIED.—The position of Sir John Macdonald must be at present far from pleasing. He declared most positively in the House of Commons that there was not a word of truth in the Huntington charges. We may point out that the same answer was asked for and obtained by the Governor General. He now stands accused of having made these solemn assurances in the face of facts seldom equalled in their magnificent turpitude. We have Sir Hugh Allan's confirmation on oath of the authenticity of all the first batch of documents published, and we find from them that Mr. McMullen is a man who, by these two masters of finance, Sir Hugh Allan and Sir Francis Hincks was trusted to represent, in a way, a vast amount of American capital. We have, therefore, a fair ground for accepting his further statements, especially when confirmed in all material points by a Canadian senator. We have therefore unimpeachable ground to accept the documents published by him in a respectable paper, with the cognizance of various gentlemen who are known to be privy to their publication, as unquestionably genuine.

OLD AGE

I often think each tottering form
That limps along in life's procession,
Once wore a heart as young, as warm,
As full of life's thoughts as mine.
And each has lost his dream of joy,
His ever unsatisfied, pure romance;
Contemning when the blushing boy
First thrilled at hopely womanly glance.

And each could tell his tale of youth,
Would think his escape of love crimes
More pardon, more unselfish truths,
Than any tale before or since.
Yet, they could tell of tender hope,
All midnight paused in elastic shade,
Of days more bright than modern days,
And nights more fair than modern maids.

Of whispers on a willing ear,
Of kisses on a blushing cheek;
Each kiss, each whisper, far too dear.
Our modern lips to give or speak.
Of pastures too untimely stunted,
Of passions slighted or betrayed,
Of kindred spirits early blighted,
And fonts that blossom but to fade.

Of beaming eyes and tresses gay,
Blonde form and snowy brow,
And forms that have all passed away,
And left them what we see them now.
And is this? Is human love,
So very light and frail a thing?
And must life's brightest visions move
Forever on Time's restless wing?

Must all the eyes that still are bright,
And all the lips that talk of bliss,
And all the forms so fair to-night,
Hereafter only come to this?
Then, what are earth's best visions worth,
If we at length must leave them there?
If all we value most on earth,
Be long must fade away from ear?

Top Dressing.

During the months of January and February, 1871, we top-dressed a poor ridge of clay and gravel in one of our meadows with ashes, at the rate of about 150 bushels per acre. It was, and yet is, a meadow. The crop on that part yielded about a ton per acre. The next summer it yielded double the quantity; and the present year it promises fully as well, and I think the dressing with ashes will have a lasting, good effect.

On about four acres in a corner of the same meadow, table land, stony and tenacious, we spread 80 loads (two-horse loads) of thoroughly well rotted barn-yard manure last year, in July, on the stubble. At harvest time it had yielded less than a ton per acre. The manure was harrowed with one of Thomas' Smoothing harrows to distribute it. Now the yield of timothy promises finely, I judge at least two tons per acre.

The ashes seem to stimulate the growth of timothy especially, though all kinds of grasses are growing luxuriantly.

Numberless theories exist respecting the best way to apply manures. But the varying conditions of soil and climate are apt to throw such estimates out. Any farmer of average faculties for observation should be the best judge of what is best for his own land. Starting out with the proposition that any kind of fertiliser is good for any kind of soil, applied in any manner, it remains for him to demonstrate to his own profit the cheapest and most effectual application. This is about what there is in it.

For general practice, over wide extents of country, clover is, and always will be, the cheapest and readiest method of fertilising the soil. But I have plowed in hundreds of bushels of ashes, producing equally good effects, and much more lasting.

At the beginning of last winter I feared the "freezing out" of the timothy on a clay knoll in our young meadow, and staked off about an acre to be top-dressed with fresh horse-stable manure. The day after Thanksgiving the manure was spread on the snow with a fork as evenly as possible to do with the mercury at zero. Many of the masses of rough litter were frozen from one to three inches thick. The job was not fairly completed, but the ground was covered pretty well with these flakes and left in that condition. To-day (June 9) that part of the meadow can be discovered plainly from the road like a square on a chess board. The timothy is rank and strong, knee high, but the adjacent parts on the field are short and half bare. So much for top-dressing on snow.

We have about forty cords of a compost of muck and ashes, and a lot of well rotted manure, that we propose top-dressing the new meadow with as soon as the grass is cut. As a mulch, the mechanical effect will be good, and we will trust the rain and the dew for the balance. Lead hereabout is common gravel and clay drift, resting on Helderberg limestone.—"Country Gentleman."

Is Pea-Straw Good Fodder?—A correspondent says he has not found pea-straw as valuable for fodder as good oat or wheat straw.—Very likely. And yet good pea straw may be so cured and fed, as to be worth far more than any other straw, unless it is, choice bean-straw. It is more nitrogenous than wheat, oat, barley, or rye straw, and should be fed, to get out its full value, in connection with a small quantity of corn. Sheep that have a bushel of corn each per day will thrive more rapidly on pea-straw than on wheat or oat straw. The better plan is to give them all they will eat of both pea and wheat straw—say pea-straw morning and noon, and wheat or oat straw at night. But we apprehend the trouble with our correspondent is not so much in the way of feeding, as in the method of cutting, curing, and preserving the pea-straw. If the peas were allowed to stand till dead ripe, and after cutting were allowed to remain in heaps in the field day after day without turning and were exposed to rains and dews until nearly all the soluble matter was decomposed or washed out of the straw, and half the leaves were knocked off them before they left the field, and they were stacked in a damp condition, it is not difficult to understand why "the sheep and the chemist do not tell the same story" in regard to the value of the straw. On our own farm we have found pea-straw from a luxuriant crop of peas, cured without rain, nearly as valuable as clover-hay.—American Horticulturist.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that when it does cure it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cases are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable they operate with such mildness that no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular actions to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first cause of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaints and its various symptoms, Bilious Diarrhœa, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colics and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this extraordinary remedy has gained, is derived from its [illegible] many of which are truly marvellous. Invigorating cases of debilitating disease, where the system, seemingly saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it, have [illegible] effects and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous constitution until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in short [illegible] in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues at home.

For the relief and cure of the most destructive diseases of our race, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the most effectual of the organic derangements of the system, and invigorates the elements of [illegible] and disease, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to bend before [illegible] and, by and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of the hideous forms [illegible] the system or among the [illegible]. In this manner [illegible] may be [illegible] deposited in the lungs or heart, or [illegible] in the form of tumor, it [illegible] to its presence by symptoms as the ulcer or tumor assumes the [illegible] of that name. Hence the [illegible] use of a bottle of this [illegible] will [illegible] into healthy action [illegible] of disease.

Think on the Past.

Think on chapters, the grudge to pay
For Education of to-day,
For in days past when it was mere,
Superstition reigned everywhere.

Unchristened women who in death lay,
Could not be buried through the day,
Darkness their portion, without light
Such women were buried, under night.

If fever snappies them overand your pail;
You very soon would hear of death.
To turn the soil upon the fire
Would keep some Witch from her desire.

If too much whisky some label man
Fell o'er the cesty banks his neck bone,
Or off his horse fell causing harm,
Twas Some maid with who got the blame.

If any one tak sudden ill,
Or an untimely birth befall,
Some dame could woman no for by
Against was raised the hue and cry

That she was seen in open air,
That night in shape o' cat or hare,
Or other metamorphosed
Where they had converse of the dial.

When education was no more
The folks believed no every where,
The ghosts and witches then so rife,
Young folks they durst not for their life

Go out at night, when it was dark,
Least they should meet some "nasty mark,"
Or some said witch should past them glide,
Who on her broom stick took a ride.

What they had heard in early day
Was in them when their heads were grey.
At ghosts and witches and such stuff,
Youth at the present time would laugh.

Since learning's spread, whichcraft has fled
Libertine the gusts of all the dead.
Reviewing the past, tell everyone,
The great good education's done.

Counting a Hundred.

A Danbury man named Reuben recently saw a statement that counting one hundred when tempted to speak any angry word would save a man a great deal of trouble. This statement sounded a little singular at first, but the more he read it over the more favorably he became impressed with it, and finally concluded to adopt it.

Next door to Reubens lives a man who has made five distinct attempts in the past fortnight to secure a dinner of green peas by the 1st of July, and every time has been retarded by Reubens' hens. The next morning, after Reubens made his resolutions, this man found his fifth attempt to have miscarried. Then he called on Reubens. He said:

What in thunder do you mean by letting your hens tear up my garden?

Reubens was prompted to call him a mud scoot, a new name just coming into general use, but he remembered his resolutions, put down his rage, and mildly observed:

One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight—

Then the mad neighbor who had been eyeing this answer with a great deal of suspicion, broke in again.

Why don't you answer my question you rascal?

But still Reuben maintained his equanimity and went on with the text:

Nine, ten, eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, sixteen—

The mad neighbor stared harder than ever.

Seventeen, eighteen, nineteen, twenty, twenty-one—

You are a mean ackass, said the mad neighbor, backing toward the fence.

Reubens' face flushed at the charge, but he only said:

Twenty two, twenty-three, twenty-four, twenty-five, twenty-six—

At this figure the neighbor got up on the fence in some haste, but suddenly thinking of his pens, he opened his mouth:

You mean, low lived rascal, for two cents I would knock your cracked head over a barn, I would—

Twenty-seven, twenty-eight, interrupted Reubens, twenty-nine, thirty, thirty-one thirty-two thirty-three—

Here the neighbor broke for the house and entering it violently slammed the door behind him, but Reubens dare not let up on the enumeration, and so he stood out there alone in his own yard, and kept on counting, while his burning cheeks and flashing eyes eloquently affirmed his judgement. When he got into the exercise his wife came to the door in some alarm.

Why, Reubens, man, what is the matter with you? she said. Do come into the house.

But he didn't let up. She came out to him, and clung trembling to him, but he only looked in her eyes and said:

Ninety-seven, ninety-eight, ninety-nine, one hundred—go into the house, old woman or I'll bust ye.

And she went.—Danbury News.

Testimony of the Bible.

The following is a collection of the testimony of the great, the learned, and the wise to the value of the Bible, from the standpoint of worldly wisdom as well as of genuine religion:

JOHN MILTON—God has ordained His gospel to be the revelation of His power and wisdom in Christ Jesus. Let others, therefore, dread and shun the Scriptures for their darkness, I shall wish I may deserve to be reckoned among those that admire and dwell upon them for their clearness. There are no songs comparable to the song of Zion, no orations equal to those of the prophets, and no politics like those which the Scriptures teach.

COLERIDGE—I know the Bible is inspired because it finds me at greater depths of my being than any other book.

THOMAS CARLYLE—A noble book. All men's book! It is one of the first objects that meets the eyes of the never ending pardon—man's destiny and God's ways with him here on earth, and all in such true flowing outlines, grand in its sincerity, in its simplicity, in its epic melody, and repose of conscious assurance.

SIR MATTHEW HALE—It is a book, full of light and wisdom, will make you wise to eternal life and furnish you with directions and principles for guide and author unto life wisely and prudently. Therefore, as a book like the Bible for excellent learning, wisdom and use.

QUEEN VICTORIA—This is the source of England's greatness.

THE CHIEF ALDERMAN OF BURMAH—The Bible is the only treasure of substance, and that only because that can bind together hearts.

JOHN ADAMS—I have examined all, as well as my narrow means, my straightened circumstances and my busy life would allow me, and the result is that all the doctrines I have ever found in the Bible to be the best in the world. If mysteries some of my reason cannot penetrate, all I perceive to be most beneficial, I perceive no more tendency to superstition.

BENJAMIN ADAMS—I speak as a man of the world to men of the world, and I say to you "Search the Scriptures!" The Bible is the book of all others, to read at all ages, and in all conditions of human life, not to be read once; twice or thrice through and then laid aside, but to be read in small portions of one or two chapters every day, and never to be interrupted unless by some overruling necessity.

WILLIAM H. SEWARD—The whole hope of human progress is suspended on the ever growing influence of the Bible.

JOHN MCLEAN—If its rules were faithfully observed by individuals and communities the highest degree of human happiness would be attained.

DANIEL WEBSTER.—I have read it through many times, I now make a practice of going through it once a year It is the book of all others for lawyers as well as divines, and I pity the man who cannot find in it a rich supply of thought and rules for conduct.—Exchange.

A Methodist Minister on Rational Amusements.

The Rev. Mr. Kendrick, a Methodist of New York, has been preaching sermons which attract attention. He says:

"It is the duty of parents and Christians "to consider whether or not they "shall furnish the young with rational "amusements at home or drive them to seek it elsewhere. The Christian father who provides dancing at home does good, for he furnishes a healthy exercise and gives young people a favorable idea of Christianity, but dancing in ball rooms, surrounded by drunkards and blasphemers, carried into the late hours of night, mingling all classes of character together becomes an evil and a dangerous one. The enjoyment of dancing in a proper form, at proper hours, and in proper places, complies with the demands of nature, but the abuse of the amusement is sinful and dangerous. Some ask it Ss. Peter, St. Paul or St John would have danced, but' there are many things which are done to-day which would have appeared ridiculous in their time, such as Peter with a swallow tail coat, or John running with a fire engine. The times changed and with them the customs of the people."

The Rev. Mr. Kendrick's ideas of dancing do not often find expression in the pulpit, especially in the pulpit of his church —Ed.

What an Old Man has Noticed.

I have noticed that all men are honest when well watched.

I have noticed that purses will hold pennies as well as pounds.

I have noticed that in order to be a reasonable creature, it is necessary at times to be mad.

I have noticed that some men are so honest that necessity compels them to be dishonest in the end.

I have noticed that silks, broadcloths and jewels are often bought with other people's money.

I have noticed that whatever is right with a few exceptions—the left eye, left leg, and the left side of a plum pudding.

I have noticed that the prayer of the selfish man is "Forgive us our debts," while he makes everybody who owes him pay to the utmost farthing.

I have noticed that he who thinks every man a rogue is very certain to see one when he shaves himself and he ought in mercy to his neighbor, to surrender the rascal to justice.

I have noticed that money is the fool's wisdom, the knaves reputation, the poor man's desire, the covetous man's ambition and the idol of all

I have noticed that all men speak well of all men's virtues when they are dead, and that tombstones are marked with epitaphs of the good and virtuous. Is there any particular cemetery where the bad men are buried?

The Borrowers.

Our folks did not like the Crows and John did not come often, but when he came to borrow. Now it may be easily thought by the uninitiated that a man could not get much "the better" of you of borrowing; that if you found he did not back the thing he had already borrowed, just "strut down the gates on him," and deny him? But what would you do with a man who wanted to "borrow your name" on a note of two dollars he was going to be good for? Or wanted to borrow a fine shirt to wear on a visit?" and afterward told you "that shirt was kinder tender, and came apart a good deal in the wash." Or would send to borrow a pair of woollen socks; an instead of returning them (?) let you understand they had got "some considerable holes in them, and Jenny hadn't any of the right yarn." Or how would you either refuse, or get any return for "a drawin' of tea"—or "a few nails," or "a board to mend a hole in the roof, till he could get some to become straight?" Or when his children come to borrow "a mess of of red currants," and wanted to know if you would take raspberries for them? when you knew the last wild raspberries were gone—or when they wanted to borrow a little of that sheep you killed last night; or and you wants to know if you'd take the scalp of it in—they meant out of the flock?" how were you going to protect yourself? The first was, if he was a neighbor at all—and he was, and a kind hearted one—you had put up with all this. John was really a liberal man, especially in respect of future or contigent things. Once he was helping us to[illegible] away wheat in the barn. I had often thought what a fine thing it would be to have that big mow full of sweet-chewes all my own? Perhaps that day I said so—I don't know, but John began wishing he had the same mow full of gold. "And what would you do with it?" I asked. "Well," said he, "I know what I'd do with some of it; Pd, you, half a bushel of it!" I thought again, it was not much among the thousand millions whence it came! I do believe he spent much of his time in dreaming. And I do not doubt but that his dreams, gay and fantastic as might be some of them, were happy ones. Why is it we envy children's dreams? It is a serious thing for a man to have lived the chief part of his days and done nothing. To have the higher aims of his every youth dieting from him now so far that he feels he had indeed grown up the parasite. The world has done nothing for him; [illegible] time; those who do not order; about and drive [illegible] and be Hermits, [illegible] a man who has never begun to live for it.—New Dominion Monthly.

The Whistling.

This beautiful steamer is increasing in public favor, crowds of passenger, pleasure parties and fishing parties daily go down the river and across the lake to Harwood and other places. In consequence of this increased patronage, Mr. Calcutt finds it necessary to add Wednesday to the regular trips to Harwood and Gores Landing, for the benefit of those who seek a day's pleasure on the river. The "Whistlewing" has undergone complete repairs, a new engine of larger power has been put in her, and her speed and power in consequence are very much improved, which will enable the steamer to make her trips in shorter time and thus allow pleasure parties a longer time to enjoy themselves.

A Full Stop.

As Mr. McCabe, baker, was driving down George street, on Sunday, his horse stumbled and fell, the hind part of the animal turning over, fell at right angles to the waggon, the shafts of which went under him, and some thought were forced into his body, as it really appeared to an onlooker. Mr. John Brown and others relieved him from the harness, dragged him off the shafts, when he got up nothing the worse of his somersault. Mr. McCabe soon put on the harness, got the animal attached to the waggon, and went on his way rejoicing.

Port Hope Public School.

At the last meeting of the Port Hope Public School Board, the Finance Committee submitted estimates to meet the requirements of the School to the 31st of December, amounting to $4,982. These estimates evidently included only half yearly salaries of teachers, 13 in number, and $600 for a writing master. In the estimate there is also $1,800 for a new school house.

Removal.

R. H. Bryant, Practical Upholsterer, and wholesale dealer in fashionable styles of upholstered work and material, has removed to a new and commodious store, in Bradburn's block, next door to Hopkin's Saddlery, George Street. He has largely increased his stock, and has now better facilities for doing business. He hopes to merit a continuance of the increasing patronage which of late has increased so rapidly as to compel him to remove to larger premises. He respectfully solicits inspection of his work at his new stand.

A Change.

The Cornwall Freeholder intimates that Sir John A. Macdonald, who will resign of necessity, but will get Sir Alexander installed as Premier to prevent "Grit" Rule. We must wait a little before accepting this statement as true.

Mr. Orr's.

We understand, has leased the old Bank of Commerce building, Hunter St., for twenty-one years, and is now fitting it up for a hotel.

Lunatic.

An unfortunate man named Duggan, a carpenter, has been committed to jail, in the wildest state of lunacy, from the effects, it is believed, of strong drink.

Port Hope.

A Constable named Johnston arrested Mr. Scriven of that place for street preaching, on Saturday. Shame on him! Mr. Scriven is a most worthy christian, whose efforts to do good should be encouraged. The Guide says, "several young men fearing he would be kept in confinement during Sunday, went to procure his release, but found that C. Brent, J. P., had already set him at liberty. Mr. Scriven, on Monday morning appeared before the Police Magistrate, who told him to cease preaching on the front streets on Saturdays." The P. M. evidently does not comprehend the mission of the Master whom Mr. Scriven serves, The good sense of the people of Port Hope condemns the act of the Constable.

Personal.

Mr. A. Campbell, senr., of Keene, left this morning for a visit to his native county Scotland. We wish him a pleasant trip and a safe return.

The Proceedings at Ottawa

The Governor-General Prorogues Parliament,

A Royal Commission is Appointed.

By Special Telegram to the Examiner.

OTTAWA, 13th.

This day at 3 o'clock, P. M., his Excellency, the Governor-General, proceeded in state to the Chamber of the Senate in the Parliament Buildings, and took his seat upon the throne.—The Members of the Senate being assembled, his Excellency was pleased to command the attendances of the House of Commons, and that House being present, his Excellency the Governor-General was pleased to close the first Session of the Second Parliament of the Dominion with the following speech:

Hon. Gentlemen of the Senate, Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

In relieving you from further attendance in Parliament I beg leave to convey to you my best thanks for the diligence with which you have applied yourselves to the performance of your public duties. Among the measures you have adopted are laws of great importance to the well-being of the Dominion. The interests of trade will be promoted by the Act relating to the Inspection of the Staple Articles of Canadian Produce, as well as by the Statue regulating Weights and Measures. The several Acts respecting our Merchants Shipping will greatly tend to the success and developement of that great branch of our National Industry and the protection of the lives of seamen. By the Act relating to the trial of Controverted Elections of Members of the House of Commons, you have adopted the system which is now in successful operation in the Mother Country.

I sincerely congratulate you on the admission of the Colony of Prince Edwards Island as a Province of this Dominion.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

In Her Majesty's name I thank you for the supplies you have so cheerfully granted. They will ensure the vigorous prosecution of the great public works so imperatively called for by the wants of the growing country.

Honorable Gentlemen, and Gentlemen:

I have thought it expedient in the interests of good Government to order that a commission should be issued to enquire into certain matters connected with the Canadian Pacific Railway, to which public attention has been directed, and that the evidence adduced before such Commission should be taken on oath. The Commissioners shall be instructed to proceed with the inquiry with all diligence, and to transmit their report as well to the speakers of the senate, and House of Commons as to myself. Immediately on receipt of this report, I shall cause Parliament to be summoned for the despatch of business to give you an early opportunity of taking such report into consideration, meanwhile I bid you farewell.

A CRIME.

Ninty five members present protested against the action of the Government.

The severance of the religious bonds in Spain under consideration in the recent debate in the Italian Parliament on the expenditure of Religious corporations. The Papal revenues for religious purposes amounts to $600,000, while that from voluntary contributions, presents, offerings, and church collections amounts to $300,000.

NOW LOGICAL?

The Tory press is hardly met to make the people believe that George Brown got fifty thousand dollars from Sir Hugh Allan. They base the assertion on the statement of Sir Hugh where he places $50,000 for Geo. Brown. He afterwards, however, asserts that Mr. Brown will have nothing to do with Sir Hugh's Company. If he took $50,000 he is not repaying Sir Hugh well for it. It is claimed that every man has his price, thus wishing to infer that Mr. Brown has his price also. Perhaps he has, but if so, Sir Hugh didn't reach it.

Mr. McMullen says Sir John's price was found. One ten thousand after another soon overcame the pureminded John A. He got $100,000 for himself and friends, how much more is not yet known. John Hilliard Cameron got one of those indefinite loans of $5,000 endorsed by Sir Hugh and paid at pleasure—that is, never. Twenty-seven statesmen had their price, and the price of many others was found by Sir Hugh.

Formerly they retained power by means of weak Reformers going over to them for the love of office. This at length ceased, and they had to use money to bribe even their own party.

But they did not succeed in measuring George Brown's desire for gold. If they did not, why talk about $50,000 to George Brown, unless they can prove he received it, or was bartering for such a sum?

They are only trying to hide their own character by attempting to blacken the character of others.

MUNICIPAL LOAN FUND.

The matter of the Town indebtedness to this Fund has been before the Council for some time, and the Government furnished the Council with a statement of their calculations, asking for full investigation before a final settlement. We believe the Council had the matter under consideration, and were about communicating with the Govern't on a settlement, and were endeavoring to obtain a release from it altogether by giving up the sewerage paid by the Town, instead thereof.

The Review, in a praiseworthy manner went into the calculations and gives the following figures showing a little discrepancy—

The Government total	$72,43
The Review total	69,975
Balance or difference or error in Government calculation	2,465

Which calculation the Review makes at $6,455. But this may be a typical error.

Mr. Edwards makes a calculation which reduces the Town liabilities $5,056-72. This statement has been forwarded to the Government according to their request, and a reply will be received perhaps in a few days. It is an easy matter to make an error in so many figures as are necessary in such calculations, and the fact that Mr. Carnegie made the trifling error of about $3,000, proves that his figures require investigation before reception.

Notwithstanding a flourish of trumpets about political capital, and a loss to the Town, the fact that the Government submitted a statement, requesting investigation, shews how anxious they are that the town should be fairly dealt with according to the terms of settlement proposed by the Act for that purpose.

GIVE THEM A TRIAL.

During the Election succeeding the Act of Confederation, we were again and again told by the John A. Macdonald party:—There is now no party. There are no principles to contend for. The (then) present party commence now with a clean sheet:—Give them a trial! Give them a trial. In vain did we with others, urge that the same men who had misgoverned the country for 13 or 14 years, could no more change their ways than the Leopard could his spots. The people were warned and earnestly besought to reject them as infectious; the men who had corrupted their own party were debasing their opponents by offering them bribes; who encompassed sea and land to retain their office, and were as ready as they had ever been to sacrifice their country for the love of mammon and office. The cry, "Give them a trial," prevailed for the time. They have had a trial, and what is the result? The evils that were complained of have continued. Corruption has been perpetuated. Sectional legislation has not abated. Bribery has increased—until it may truly be said the whole head is sick; the whole body politically corrupt. It was well known that previous to Confederation every contract was let with a view to securing support, no matter how unfit the contractor, or how injurious to the interest of the province. Funds were obtained in this way by which election contests could be carried, and even this county has been bought up with the money of contractors of the Ottawa Parliament buildings. All this was plainly laid before the electors, but so tired were they of the contests that had been waging so long, first for responsible government, against the family compact, the settlement of the Clergy Reserves, the predominance of Lower Canada influence, and to obtain Confederation that they were willing to hope the best, and await results. Their hopes are now disappointed. The fair trial has proved disastrous to our honor and our welfare. Sectional Legislation even more fatal than before has been forced on the Dominion in the Manitoba Act, in taking in British Columbia, and in giving "better terms to New Brunswick." Corruption has been strengthened in the Intercolonial Contracts, and bribery has received an unparalleled impetus in the now notorious Pacific Charter Scandal. The fair trial has lasted about six years. Will any one give us a recital of a single wise act originated by the party on trial, or a movement to protect the people from the ravages of the conscrants who feed on them? On the contrary, these no-party men have obstructed wise legislation, prevented purity at Elections, opposed the trial for bribery by judges, so that partizan committees might have the control, and prevent justice, and protect them from punishment. The evils of the past have been yearly receiving force and boldness, so that now many men are found the defenders of deeds that once would have caused them to shudder.

A [illegible] Country stands aghast with astonishment at the wholesale [illegible] of Government, Ministers of the Crown, newspaper editors and proprietors, religious teachers and [illegible]. The whole body politic is being corrupted, and such an extent as to cause men to shudder for the future of our Dominion, unless some sharp and efficient remedy be at once applied.

In vain many members fall on that the cancer of power, the people, are corrupt. In vain may they tell us, both parties are corrupt and guilty. In vain non-politicians whose point is the well to present satire, while they have been aiding and abetting the crimes of Ministers by upholding them, in their writings, or by sitting looking idly on, until the disease has gained strength and the body become weakened by the malady. In vain may we look for a cure while preacher of peace and truth are the strongest and warmest advocates, too often, of all the corruption and immorality that has caused the present crisis.

The mass of the people are influenced by leaders, their leaders are influenced by party and gold, in this case to the tune of $358,500. Moral guides are on the streets as busy as the most corrupt partizans, not a word is heard against the evils, in their perorations, unless in such a way as to abet them in one party but condemn them in another. Can we hope for better or purer or wiser councels under the circumstances?

The men in power have had a trial, are their friends satisfied with it? They cannot be—they are not. And yet their eyes are so blinded by party views, or their hearts so corrupted by gain or the hope of gain, that they defend the wrong and oppose the right very often.

A crisis has about arrived. The present party in power cannot retain their seats with such overwhelming proof of guilt against them. A very short time must compel them to give place to others, let us hope to honester and better men. Are the people alive, to their responsibility in seeing that none but trustworthy men shall be again sent, to disgrace our Parliament, dishonor our Country, corrupt the people and barter our priviliges for filthy lucre.

CRICKET MATCH—LAKEFIELD vs. MAPLE LEAF.

On Monday last the Maple Leaf Cricket Club played the return match with Lakefield, which resulted in a drawn game, as time was called at 7 o'clock, it having been agreed to play until that time.—Owing to the extreme weather it was impossible to expect average play from either clubs, as is shown in the score.

The Maple Leaf inform us that notwithstanding the torrents of rain that fell the usual large attendance of spectators were present, the neighboring windows being filled with the fair sex.

After the wickets were drawn, both Clubs sat down to a sumptuous lunch at which ample justice was done. We hope before long that another match may be arranged between these clubs, that entire satisfaction may be given to both. The following is the score:

BOARD OF SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

The following communication to the Board was omitted in our report of the last meeting. It had been submitted before we entered the room, and on going to Mr. O'Beirne's office for the minutes he was absent, and remained so until too late for that issue.

Peterborough, July 8th, 1873.

To the Chairman and Board of School Trustees.

Sir and Gentlemen—So many have taken up the School debate here that I don't see why I should not beg to make the following observations, viz :—

Last winter I sent one of my sons to the Collegiate Institute and requested the Principal to give him a commercial education, meaning thereby, that he should get such a knowledge of Book-keeping, and other branches of a plain English education, as would fit him for the ordinary work of an office. I intended to place him in charge of my books, and wished him to obtain such an education as would be of some practical value to him.

Mr. Dixon informed me that as far as was practicable he would see that he received such. He was placed in one of the upper classes and sent down to a lower one, to learn book-keeping, which he did by copying some forms out of a book-keeping book which he knew nothing, at the end of the term I took him away as I found he was spending his time to no purpose. He knew no more of book-keeping than when he went there.

Now gentlemen, I have paid School taxes for a number of years, and it seems strange that when I wish one of my sons to obtain an elementary business education, there are no facilities at this Institute to obtain such.

You seem to have no difficulty in spending several thousands of dollars for classical and high education, and yet you cannot find means to provide that instruction which the great majority of the ratepayers need for their children. Why should I be compelled to pay for the higher education of others, when I cannot get a commercial education for one of my sons. I am not the only ratepayer who has this complaint to make. Our schools are costing an large sums of money, but if they are to be managed in this manner, it would be better for us to return to the old system, when a plain education could be obtained in every common school, which we cannot now obtain in our high school.

As a ratepayer, I have a right to demand that the provisions of the Law, which provides for Commercial Education in our Schools, be complied with, and I do not think you are doing your duty when this is neglected to the injury of those pupils who are sent there and compelled to learn branches which will never be of any use to them.

I remain respectfully,
THOS. CHAMBERS.

Mr. Edwards moved that Mr. Chambers' communication be referred to the Principal, with a request that he report on it at the next regular meeting.

A Boy Burned to Death.

A boy 14 years and 8 months old, named Edwards, stopping with a friend at Bowmanville, was burned so badly on Friday last, that he died in a few hours. It happened in this way :—He and another boy were alone, and he appears to have conceived the idea of cooking a rice pudding for himself and companion to partake of that night; and about the middle of the forenoon started a fire in the kitchen cook stove, for the purpose mentioned. The state in which affairs were found afterwards, indicate that the fire must have been slow in burning, and that the lad having removed one of the stove covers took a large oil can and was pouring the oil into the stove, upon the wood, in order to make it burn, when the oil instantly ignited, blazing into the spout of the can, and causing an explosion which blew the bottom from the can, and enveloped the unfortunate lad in a furnace of burning oil. Mr. J. Elliott, who happened to be in the yard adjacent, and who heard the screams, ran to the sufferer, and nobly risked danger to himself by grappling with the lad, rolling him on the grass, and tearing off him as speedily as possible the unconsumed clothing which was in flames. Dr. Loscombe, who lives in premises adjoining, saw that flames were issuing from beneath the kitchen door, and he with others ran and forced it open. It was found that the limbs and lower part of the body were burnt in a shocking manner, the skin nearly all gone or shrivelled up, and large blisters standing out, presenting a picture heart sickening to look upon, and that must have been attended with excruciating pain to the patient. The lower part of the face was likewise badly burned, and the eye-lashes and parts of the hair consumed. All that human skill and careful nursing could effect, however, were of no lasting avail, and the little sufferer was released from pain at midnight—taken to his last long home.—Statesman.

THE PACIFIC SCANDAL.

LETTER FROM MR. G. W. McMULLEN.

(To the Editor of the Globe.)

Sir,—It would be assuming too much for myself to suppose that in the present stage of matters, the people of Canada are as much interested in me and my antecedents as they are in some other things that have lately been placed before them, even though I am in a degree responsible for affording them the information, but nevertheless so much has been said since the publication of my statement on the Pacific Railway matter, that I will be excused for briefly referring to the subject again, with a view of placing myself before the people and refuting the absurd excuses or denials put forth by the Government and its satellites. The personal matter I shall deal briefly with, for the double reason that it is in no case of public interests and that I have chosen the proper tribunals, the courts of law, to repel the vicious and insane attacks made upon my personal character. In no instance save one have they been more than the ravings of disappointed malice, and that is a recent article in the Montreal Gazette copied in the Toronto Mail, purporting to give an account of my business life in this city. This article is founded on the representation of a man who was dismissed from the service of the Corporation by the unanimous vote of the Executive power, embracing three of the most business representatives of Chicago, for unpardonable transgression of duty, and and who is to this day a defaulter to that Corporation, and who is again in the same position with subsequent employers. If a suit for the recovery of money means anything. The article itself is full of unmitigated falsehoods, notably one referring to church matters, which is baseless in every particular. In reference to the management of the corporation, the statements are, in almost every particular, so twisted as to convey a false meaning, and I only refer to them to give an emphatic denial to all that is in them that tends to prejudice my business character, and to point out the apparent fact that the Government and their hired newspapers quibble at case to drag the arrows of Chicago jay dirt to throw at me. They cannot hurtle save by slander. I ponder them the fullest and earliest occasion to answer under oath, as an action for libel against such an utr worthy of notice will be pushed forward without any of the delays which have distinguished the investigation. So far as the Mail is concerned, its abject dependence on the Government is so well known that its position in any matter is of small moment; but as a question of historical interest,* I allowed the publication recently of a couple of letters from Mr. James Beaty, which show where the money to start it was first sought, and the reasons for its hurried and premature birth. As for the Gazette, I have a yet unfinished affair with that paper, to which I shall add a paragraph. It will be remembered that the last I said in regard to that journal was that, notwithstanding the statements of Messrs. Allan and Abbott, I had abundant evidence to prove that Messrs. White did urge the reduction in price of the paper under the purchase from Sir Hugh Allan. Senator Foster was fully cognisant of the matter, but he differs with me in one material point; for his understanding was that it should be ten instead of five thousand dollars. The Messrs. White poured out their griefs to so many in this manner to get out of the dilemma in which they have placed themselves. If Senator Foster is not a good reference, I will add three or four more who knew the threats of exposure uttered against Sir Hugh if he went to England and he did not fix up matters with them. Matters were fixed up. I have also noticed the denial of the proprietors of La Minerve, Attorney-General Ouimet and Sir Francis Hincks, to the statements about money paid to them. It will be remembered that I only gave a statement of what Sir Hugh Allan told me in these cases, but there is a sequel which I did not wish to give in this manner, for the reasons that will appear on reading it. There seems no alternative, however, and I have resolved to state it. I stated that Allan got money from New York, and I have the checks he drew to prove it. I stated that the only representations he ever made to to me of its expenditure were the payment of $4,000 to La Minerve newspaper, $3,000 each to three other French papers, $6,000 to Attorney-General Ouimet for services rendered at Ottawa, and an indefinite loan of $10,000 to Sir F. Hincks. On the same day on which he told me of the payments to papers and the Attorney-General, I mentioned to Mr. Abbott that the help thus afforded would aid us I hoped. He uttered some diastisfied expression of the way Sir Hugh did things, and I then gave him the explanation Sir Hugh had given me. He said the facts were that the money to they papers had simply been a loan, and that he himself was one of the endorsers on the Minerve notes, Allan only agreeing to assume his share of the loss in case the paper failed to pay. Although he had charged us with the money as given away, he (Mr. Abbott) stated that he would find out through a friend whether Mr. Ouimet had denied getting the money, stating that Allan had promised him $6,000 in case it succeeded, and on that promise he had come to Ottawa. I fancy, in view of the facts of the case so far, it is quite possible these gentlemen may be telling the truth in dening the actual gift of money, but Allan got it from New York. In reward to the $10,000 to Sir F. Hincks, I have only this to say; that Sir Hugh informed me of his intention to give or lend him the money, and that the same day he overtook me on the Parliament grounds and said he had just given it to him. I have next to notice the evasive denial of the Government, given anonymously through their chosen organs to the charge that they were cognisant of the agreement between Sir George Cartier and Sir Hugh Allan, and of the subsequent reasons why money was furnished in such large amounts. That denial is of course false, and its falsity is capable of abundant proof. An ex-Minister is reported as saying that the postscript to Sir George Cartier's letter of August 24th, ordering $10,000 to be sent to Macdonald, is a forgery. Possibly they suppose I was not aware that it was partly written with pencil, and could be erased. Such was the fact, and the money was paid on it. Let the letter be produced to show that the bargain was with the Government, and not with Sir George Cartier personally. I need only recite the fact that some seven thousand dollars were paid one member of the present House for his election expenses, for which he agreed to become personally responsible to Sir Hugh, unless the amount was made good to him (Sir Hugh) by the Government on the same terms as the amount advanced to the Government itself. The present member for Hochelaga will recollect the name. And now let me add one more fact which will illustrate the position of the Committee and the absolute control which the accused and their friends have exercised over it Outside of the amounts which may have been furnished by Sir John A Macdonald, the chairman of the investigating committee applied through the Premier for a loan of $5,000 after the elections were all over, and as Allan supposed he was through paying, he objected, but after a personal visit of the then Postmaster General to Montreal, and urgent telegrams and letters of Sir John, who announced that it was to help us, the thing was done The note was dated January 20th, 1873, discounted by the Merchants' Bank January 22nd, 1873, and renewed 23rd April, 1373, drawn by the Hon. John Hillyard Cameron and endorsed by Sir Hugh Allan. Let me assure the people of Canada that these are authenticated facts from among a mass not yet published, all proving the same thing—that the matter was a direct one of bargain and sale, and that the amounts I have accounted for are only a percentage of the actual outlay on the same terms, that over one hundred thousand dollars were sent to Sir John from Montreal besides a larger amount paid to the Central Committee, who appear as giving the receipts. These circumstances will afford some clue to the reasons which have inspired the unstinted calumny on my name for a few weeks past, but nevertheless, the facts exist, and will be fully proven whenever appropriate occasion offers, and while I am willing to accept any proper share of blame, if any attaches to me, yet the mountain of meanlacity by which the facts have been covered will be rolled on to the rightful shoulders.

Yours, etc,
(Signed) G. W. McMULLEN.

Mr. T. WHITE Jr., on the PACIFIC SCANDAL.

At a Mass Meeting in Montreal, on Tuesday Evening, Mr. White spoke and is reported in the Witness as follows :—

"Mr. Thos. White, of the Gazette, addressed the meeting. He declared he would yield to none in his desire to have a thorough investigation, and hoped that the one object of all the members of the House and Government would be to keep their skirts clean. If our public men had been guilty of selling the Pacific Railway Charter for money, with which to corrupt the electors, they should be driven from public life. But how could an enquiry into their innocence or guilt be best obtained? Was it desirable to proceed with the examination, the witnesses not being under oath. Was it desireable to have a Royal Commission—("No")—or was it absolutely necessary that Parliament itself should proceed? (A voice, "That's the talk.") It had been charged by those who opposed a Royal Commission that the judges who were spoken of would be appointed by the parties accused. What better would a Parliamentary Committee be? If as Mr. Huntington had said, thirty members of the House owed their election to corruption—(a voice, I believe he is right.)—would not this thirty persons be a sufficient number to control any vote that Parliament might give? (Cheers.) For his part, he would oppose the appointment of a Royal Commission, if that commission were to be charged with the final adjudication of the case. Competent persons should be appointed to take evidence, openly, so that the people generally might know, from the reports in the press from day to day, what was being done, and then, that evidence having been reported to Parliament, that body would in a constitutional way deal with the gentlemen. If the denials were advanced to them, he should how to act, and go with his party into opposition, working with it there for the establishment of a record that would wipe out the temporary slur cast upon it by the assessment of its leaders. But if the decision should be otherwise, he, and the Conservative party generally, would continue in the future to honor and follow the leader whom they had for so many years been proved to honor and follow in the past. (Cheers.)"

Hon. A. A. Dorion said :

"I did not intend to address the meeting to-night, but I must say when I saw the arguments introduced to you by Mr. White of the Gazette, when I saw that he had the hardihood to come here and address you and defend the Ministers and himself—because, gentlemen, he is one of the parties accused of having profited by the money so lavishly expended by Sir Hugh Allan—and for him to come here and say that they are all very anxious for an enquiry, but that that enquiry is for one reason or another put off, is most strange. He says the enquiry should be by a commission named by the accused, for the Governor-General does not name the commissioners; he acts under the advice of the parties who are accused. He proposes that the accused shall tell his excellency to appoint so and so. That is the cool proposal that is made. Not the enquiry has been ordered by the House of Assembly; the enquiry has been ordered unanimously, and the idea of a Royal Commission, when it was spoken of in the House, was scouted. Gentlemen, I put it to any man here, when an accusation of corruption has been brought against members of the Administration, whether it is a proper matter for a Royal Commission. The House itself passes every session a general order, which says that the House shall itself punish all who are guilty of bribery or corruption, or who shall be guilty of attempting to bribe or corrupt. The demand we make is this : Let there be no prorogation on the 13th. Let me ask you, gentlemen, whether the committee named by the House was an unfrair tribunal. On it there were three staunch Ministerialists and two Opposition. The House maintained the Ministers all through the session, and was it likely it would be disposed to treat them unfairly now? How different was the conduct of Mr. Speaker Blaine, of the United States Congress, who, when accused, invited one of his opponents to name the investigating committee! Men conscious of innocence would not have put off the enquiry from day to day, but pressed the enquiry by whatever tribunal. He did not wish to pronounce these men guilty, but he desired there should be a fair trial of them by the 200 representatives of the people.

Mr. HUNTINGTON on the PACIFIC SCANDAL.

At the late Montreal Mass Meeting the Hon. Mr. Huntington on coming forward said :

Mr. Mayor and Gentlemen—Since first my name was connected with this unfortunate subject, I have felt that I had a duty to perform. I shall be compelled to address you in English, and regret that I am unable to address you in French as I have not the power to speak two languages at the same time. I am sure you desire to hear the beautiful French language spoken, that language in which so much truth and so much falsehood has been spoken during the last century. I ask your attention while I speak upon the most important subject that has ever been before this country, a subject which should be thought of by every one, should be dreamed of, and which should be searched to the very bottom. The honor of your country is at stake, and considering this, I am pleased to see the sea of faces which have come here peaceably and without excitement to discuss the matter. I commenced by telliing you that my name was connected with this unfortunate subject. I have felt it necessary to keep quiet in the matter and allow those who saw fit to hurl contumely and abuse on my head and allow those in Parliament to rebuke them as I well knew that I possessed that which would compel them to hang down their heads in shame. This is not a meeting of partizans. You have not come here as citizens of this great city, the commercial metropolis of Canada, to consider how to protect your friends or to be revenged upon your enemies, but to consider how the abuses which exist can be brought to public view. I thought it my duty in Parliament to remain silent when Sir John, in that speech, which his friends have represented as such a splendid one, proceeded to hurl his taunts and abuse against me, and when he affirmed that he would see me ignominiously expelled from the House, as I ought to be expelled, if I made false charges, I remained silent and said not a word. I do not intend to speak to you now, only in such a way as the subject demands. So in that famous speech, when Sir John, with his hand on his heart, said there was not a tittle of evidence, not a tittle of ground for suspicion even that the charges were true, I knew then, for I had the documents in my hands, that his discomfiture was not far off, and I was sorry for it This speech has shown that the right honorable gentleman wished to deceive the House, and that he was supported by men who held their places by the money for which he had sold the Pacific charter, and were the public to know all I know of the matter, they would hurl him from power. (Cheers.) I knew then it was not my duty to state all I knew of the matter, to show my hand to the hon. gentleman. I knew when it was my duty to ask for the impounding the papers in the hands of an hon. gentleman of this city, that that was not the occasion for me to speak and tell all I might have told on the subject. Was it my duty to ask for your information the impounding of the evidence which I feared might come to be lost. All this I stated in the House when I was afraid the witnesses might be tampered. Sir Geo Cartier, Sir Hugh Allan and Mr. Abbott were all in the old country, and they said wait until these honest gentlemen come home from Europe and then we will be ready for the investigation. I knew also that there were thirty men sitting in the House and voting for the Government whose seats had been bought with this money, and he knew they were so bought. They knew also that the investigation, if it took place would turn them out of the House. It was a large amount of money. These men were prepared to vote against all investigations, if necessary, and said Huntington is a scandal, and we will live to see him expelled from the House. Looking back to your scepticism concerning these charges, and knowing as you now know that I spoke the truth, do you wonder that I brought the charges, the evidence for which I was ready to supply? When I asked for a committee to investigate the charges which I felt it my duty to bring, I acted according to the well understood rules of Parliamentary practice. I was surrounded by friends on all sides, who were startled by the charges I had made, and perhaps there were not thirty men in the House who knew the grounds on which I made them. You know them now, but no thanks to the Government, and a portion of them you will never know, so long as the Right Hon. Premier is at the head of the Government.

(A Voice—"We will have you and Mr. Young.")

Mr. HUNTINGTON—If you don't want to hear me—(cries of "go on, go on, we want to hear you.") When they asked for an adjournment until these gentlemen in England came over, I knew that if Sir Francis Hincks could testify as they had declared, the evidence in my possession was all wrong. But the investigation did not take place and Sir Francis did not give the evidence promised. You know now how Sir John would have liked such an investigation. I would have liked to have seen Sir Francis in the witness-box and even Sir Hugh, with all the respect I have for him as a friend. I would like to have had an opportunity of hearing him explain how the money was spent, but the foot note which Sir George said he put at the bottom of his letter explains that wholly. It is published in the Gazette of this city. I am anxious that the investigation shall be entirely independent of party; and if the men who are in power be proved to be corrupt and wait for the trust reposed in them, let us drive them away. If they (Ministers) by any chicanery or trick succeed to do their work, either with their friends under oath, or without, the country would now have been satisfied. When I accepted the terms of the House, I would have accepted the evidence of Sir John and Sir Francis and Sir Hugh Allan, and you see now the whole thing would have been proved, unless these documents had been proved to be forgeries, but they have all been admitted to be true. Trust they said this great duty devolved upon Parliament, now they say Parliament must not do it, and it must be a Royal Commission. Sir John wanted a Commission from the beginning, but the House saw they would have control of their own Committee, and a Committee, they insisted on having. The Gazette tells you a prima facie case is made out against the Government. Under these circumstances the Governor-General cannot accept any more advice from his Ministers until the charges are cleared. Now you are satisfied the Government has sold the country for money. It is not the Herald only that says it, but the Gazette. They tell you there is a prima facie case made out; but still want a Royal Commission to try them on their own evidence. Would a judge instruct a prisoner to select his own jury! [Laughter.] Would he say, "I know you are a gentleman and a very respectable person. [A voice—Sir John would not be though] and you find your own jury." I am not going to discuss a constitutional question. I do not know what advice the Governor-General will think it necessary to take. I do not know whether he will consider it his duty to act independently of his Ministers, but until you make yourselves heard, believe me Sir John will be anxious to have an investigation by Royal Commission until the whole thing turns out a finale, I thank for the attention you have given to me. I told you my duty was to be fulfilled in Parliament, but finding you were to be here, I came with a strong sense of the responsibility and of the duty which I owe to all of you, for the character of the public men of the country is the property of yourselves and your children. (Cheers.) The great scandal which is about to be exposed if the Royal prerogative is not to be exercised in its favour. It is not the first attempt that has been made of the kind to sustain the existence of the Government? There must have been a system going on for years for supplying Ministers with funds for money to carry on the election? This was done by liberal estimates for contracts, and by this means they have fought on until now. It behoves the citizens of this country to look about them and see into these things that they may not be continued. I was not at all facilitated by the course the Government pursued in my enquries. Even the Speaker, who is a very able and estimable man, but a friend of the Government, put me down, and decided that the letters could not be read. There is but one leg now on which the defenders of the Government stand, but one day I will prove every charge which I have made. You can imagine how much Sir. Hugh would have contributed to the elections if he thought he was to lose all. (A Voice—"Not a cent.") He said he would spend money freely that the Party of Progress should carry the day. (Laughter.) He scattered money with reference to the contract which he is to get. The Gazette will not advise you that he spent the money for nothing. It says there is a prima facie case made out. It is only the Mail which lives by subscriptions; whose editor is a paid employee; and sends to Chicago for $100,000 to keep his paper alive. I have no charges to make of a character against any of the public men of this county or city. You are as much judges of the truth of the charges as I am myself. I felt seriously the responsibility of the duty which was laid upon me. It cannot be when a prima facie case is made out that the trial shall take place by the men themselves. But I do not know how far my duty may lead me to follow the advice which the friends of the Government are seeking to open to entrap me. The charges I made before the representatives of the people—if they are true there is a large proportion of these men who hold their seats by this money. I do not know by what right the government seeks to over-ride the position which parliament occupies. We know now why Sir Francis Hinks gave up the high position which he held under the Crown to come to this country to take office under the Government. He came in time to enter into the Pacific Railway negotiations, and to serve out the men who said he was stooped to the lips in corruption. (Cheers.) The support I have received in this matter has not been confined to the party to which I belong, but I have received encouragement from the leading Conservatives of the country, in conclusion I would urge you to press on in the noble work you have begun, and not allow any specious which these men may bring forward to mislead the intelligent citizens of this great city. (Loud cheering)

Kicked.

On Saturday last Mr. Ww. Jordan Jr., of Fenelon, received a severe kick on the right side of his face and nose from a colt on his farm. His eye was blackened and the bone of his nose fractured; but, judging from present appearances, it does not seem probable that his countenance will be at all disfigured. On Tuesday, as Mr. Youdy, another farmer, was about to examine the fore foot of one of his horses, the animal suddenly wheeled and kicked viciously, striking Mr. Youdy on the back of his thigh and knocking him head over heels for some considerable distance, but fortunately not inflicting any serious injury.—Fenelon Gazette.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL
Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is Thomas' Eclectric Oil, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proporations of greater power and prodducing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Time is the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop, whereas with other preparations nearly all the alcohol is lost in that way, and you get only the small of Oils which they may contain.

The Dying Street Arab.

I knows what you mean, I'm a dyin—
Well, I ain't no worse nor the rest,
Taint them as does nothin but prayin,
I reckon'ns is the best.

I aint no father or mother,
A tellin me wrong from the right,
The streets aint the place—is it parson?—
For saying your prayers of a night.

I never knowed who was my father,
And mother she died long ago,
The folks here they brought me up somehow—
It aint much they teached me I know.

Yet I thinks they'll be sorry and miss me,
When took right away from this here,
For sometimes I catches them sighy
A wipin away of a tear.

And they says they hopes I'll get better,
I can't be no worse when I'm dead,
I ain't had no jolly time on't—
A-dying by inches for bread.

I've stood in those streets precious often,
When the wet's been a pourin down,
And I aint had so much as a mouthful,
Nor never so much as a brown.

I've looked in them shops with the winder
Chokeful of what's tidy to eat,
And I've heard gents a larfin and talkin,
While I drops like a dorg at their feet.

But its kind of you, sir, to sit by me,
I aint now afeared of your face,
And I hopes, if its true what you tell me,
We'll meet in that tother place.

I hopes you'll come when its over,
And talk to them here in the court,
They'll mind what you says, you're a parson,
There won't be no larkin for sport.

You'll tell them as how I died happy,
And hoping to see them again,
Thats I'm gone to that land where the weary
Is freed from their trouble and pain.

Now, open that book as you give me—
I feel as it never tells lies—
And read me them words—you know Gur'nor—
As is good for a chap when he dies.

There give us your hand sir, and thank'ee
For the good as you've done a poor lad,
Who knows, had they teached me some better,
I mightn't have grown up so bad?

Time To Read.

Of all excuses made by farmers as an apology for not subscribing to such papers as would benifit them in their buisness this is the most foolish thing—"I have no time to read." It is absolutely nonsensical, Can't find time to read, and expect sucess! It would be just as sensible to refuse food for the stomach as to the mind. Feeding the stomach supports the animal organization Feeding the mind makes the man. Without reasonable power man would only be level with the brute, and the less this power is cultivated the nearer the approach to the lower order of animals. Can't find time to read, and yet hope to succeed in a buisness which now must be conducted with some regard to buisness principles, what would be thought of a merchant who did not keep himself posted as to the prices current, and the influences operating for an advance or decline! what of the manufacturer who year after year follows the same beaten track, while his competiters are introducing new machinery and reducing the cost of manufacture! And yet the farmer does this, and he alone. "Oh pshaw!" we hear some old fellow say. "what does book farming amount to!" When did the projudice against reading originate! If we go back twenty-five years when it was supposed that nobody but a professional man could write for the and when the first agricultural papers were dependant on the contributions of "theory men" there might be some reason to distrust their value. But times have changed some in twenty-five years. Readers have become thinkers; thinking leads to talking and it has been discovered that a man who can talk, can almost write his talk; and as a result, our paper are to-day filled with the experience, of practicle men. Theory unsupported by experience, soon encounters a stumbling block. Publishers have learned this fact, and their sucess depends upon the ability to discrimate in the selection of sound matter for publication. And the farmer cant find time to read? Can the machanic find time to learn his trade? Better by far that one-half of the day be spent, if necessary, to learn how to do work to the best advantage before undertaking it. One acre well cultivated will produce more than three acres in the usual slipshod manner. This has been demonstrated hundreds of times, and has become an admitted truth, yet the whole land abounds with farmers too lazy, too negligent, to study the more successful method. The only thing needed to protect the farmer from the imposition of manopolies and elevate his calling to the proper position among the productive industries, is more reading. Uxbridge Journal.

Plank Foors Ruinous to Horses.

Can't some genius invent a kind of stable floor that can be kept clean without to much labor, and will not ruin the feet of horses standing upon them.† If not every horse owner whose horse, or horses are obliged to stand still much of the time, had better have a yard conveniet to the stable into which the horses can run when neither at work, nor eating, nor sleeping.

We have had some experience in this line. Our horses have not much to do in the winter season, and we have noticed a tendency in them to become lame, but as they get over it upon driving, we paid but little attention to the matter. The past winter we have kept but one horse, and as a public conveyance ran between our place and office, we have preferred to patronize that, and let our horse stand in the stable. After the sleighing disappeared and the roads became bad he had but little exercise, and we noticed that he was becoming lame. Supposing that he would improve as soon as spring commenced, we paid no attention to it, until he became so lame that he could not strike a trot, and his limbs seemed weak and tender, although we could find no sore or tender spot, nor were his limbs swollen. We consulted a veterinary surgeon, who could neither find cause for lameness, nor precribe a remedy.

We determined to try an experiment. We made a fense enclosing a small plot of grass, and turned him out, cutting grass for him. Now for the results. For three or four weeks before turning him out he had been getting lamer and lamer until he became unable to trot. In one week from the time we turned him out he could trot off quite lively, and he has nearly recovered. He seemed to be lame on every foot, and especially in hind feet, and we have no doubt that standing idle on a plank floor caused his hoofs to become dry, hard and contracted, so that so that pressed upon the tender frog. We have here suggested one remedy for hard floors, namely, a yard, if any of our readers know of a substitute for plank floors, that will obviate the difficulties we have presented, should be glad to hear from them. The American Rural Home.

Ayer's

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this one object vessel for pulmonic preparations. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. When adopted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most efficient remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a protection against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patients restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the lungs and throat, that the most obstinate of these diseases yield to its nothing else could touch them, before the Cherry Pectoral they submit and disappear.

Whatever our Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is rarely relieved and cured wholly by it.

Bronchitis and Hoarseness are subdued by it.

Croup is at once controlled by it.

Whooping Cough is made comparatively mild by it.

Consumption is conquered by it.

The Conservatives

Are proposing to white wash Sir John at a public banquet. They ought to wait till after the investigation. Perhaps Sir Hugh will give another $10,000, to aid them at the banquet. That would pay for a good many speeches.

Post Office Robbery in Toronto.

On Sunday, 10th inst., the Post Office at Toronto was robbed of registered letters containing money to the amount of thousands of dollars. The key of the safe was used. Some one in connection with the office, it is feared, is implicated either in doing it or in giving counsel.

Accident.

The Rev. Mr. Wicher lost a fine young horse on Friday evening, by getting the animal's leg broke. He had just put it in Mr. Chalmers' pasture field, and had not left, when it ran to play or bite at a horse in the pasture. The latter kicked and striking Mr. Wicher's horse broke its leg. Mr. Dann was immediately sent for, but when he came advised killing it, as the time, trouble and expense of trying to cure it would be more than its worth. The animal was worth $150, we understand.

Destructive Fire at Portland.

A Fire broke out near the Atlantic wharf, and soon communicating with ships, etc., doing great damage.

The steamships Dirigo, Montreal and Carlotta were burned, loss respectively $100,000, $180,000, $50,000. Contents of stores $190,000, besides other losses. The grain warehouse belonged to Sir A. T. Galt and were leased by the G.T.R. Company. The total loss is estimated at $600,000. Insured for $150,000.

The Lindsay Post

Echoes a wail about defective sidewalks in Peterboro. If the Post will visit our fair town he will find that a sober man need have no fear of sinking himself on them, but if he takes too much tangle leg, the best place to walk in any town, is the middle of the street where he need not trouble himself about falling through or off the way, unless he gets too near the old brewery in the south of the town and throws himself off the bridge in an unfortunate effort to prove his sobriety.

Ben Butler and Sir John A Macdonald.

Butler, of silver spoon notoriety, is a candidate for Governor of the State of Massachusets. In the contest the prominent features of his character are being canvassed, and not much to his praise has been elicited. A cotemporary says—"His prospects of being appointed Governor of Massachusets appear none the brighter for its publication (i.e. of a defense.) As a naturalized citizen of Canada he might have a better chance to get some high office under the present Ministry to whom the aid of such men as he would to all appearances doubtless be welcome."

Has got a Fire Engine but it does not give satisfaction.

Fearful Accident.

Two men, whose names we have not ascertained, went out from Point du Chene to cut hay, and while asleep during the storm of last week, were struck by lightening and both instantly killed. They were not expected home for a few days, and were consequently not looked for. However, being somewhat behind their time, some of their friends went in search of them, when their bodies were found in a horrid state of decomposition, and partially devoured by snakes. The details of their state are too revolting for further description. Their bodies were found last Saturday.—Norwester.

Challenge to Cricketers.

The Guelph Herald is authorized to state that the Maple Leaf base ball club of that town are ready to play any Cricket Club in Canada at cricket on any ground within reasonable distance, and that their eleven will be chosen from the first nine taken as they come, and the first two substitutes of the second nine. Now here's a chance for cricketers to show their superiority over base ballists in the field and at the bat. How about our Maple Leaf excepting this challenge?

Reform Pic-Nic.

The Reformers of the united Counties of Leeds and Grenville are preparing to hold a grand Pic-Nic. A preliminary meeting has been held, and a large Committee appointed to make all arrangements.

Personal.

The many friends of T. M. Fairbarn, Esq., M. P. P. will be glad to learn that his health is improving. He is at present under medical treatment, at an establishment in the state of New York. An unaccountable rumour on Monday of his decease caused much uneasiness here, but on telegraphing for particulars it was found that on the contrary he is improving, although not about to return home yet. This information will allay the anxiety caused by a rumour that was entirely without foundation.

The Scandal.

Commissioners have been appointed. They are County Judges, Day of Montreal, Pollette of Three Rivers, and Gowan of Simcoe, all conservatives. They have taken a room in the Parliament buildings Ottawa. It is thought that Mr. Huntington will not appear before the Commission, as it is believed that the whole thing will be a farce. John A. can refuse to tell cabinet secrets, and thus prevent exposure. The Ottawa Citizen says:—Sir Hugh Allan has given up the Pacific as a failure and recommends the government to build it. This would afford another opportunity for "grab."

Corner Stone.

We understand that the corner stone of the new Methodist Church on George Street will be laid on Tuesday or Wednesday, 14th or 15th of October. The work is progressing favorably; already the walls are five or six feet high, and the contractor expects to commence the cut-stone work and to have the basement windows in in a few days. The basement itself will almost equal a church, as it will be thirteen feet from the floor to the ceiling, and will cost $8,000. We will try and give full particulars at the time.

Mr. Grover

Was in Town on Monday. Severe casualties were held. Some late escapades have taken place over the office of Excise, not flattering to the principals in the affair. Several candidates were in the field, some of them already provided for, but an earnest desire for more is still manifested. The quidnuncs say the matter is at last settled, and that Mr. J. J. Hall is the lucky man this time. How this came about we need not say. Mr. Hall deserves well of his party, and, as to the victors belong the spoils, he might as well have the favor as any other.

Canada Presbyterian Church S. S. Pic-Nic.

The Annual Pic-Nic in connection with the above Sabbath School will be held on Wednesday, 27th inst. The boat will leave Parnell's wharf at 12:30, and proceed down the river to a commodious place. Fare 25 cents.

Brenton alias Fox.

Dr. Workman, of Toronto, was in town yesterday, and visited the jail. He saw Brenton, the supposed murderer, and is of opinion that he is "foxing." The Doctor, we understand, considers him sane. Dr. Kincaid, jail surgeon, was with Dr. Workman on the occasion of the visit.

Lovell's Gazeteer of British North America.

These enterprising publishers have in press a Gazetteer of British North America of 6,000 cities, towns and villages, besides other valuable information. Such a work must have cost an immense outlay, and as the amount of information cannot be obtained in any other book, its price, $2.50, will place it within the reach of every Canadian, and each one should secure a copy.

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS ON THE 18TH INSTANT.

At twenty-five minutes after three o'clock the Speaker took the chair.

Mr. Mackenzie immediately rose and said: Mr. Speaker, I propose to address you and the House on a question of privilege. In the present grave position of the country, and the extraordinary circumstances under which we are called together, I feel it incumbent on me to place this motion in your hands.

The Speaker—Order.

Mr. Mackenzie—I put this as a question of privilege.

Cries of "order." "chair," "go on," and general uproar.

The Speaker—The doors are not open.

Mr. Mackenzie—The doors are open.

The motion is this:—

Moved by Mr. Mackenzie, seconded by Mr. Holton,—That this House, during the present session ordered an enquiry by a committee of its own into certain grave charges in connection with the granting of the charter and contract for the construction of the Pacific Railway, which, if true, seriously affect the official honour and integrity of His Excellency's constitutional advisers and the privileges and independence of Parliament, that the investigation thus ordered has so far not been proceeded with, owing to circumstances not anticipated when the enquiry was ordered and that it is the imperative duty of the House; that this house will regard as highly reprehensible any person who may presume to advise His Excellency to prorogue Parliament before it shall have had an opportunity of taking action in the premises, inasmuch as such prorogation would render abortive all the steps taken up to the present time would inflict an unprecedented indignity on Parliament, and produce great dissatisfaction in the country.

I propose Mr. Speaker to say—

The Speaker—I must request the hon. member to suspend his remarks for a moment. The Sergeant-at-Arms has a communication to make to the House.

Cries of "privilege," "order," "chair," &c.

The Seargeant at Arms had been standing in the centre of the floor for some minutes.

Mr. Mackenzie—No message of this House Sir, shall interrupt me in the discharge of my duty.

The Speaker—Order.

Shouts of "privilege," "order," "go on."

Mr. Mackenzie—I stand here representing a county in this Province. Cheers. I have reason to believe that I represent very largely the opinions of the country.

The Speaker—Order.

Mr. Holton—Privilege, privilege.

Confusion.

Mr. Mackenzie—I propose to call the attention of the House to circumstances that affect the independence of Parliament.

The Speaker—Order, order.

Mr. Holton—Privilege, privilege.

Uproar.

The Speaker—I have received a letter from his Excellency's secretary informing me that he will prorogue the House.

Mr. Mackenzie—I shall address the House

A scene of confusion ensued.

Mr. Mackenzie attempted to proceed with his speech and the speaker directed the Sergeant-at-Arms to clear the messenger who was in waiting.

The gentleman Usher of the Black Rod came then admitted and was greeted with cheers. His remarks were inaudible.

His Excellency proceeded to assent to the following Bills:—

We have been informed on the most conclusive authority that it is the intention of his Excellency to prorogue this House.

The Speaker rose and put on his cocked hat, but in consequence of the uproar his remarks were almost inaudible. He was understood to say it is the duty of the House to obey his Excellency's message. Mr. Sergeant proceeded to the Senate.

Mr. Mackenzie continued speaking, but the Speaker, preceded by the Sergeant-at-Arms, and followed by the members from the Ministerial side of the House, left the Chamber and proceeded to the Senate, where he arrived at half-past three o'clock.

His Excellency was seated on the Throne, attended by Colonel Flet

The Canadian Monthly

For August has been received. We have only time to note the contents of this number: Toronto of old; Beautiful; why will thou die; Undine; The Parting of Hector and Andromache; Papal Conclaves and Ceremonies observed at the election of a Pope; Sunbeams in wood; the Head Waters of Cayuga Lake; To Florence; Current Events, etc. The article on "Current Events" by Goldwin Smith, bears so heavily on the Ottawa Government in the Pacific Scandal affair, that the Tory Press, heretofore high in the "Canadian Monthly's praise," are throwing out threats of vengeance unless it returns to the praise of Sir John. There is no hope for the country while crime is thus sought to be covered up. We give a couple of sentences from many others which tells the reason of Tory anger at the expressed independent opinion of a friend of Sir John:

"With the exception of the Lord Chancellor Macdonald, the South Sea Bubble officers, and Lord Melville, Sir John A Macdonald, we believe, is the first since 1660 who has brought the stain of corruption on the name of the British Privy Council. In his case, considering what the connections of Sir Hugh Allan were known to be, the dark line of corruption is deepened by the shade of treason."

This fine Canadian Magazine is published in Toronto by Adam Stevenson and Co.

THE SCANDAL.

The Course pursued by the Government on the 12th, at Ottawa, is engaging public attention to the exclusion of almost all other matters. The Governor-General acting by advice of the accused Ministers has prorogued the House, and thus removed from it the power to have it fully investigated, by that tribunal that had the right to deal with it. The reason given by Lord Dufferin for following the advice of men held guilty of such gross acts of corruption, will be read with the greatest care, and will fail to satisfy the people of the Dominion, that His Excellency has acted for the best interests of the Country, under such aggravated circumstances.

All must acknowledge the embarrassed position in which Lord Dufferin was placed. To refuse to prorogue Parliament according to their advice, would virtually be a refusal of their counsel and would necessitate calling new advisors. This, no doubt, would be tantamount to assuming their guilt, and their consequent unfitness to tender him advice.

The Ministers have used this position to stave off enquiry and to prevent that searching investigation that can suffice to allay the uneasiness that exists, while men accused of the vilest acts of which they could be guilty are directing the affairs of the Country.

But while making all due allowance for the responsible and very onerous position of His Excellency, the Country cannot look idly on the momentous issues that are at stake.

The Opposition Members have made their representations to His Excellency, but they must not stop there. This wholesale fraud and bribery must be sought out to the fullest degree, and the men who have sold themselves and the interests of the Country for gold must be hurled from power. The delay can only be for a few weeks.

Proceedings at Ottawa.

(From the Globe.)

It is our painful task to announce to day that the Government has succeeded in [illegible] Parliament, and that the enquiry into the sale of the Pacific charter has been indefinitely postponed. The news will take the country by surprise, the journey of Lord Dufferin to Ottawa having given rise to a hope that he would judge for himself, and permit Parliament to continue the investigation into the Pacific case which it had begun. It can be now pleaded for His Excellency that he has acted in ignorance of the popular wish. The time for petitioning was short, yet, though the exact number is unknown, it is certain that the subscriptions to the request for a real session of Parliament were very great in number and influential in character, the signers being of all position, creeds and conditions. Public meetings, also, have been held in the two largest cities of the Dominion, and many other places, in support of the prayer of the petition. Even a stronger demonstration, in point of numbers, was made by deputations of the Houses of Commons yesterday. Ninety-five representatives, forming a large majority of the House assembled, and a majority of all who could have been assembled under any circumstances at this time, memorialized His Excellency to the following effect:—

"The undersigned are deeply impressed with the conviction that any attempt to postpone the enquiry, or to remove it from the jurisdiction of the Commons, will create the most [illegible] dissatisfaction, and therefore pray your Excellency not to prorogue Parliament till the House of Commons shall have had an opportunity of taking such steps as it may deem necessary for the investigation of the charges which have been made, and for the punishment of the guilty parties."

It is to be noted that fourteen of the ninety-five were cabinet supporters of the Government during this session, and voted for their measures almost uniformly. The list includes such men as Messrs. Glass of East Middlesex, D. A. Smith of Selkirk, Smith of Westmoreland, Cellin, Macdonald of Inverness, and Shibley. If the whole House had been present, a large majority would unquestionably have joined in the memorial to Lord Dufferin.

It may be urged on Lord Dufferin's behalf, that the Ministerialists having refrained from attending, it would have been unfair to the Cabinet to have allowed the House to proceed to business, since they would at once have been defeated. The House was, however, regularly in Session, and it was by the error of the Ministry in not warning their supporters to come, or in warning them to stay away, that they were in a minority. But Lord Dufferin had another course to pursue, perfectly fair to his Cabinet and respectful to the House. He could have prorogued Parliament for two or three weeks to allow Ministers to summon their followers, and then have permitted the House to make the enquiry in its own way. What has he done? The House undertook the enquiry, and appointed a Committee. Lord Dufferin has permitted that Committee to lapse, and has announced that he—by which, of course, is meant his Ministers—will appoint a Commission to do the work which the House undertook, and that after the Commission has made its report he will call the House together to consider it. That is to say, he will permit the accused to appoint their own tribunal, to fix the rules by which they shall be tried, and the time which shall be consumed in the work, and after the conspirators are graciously pleased to allow a report to be made, the House will be called together to consider it. His Excellency might as well have omitted the latter part. The Premier will take good care that the report shall not be ready many days before the time when the law will compel him to meet Parliament next year.

Lord Dufferin has, in short, done what the Premier asked him. He has missed a great opportunity of showing that he had a mind of his own, that he could rise to the dignity of a great crisis, that he could aid in putting down corruption with a firm hand. It will be a disappointment to some, but others more familiar with the past career of Lord Dufferin will not expect much at his hands. But we must beware of transferring to the Governor-General the indignation which ought to be directed against his Ministers. Lord Dufferin has thrown aside the opportunity of consulting Parliament at an important crisis; he has, as a member of the Cabinet, assumed the task of enquiry into the Pacific scandals, and so cast a slight upon the House of Commons; but he has not acted unconstitutionally. It is with his right to say that he thinks it his duty to side with his Ministers against their accusers, and even to aid them to evade enquiry and screen guilt. It is within his right also to send Parliament packing, no matter how important the subjects waiting their deliberation, if the supplies have been voted for the year. It may be very indiscreet, very unwise, and morally wrong to do this, but it is not unconstitutional, and so long as the Governor-General keeps within the Constitution, the less he is assailed the better. The people have asked him to permit their representatives to act; he has refused, and it is time to turn to other remedies for she evils under which we suffer.

As we have already said, we have no expectation that the promised Royal Commission will come to anything. The Government will use every trick and wile to postpone enquiry, and if compelled to go on, will endeavour to limit the evidence and secure a report in their favour. The Commissioners will be their creatures, since it is evident that Lord Dufferin is not to be relied on in any measure even to influence their action. By his conduct yesterday he has placed himself completely in their hands. He has lost the last chance of showing his sympathies with the right. The Ministry, till Parliament meets, have the matter in their own hands, and the people are powerless. Some may recommend an appeal to the Home Government, and we are not prepared to say that the people of England should not be made thoroughly aware of the position which the mass of the people of Canada occupy as enemies of the corruption which has tarnished the good name of the country. But we must always remember that we have a remedy for all wrongs within ourselves. The people's representatives must be called together once a year to vote the supplies. It is to their own representatives the people must now make their appeal. It can order a genuine enquiry into the Pacific scandal, and punish the wrong-doers. We judge from the proceedings of yesterday that the representatives sympathize with public opinion at the present time, and if the people are united and firm, justice will be done whether Parliament meets in February or May. It is to be regretted that the Governor-General and his Ministers have condemned us to six months' agitation—to six months' desecration as the subjects of the men who sold the Pacific Charter. But relief, though distant, is certain; and patiently, calmly, though not uncomplainingly, the people of Canada must await the time when neither Lord Dufferin nor any one else will have it in his power to shield the guilty from exposure and punishment.

LORD DUFFERIN'S EXPLANATION.

OTTAWA, August 14.

The following is the substance of the verbal reply made by His Excellency yesterday to the memorial presented to him by the deputation from a large number of members of the House of Commons:—

THE REPLY.

"GENTLEMEN,—It is quite unnecessary for me to assure you that any representations emanating from persons possessing the right to speak on public affairs with such authority as yourselves, will always be considered by me with the greatest respect, even had not circumstances already compelled me to give most anxious thought to the matters to which you are now desirous of calling my attention. You say in your memorandum that four months have elapsed since the Hon. Mr. Huntington preferred grave charges of corruption against my present advisers in reference to the Pacific Railway contract; and that, although the House has appointed a Committee the enquiry has not yet taken place.

"Gentlemen, no person can regret more deeply than I do these unfortunate delays, the more so as they seem to have given rise to the impression that they have been unnecessarily interposed by the action of the executive. It may be premature at this moment to enter into a history of the disallowance of the Oaths Bill, but this much at all events, it is but fair to everyone that I should state, viz: that immediately after I had assented to that Act, I transmitted a certified copy of it to the Secretary of state, in accordance with the instructions by which I am bound on such occasions, that leaving myself to the opinion, an opinion founded on the precedent afforded by the Act of the Canadian Parliament, which empowers the Senate to examine witnesses on oath, that the act was not ultra vires, I accompanied it by a full exposition of the arguments which could be urged in its support, but on that point being referred by the Secretary of State for the professional opinion of the law officers of the crown, it was pronounced inconsistent with the Act of Confederation, and that therefore the postponement or the enquiry so far as it was not out of this circumstance has resulted wholly by the operation of law, and has been beyond the control of anyone concerned. You then proceed to urge me on grounds which are very fairly and fearlessly stated, to decline the advice which had been unanimously tendered to me by my responsible Ministers, and to refuse to prorogue Parliament; in other words, you require me to threaten them with my consent, for, gentlemen you must be aware that this would be the necessary result of my consenting to your recommendation. Upon what ground should I be justified on taking so grave a step, what guarantee can you afford me that the Parliament of the Dominion would endorse such an act of personal interference on my part? You yourselves, gentlemen, do not form an actual majority of the House of Commons, and I have no reason, therefore, of ascertaining that the majority of that body subscribed to the opinion you have expressed. Again, to what should I have to appeal in justification of my conduct? It is who grave charges have been preferred against them now known, charges which I admit require the most searching investigation, but as you yourselves admit, the inquiry is [illegible] the truth of these accusations is still unsullied unimpaired upon the public, has admitted that many of its statements were hasty and inaccurate, and has failed to establish the correctness of the deductions drawn from them. Various assertions contained in the memorial of the other, have been positively contradicted. Is the Governor-General upon the strength of such evidence as this, to drive from his service gentlemen who for years have filled [illegible] during the recent session, Parliament has repeatedly declared its continued confidence. It is true certain documents have appeared in connection with these matters of very grave significance, in regard to which the fullest explanation must be given, but no proof has yet been adduced which necessarily connects them with the culpable transactions of which it is asserted they form a part, however questionable they may appear as placed in juxtaposition with the correspondence to which they have been appointed by the person who has possessed himself of them. Under these circumstances, what right has the Governor-General, on his personal responsibility, to proclaim to Canada, nay not only to Canada, but to America and Europe, as such a proceeding upon his part must necessarily do, that he believes his Ministers guilty of the crimes alleged against them. Were it possible at the present time to make a call of the House, and place myself in direct communication with the Parliament of the Dominion, my present embarrassment would disappear, but this is a physical impossibility. I am assured by my Prime Minister, and the report of the proceedings at the time bears out his statement, that when Parliament adjourned it was announced by him as leader of the House, that the meeting on the 13th of August would be immediately followed by prorogation, and that no substantive objection was taken to this announcement, and that, as a consequence, a considerable portion of your fellow members are dispersed in various directions. I should, therefore, only deceive myself were I to regard the present Assembly as a full Parliament. Since the adjournment, indeed, circumstances have occured which render your proximate re-assembling highly desirable but in this country there are physical circumstances which necessarily interpose a considerable lapse of time before the representatives of the Provinces comprising the Confederate Parliament of Canada can assemble, separated as some of them are by thousands of miles from the capital of the Dominion. In regulating the times and seasons when Parliament is to be called together, the executive is commissioned not only to consider the reasonable convenience of these gentlemen, but also to protect the federal rights of the Provinces which they represent. Under these circumstances I have concluded, on the advice of my Ministers, and even if I differed from them as to the policy of such a course which I do not it is a point upon which I should be disposed to accept their recommendations to issue a Royal Commission of enquiry to three gentlemen of such legal standing character and authority as will command the confidence of the public, by virtue of all the powers conferred upon me by the Act Vic. 31, chap. 38. On the other hand I have determined in proroguing Parliament to announce to the members of both Houses my intention of then assembling immediately the Commission in question shall have concluded their labors. By these means an opportunity will be afforded for preliminary expurgation of these unhappy matters before a tribunal competent to take evidence on oath. Ample opportunities will be given to the members of the more distant Provinces to make their preparations in view of an autumnal session, and within two months or ten weeks from this date, a full Parliament of Canada will take supreme and final cognizance of the case now pending between my Ministers and their accusers. Gentlemen, the situation we have been discussing is one of great anxiety and embarrassment, but I cannot help thinking that on a calm retrospect of the various considerations to be kept in view, you will come to the conclusion, that in determining to be guided by the advice of my Ministers on the present occasion, in other words declining to act as though the charges which have been advanced against them were already proven, and in adhering to the arrangements upon the faith of which many of your colleagues are absent from their places, I have adopted the course most in accordance with the maxims of Constitutional Government, and with what is due to those whom the Parliament of Canada has recommended to my confidence.—Globe.

PARTY GOVERNMENT.

One of the most notable features of the British Constitutional system is the controling party influence exerted both in government and legislation. As is well known there are always two great parties facing each other—the party in power and the opposition—the "outs" and the "ins;" and the watchful rivalry that results from this antagonism is an invaluable safeguard of the public interests. It is both the duty and interest of the Opposition to watch carefully the party in power, and while putting no factious obstacles in the, way, to oppose to the utmost every act or measure that they may consider prejudicial to constitution or the interests of the people and the country. The spoils of office are their reward, when, carrying a majority of Parliament with them, and sustained by the people should the latter be appealed to, they succeed in defeating the Ministry on any important point of its policy, either by a vote of censure or the rejection of one of its measures or by convicting them of "high crimes and misdemeanors." And this arrangement works on the whole wholesomely, as without the incitement of such a reward to spur them an efficient Opposition party could not in the ordinary state of things possibly exist.

This party spirit may, however, be carried too far, and instead of the wholesome maxim, "Measures, not men," the governing principle be, to change a popular sentiment, "Our party, right or wrong." It is to be feared something of this extreme is prevalent in Canada when such efforts are made to sustain at every cost the Ministers now in power at Ottawa, and to divert from them the searching criticism of Parliament. It is pleaded for them that they are accused by a party that seeks to get into their places, and the records of the past are ransacked in the endeavor to show that individuals in the accusing party have themselves also been guilty of the practices complained of. The only instance so far as we have seen in which anything of this kind has been brought to light, is an article published in the Gazette on the 21st of Aug., 1863, ten years ago, charging that in May of that year, Mr. Ferrier, representing the Grand Trunk, was approached by the Sandfield McDonald Government "and asked to lend the power of the road on behalf of Mr. John Young, the Government candidate, in opposition to Mr. McGee, and also in favor of Messrs. Holton, Dorion and Huntington and their friends in and around Montreal," promising a subsidy of $150 a mile to the road in return for such support. Mr. Ferrier very properly declined entering into such a transaction, as did also Mr. Brydges—the Grand Trunk herein displaying a political virtue, which, if all tales be true, it is a pity they did not continue to manifest on subsequent occasions under a Government of another stripe. Of course the transaction above described is to be emphatically condemned, but as stated in the Herald, the government of the day repudiated all responsibility for it, and offered to institute an inquiry, which Sir J. A. Macdonald, the then leader of the Opposition, did not see fit to accept; so that, even supposing the thing true, only those individuals mixed up in the matter can be held responsible. Such practices were sufficiently too common ten years ago; but whatever else the Reform party may have committed in this direction they have amply atoned for by the advocacy of measures to secure purity of elections, and in which they have to a certain extent succeeded in face of the most determined opposition of their opponents.

The public generally, are chiefly concerned in having honest and upright Ministers at the head of affairs, irrespective of party, and it is no plea for a corrupt Government to say that its accusers have been as bad in times past. Neither have the holders of office any concern with who may come after them. Their duty is either to clear their character or depart from power they are no longer fit with honor, leaving the Sovereign and Parliament to attend to what may follow. And it shows the hurtful excess of party spirit we have alluded to, when attempts are made to evade this plain and obvious duty. The honor and reputation of the country should be valued above party.

The speech of the Governor-General, reported elsewhere, affords gratifying assurance that the affairs of the country are presided over by one who, untrammelled by party proclivities, knows the rights of Parliament and is prepared to sustain them, and it may, therefore, confidently be expected that he will afford the House every rightful facility for directing enquiry into the charges against the Government.—Montreal Witness.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL

Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the imperial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combination. Thus in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alcbol is lost in that way, and you get only the small of Oils which they may contain.

Sweet Home.

God Bless the Little Children.

God bless the little children,
We meet them everywhere,
We hear their voices round our hearth,
Their footsteps on our stair.

Their kindly hearts are thrilling o'er
With mirthfulness and glee,
God bless the little children
Wherever they may be.

We find them fishing in the brook
For minnows, with hook,
Or creeping through the hawthorn
The linnet's nest to win.

We meet them in the lane, hall,
Their steady father's pride,
We meet them in the poor man's cot,
He hath no wealth beside.

Along the city's crowded street,
Shop-door, the lane or hall,
We find them 'midst the pomp's pomp
The saddest sight of all,

For there they win no father's love,
No mother's tender care,
Their only friend the God above,
Who hears the orphan's prayer.

Shadowed in silk, or clothed in rags,
In childish grief or glee,
God bless the little children
Wherever they may be.

Contageous Diseases in Animals.

The British House of Commons has recently appointed a select Committee to enquire into this subject, and has already elicited much valuable information. From the examination of Mr. James Thomson, a skilled Veterinary Surgeon and Cattle Inspector for the important and extensive County of Aberdeen, we learn that the rinderpest had, after its introduction into Aberdeenshire, affected forty-six farms. On these farms 84 animals died, 193 were slaughtered or burried, and 300 were slaughtered and sold. The total loss was $20,000, and the amount of compensation paid was $16,000. The latest instance occurred at Millhill. About 40 animals were slaughtered, and there were 40 left, which remained healthy; 16 of the animals were fat, and would have had to be killed in any case. A special system of disinfection was adopted on that farm. The manure was covered over with earth, and the cattle byres were disinfectested with a solution of Condy's fluid, with which the walls and floors of the sheds were washed. The result was as he had stated, that although the disease made some progress, 40 of the cattle were saved by this system of vigilance and precaution. The foot-and-mouth disease had been very prevalent in Aberdeenshire for the last four years. In 1869, the loss from this disease was 4,545 animals and $34,000; in 1870, 3,378 animal and $146,000; and in 1872, 10,311 animals and $78,000. The total amount of loss thus occasioned had been $283,000 during that four years. The estimated loss had averaged $7 50 cts. per head. The stock of sheep in Aberdeenshire was not very large in proportion to the number of cattle. Witness believed the foot-and-mouth disease to be of foreign origin, and was quite satisfied that it had not arisen in Aberdeenshire He accounted for its appearance there by the introduction of store cattle from Ireland and other places, in order that they might be grazed and fed. He heartly attributed the dimination of the disease in Aberdeenshire to the restrictions which have been adopted and carried out. Pigs have been known to be affected with pleuro pneumonia as well as sheep and cattle. Mr. Thomson experimented with rabbits to see whether they would take foot-and-mouth disease, having inoculated them with saliva from the mouths of diseased animals, and fed them on the turnips on which the cattle had been feeding, but no effect. Foot-and-mouth disease seems entirely confined to cattle, sheep and pigs.

With regard to pleuro-pneumonia, that disease has been extending in Aberdeenshire of late years. The result was that in 1871, the disease appeared in 30 places; 237 animals were slaughtered with a view to check the progress of the disease, and the loss amounted to $8,500. The Aberdeenshire authorities have vigorously carried out their powers as to the slaughter of animals infected with pleuro-pneumonia. In 1882, the disease appeared on 34 farms. The number of cattle in those cases was 1, 126, and of these 313 were slaughtered, the loss being $12,700. The general result of the experience of Aberdeenshire for the year and nine months ending in December, 1872, was that the disease had manifested itself in 64 places. The number of cattle on the farms attacked was 1,993, the number slaughtered, 550, the value, $43,200. There was realized by the sale of carcases, hides, and offal, $22,200, showing a loss of $21,000, the sum paid for compensation being $17,009.

During the last six months there had only been 5 cases of pleuro-pneumonia in Aberdeenshire. As soon as a case of pleuro-pneumonia was declared the local inspector visited the place and examined the animals infected. All the cattle on the farm were valued, and the animals affected were slaughtered forthwith, and the carcases disposed of if they were of any value. The owner was compensated in this way—if an animal was worth $80, and the salvage amounted to $40, the owner received three-fourths of the salvage $30. This compensation was paid out of a rate varying from 2 cents to 2½ cents imposed on the entire rental of the county, excluding the burgs.

During the last two years there have been 64 out-breaks of pleuro-pneumonia, 26 of which were due to animals imported into the country. Of these 6 outbreaks, 15 were due to Irish cattle, 4 to Duth cattle, 4 to English cattle, and 3 to Scotch cattle, imported from different counties. During the year 1871-72, one or more animals died previous to the discovery of the disease, in twenty-five different places. The total number of cattle that died was 40, and their probable value $2,200. In these cases, where the disease had been imported from Ireland, the cattle had shown the disease within a month of their leaving Ireland. In 1871, upwards of 10,000 store cattle were imported into Aberdeenshire. Of these, comparatively few were Dutch.

Mr. Thomson thinks that cattle infected with pleuro-pneumonia, should not be allowed to remove from a farm where the disease has existed untill the expiry of three months from the date of the last outbreak. He also advocates the local authorities being armed with full powers to seize any animals affected with foot-and-mouth disease at fairs and markets, and as to the movements of infested animals on public highways, at the same time giving them power to hold the cattle and to charge the owners with the expenses.

Mr. Goodlet, of Bolthaw, Perthshire, formerly President of the Scotch Chamber of Agriculture, concurred generally with the suggestions of Mr. Thomson, thought if the system of [illegible] was carried in Aberdeenshire [illegible] would soon be stamped out.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The vegetables this excellent medicine employs, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous sufferers and all those who are aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or tests.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: Tell-tale Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the disturbing symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted, into use, in every Country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures; those who have not tried it, should do so, and be cured of their sufferings, and know what it does cures it does always—that it never fails to do any thing in any degree or neglects any duty assigned to it—and that its secret virtues act upon those important organs of the system, the stomach, liver, bowels and blood, which are the [illegible]

Select Poetry.

Leave all to Him.

Leave all to him, who knoweth all,
To whom there's neither great nor small,
But one vast comprehending plan,
Thyself involved are words began:
Leave all to Him.

Leave all to Him, He goldeth all,
He hears the weakest when they call,
For none are mightier than these
Who on His unseen arm repose:
Leave all to Him.

He'll encourage thee, when not else will do,
But make thee more than conqueror, too,
Strange fires, perhaps, against thy will,
To trust him—He's thy father still,
Leave all to Him.

Though friends may turn to bitter foes,
Leave all to Him, He cares [illegible]
When thou wouldst lean two words on them,
And each, with them, thyself to pierce,
Leave all to Him.

Leave all to Him, thy want, thy care,
That nameless grief that none may share,
That daily sum of wearying toils
Which vexes, and the pulse despoils:
Leave all to Him.

Leave all to Him, the sweetly lie,
Beneath His chastisal, loving eye,
And say, "Faith Thy will in me,
In life, in death, eternally:
Leave all to Him.

FASHIONABLE DECEPTIONS

Life, viewed in front of the footlights, is a very different thing from life regarded from behind the scenes. People, when they have on their company manners, their company clothes, and deliver themselves of their company sentiments, are not at all like what they are when they are all in their natural habiliments and speak freed from restraint. It is remarkable and, at the same time, a significant fact, as indicating the incomprehensibleness of human nature, that most persons are far more careful not to injure themselves in the estimation of mere acquaintances, than is that of those whom they may reasonably be supposed to love the best in all the world. This is exemplified almost every day they live. In polite circles, however bitter may be the feelings of a husband and wife, they will address each other in tones of honeyed sweetness, and smile upon those by whom they are surrounded in as seraphic a manner as it is possible for mere mortals to attain. But for certain indications, apparent to the keen observer, one might be led to the conclusion that it would be impossible for clouds to gather on some beaming countenances and completely change their aspect. Even those who are most careless about their personal appearance as completely metamorphose themselves as possible, when they imagine there is any likelyhood of their being brought in contact with those whom they call friends, but of whom they know comparatively little. The ordinary small talk of a drawing-room is illustrative in the same direction. Those who converse affect a knowledge of what they imagine is the correct thing for them to know, and profound ignorance regarding many of the realities of life, and upon which they are, or should be, well adapted to give an opinion. They discuss and confess great admiration for the works of which they have never read; they go into ecstacies over pictures which are to them little more than so much paint and canvas; they use hyperbolical language in reference to singers and musical performers, when the fact is that high-class music is to them so much empty sound and nothing more. They would be ashamed to own that they know how to make a shirt or pudding, or the precise process by which a leg of mutton is prepared for table. Their great fear seems to be that they shall be credited with ability to do anything that is useful; their great desire that they shall be deemed proficient in things that can by no stretch of the imagination be considered of practical utility. They appear to be continually haunted by the dread that they shall be considered vulgar; and so, to escape this fate, they sacrifice their own individuality, and be come mere reflexes of those who possess sufficient self assertion and influence to lead the fashion. There is ever a constraint upon their words and actions; they are continually playing a part which is most irksome—they are always treading in the bewildered and painful paths of deceit.

Systematic deception is always evil, even when the end sought is a good one. But in present instances, not only the means but the object in view are alike bad. It is, perhaps, only natural that a lady should, upon a visitor being announced, hastily throw aside the French novel or sensational tale in which she is so greatly interested, and snatch up a volume of poetry in its place, and that she should not like to be discovered while she is engaged in the homely but useful occupation of knitting. It is no doubt much more satisfactory to be found trifling with an elegant piece of embroidery work than with such common-looking articles of every day use as stockings. Nor is it to be wondered at that a woman, whose she is unexpectedly called upon to receive guests, should endue herself and her surroundings as presentable as possible, and pose herself in what she imagines to be her most striking and picturesque attitude. Of all such fallacies none is cheap a parallel view may well be taken, but the same feeling which prompts such acts induces others which are much more serious in their consequences. It is a common thing for a certain class of people to make it a point of appearing to know things they do not. All classes manifest that weakness of their acts tend to the same end—nothing are for removed. shown the head. They live in an atmosphere of self-enforcement; they are, beings of such extremely delicate organization that they can do nothing of a plainer character; they appear at all times, would never dream that there was such a thing as fact and reality in connection with this world. They dislike the commonplace, and they would rather die than be guilty of a vulgarism, and they would rather tell a lie than a truth. They sometimes do this unconsciously, but in most instances they do it with their eyes open. Their whole life is one of deception, and they are always trembling in the dreadful fear that they may be found out. Such people are to be pitied rather than blamed, for they are the victims of circumstances, and are not responsible for the errors of their education. Their whole life is one of deception, and they are always trembling in the dreadful fear that they may be found out. The Origin of Brahmas.

The acknowledged superiority of this race of fowls, has of late years naturally caused much attention to be directed to their origin and early history.—Their first appearance in England in 1852, it will be remembered, created quite a furore among fanciers which was not inaptly designated the hen fever. In that year a Mr. G. P. Burnham, of Boston, Massachusetts, sent over to Her Majesty Queen Victoria, a consignment of what he termed Light Brahmas, and in the following year a number of dark birds to various breeders, and in the year 1855 Mr. Burnham published "A History of the Hen Fever," in which he affirms that the Dark and Light Brahmas had distinct origins, but that he had made them both—the Light, by breeding from some pure uncrossed Grey Cochins; the Dark by crossing Cochins with Grey Chittagongs, of which he says no one entertains a doubt. Mr. Tegetmeier, an English poultry writer, falls in with this view of their origin, or at least does not discredit it. Mr. Wright, a still more recent writer on poultry takes a very different view of their origin, he not only discredits Mr. Burnham's whole story, but has taken considerable trouble to obtain a correct account of their origin; which it would seem he has settled pretty much to his own satisfaction. According to Mr. Wright and the gentleman with whom he had correspondence on this subject, it would seem that although Mr. Burnham claimed to originate these fowls only in 1851 and 1852, a Dr. Bennett exhibited the same variety of birds at Fitsburg, Connecticut, so early as 1850, which he stated he had purchased from a Mr. Cornish; several other breeders also exhibited Brahmas the following year, all of whom belonged to Connecticut, which State it would seem was the headquarters or nursery of this breed. It must be borne in mind that at, the time the name of Brahma was not applied to the breed. and it was not, as Mr. Cornish tells us, until at an exhibition held in Boston, in 1860, a committee then appointed gave them the name of Brahma Pootra, it being the name of the greater river from the banks of which they came, he having purchased his original birds from a Mr. Chamberlain, who had procured them from a sailor in New York in 1846, off one of the India ships. It will be seen then that the conflict of assertion is absolute and distrust between Mr. Cornish and Mr. Burnham, and if this farmer is correct the fowls sent to the Queen were simply mongrels, and not such as we now know as Brahmas. The statement that the two varieties of Brahmas had very distinct origins is known by every breeder of the fowl to be untrue. In the first place, the two varieties, however distinct in color, are still in every essential respect identical. Their whole habits in breeding are identical, their constitutions are the same, their [illegible] are the same, their [illegible] are identically the same, their [illegible] are identically the same, their [illegible] are identically

Orders have been issued for the Sixth Brigade to go into Camp here on the 12th of September.

Man Killed.

A man named T. Stephenson was killed at Glenoce Mills, on the 21st Inst., while rolling logs upon trucks. He was caught by a knot when the logs rolled over him and killed him.

The Commissioners

On the "Scandal" have been closely closeted with John A. at Ottawa. This is as we expected. The Ministers will dictate to the Commissioners and the whole thing will prove a farce. The accused will not try to convict themselves.

Port Hope.

An important meeting of prominent citizens was held in Port Hope on Monday week to consider the expediency of enlarging Trinity College School by adding another wing to it. A Clock Company is about to commence operations in our sister town.

The Locks Bridge.

The tender of Mr. Lewis Davis of Port Hope was accepted for the [illegible] of the bridge, but he has failed to [illegible] papers and give securities.

The Scott Lots in

The Mills and Limits of W. A. Scott were put up for sale on Thursday last, and after a few bids were withdrawn, the last bid being $90,000. They are believed to be worth $250,000. The dull state of the lumber trade must seriously militate against a favorable sale at present.

The Civic Holiday.

The people of the Town seemed to enjoy the holiday. Almost all the citizens were driving, walking, or at Pic-Nics. The Whyte & Davis Pic-Nic was a grand affair. The band, with a four horse team accompanied the party, and there were four other double teams with large carriages heavily laden, making about 80 to 100 persons. We believe they had a good time. The town was very quiet.

Harvey Bridge.

We learn that the contract to build the bridge at the Narrows has been given to Mr. Wm. Sargent, of Seymour. Work on it to commence immediately. Contract $6,900.

Ogemah.

The Bobcaygeon Independent says, that the Steamer Ogemah made her last trip for the season on Saturday. Mr. Wallis offers her for sale.

Ashburnham Rate.

The rate for the Village of Ashburnham for the current year is 15 mills on the dollar. Statute labor, this year can be commuted at 40 cents a day; with this reduction Statute labor is a little more than One fifth the whole sum to be levied. Hence the rate for the year is equivalent to 18 mills in the dollar.

Locks Bridge.

The tenders for the Lock's Bridge have been reconsidered and awarded to Mr. John Cain, his tender being $6,6000. The order of tenders.

Lewis Davis,	$4,945
Whyte & Davis,	4,380
John Whyte,	4,600
John Cain,	5,000
Wm. Clarke,	5,700
R. M. Reddy,	7,000
Thomas Walters,	7,200

Mr. Lewis Davis having refused to sign the writings in due time, his tenders were reconsidered and that of Mr. Cain, accepted, although not the next lowest. Mr. John Boyd, will do the work and will commence it immediately as he has just finished the Nassau bridge.

Lost.

Whilst Mr. J. S. Rogers was leaning over the new weir now going on at the dam, a valuable gold watch fell out of his pocket, the sudden jerk broke the

The Christian Union.

Mr. D. Watson is now in town taking orders for the above periodical. It is a weekly newspaper published in New York city and edited by the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, assisted by numerous contributors and the best writers. As the name implies, the Union is non-sectarian and its object the union of all Christian denominations in the great work of evangelising the world. The paper consists of 24 pages, weekly, of healthy family reading, and every subscriber gets a premium of a nice chromo lithograph. The subscription is $3.00 Canada money. The picture is considered worth nearly half the subscription. From the names of the staff of writers and contributors, we have no hesitation in recommending the paper and Mr. D. Watson to the favor of the people.

The Albion.

The August number of this monthly has been received, and, if possible, surpasses any previous number. The artistic work of this magazine is unusually elegant and the pictures of the most noted places and scenery in the United States, makes it very attractive. Its subscription price is only $5 a year.

Auctioneer.

We invite attention to the card of Mr. Silas Burnham in this issue. He has opened an office in Town and is prepared to undertake and successfully conduct all business in his line with satisfaction, and on very moderate terms. Farmers who intend having stock sales &c., this fall, would do well to give him a call.

L. O. L. of Orange Young Britons.

We understand that a lodge of the above Order has been established in this town. The lodge numbers some thirty members. The lodge was organized by Messrs. Arnott and Scott, of Toronto, on the 18th inst. At a special meeting called on the 21st inst., the following officers were unanimously elected :—Worshipful Master, Bro. Owen Norton Evans ; Deputy Master, Bro. Joseph Hall ; Chaplain, Bro. Lansing D. Loomis ; Secretary, Bro. George Mitchell ; Treasurer, Bro. Wm. H. Lowry ; Masters of Ceremonies Bros. Joseph Finlay [illegible]gton ; Committeemen—1st, Bro. Alford Proud ; 2nd, Bro. Wellington Brown ; 3rd, Bro. Wm. Walsh ; 4th, Bro. John Foster ; 5th, Bro. James T. Evans. We are informed that a special meeting will be held in the Good Templars' Hall on Friday evening next for the general transaction of business, at which a full attendance is requested.

THE BOX TERRIS TRADE.

There is now no means of communication with Bobcaygeon and the North via Peterboro, except "staging." The Steamer Ogemah is laid up. Those who controlled the freight trade north, so completely prevented any of it going by the Ogemah from Lindsay, that the boat was not paying. we believe, and hence her being laid up.

This systematic effort to crush out the Ogemah, we are credibly informed, arose from the fact that she made regular trips from Bridgenorth thus affording communication by way of peterboro. Let what will be the cause, she is laid up, and for the time being all freight for the back country must go by way of Lindsay or Cobocsunk.

What are the business men of Peterboro now doing ? Some of them have been throwing what obstacles they could in the way of the Cobourg Road, and after negotiating for a long time with the Company, and indeed after promising certain bonuses, they are refusing to carry out their promises. It is true that only a part of the people are trying to secure repudiation of promises, the other part merely holding back until the work shall be completed.

At no time was more prompt and decided action needed than now. The Cobourg road is constructed to Mud Lake, and very little more will complete it to Rice Lake, so that trains might run from Lake to Lake. Ought not the merchants of this Town come to some fair understanding with the Company to open up means of communication with Bobcaygeon and thus prevent the complete removal of the carrying trade from this route to that by way of Lindsay ? Are we not trifling with this important question while Lindsay is using every effort to secure the trade that the merchants of Peterboro appear to despise, or allow to be snatched from them ? How long shall this lethargy continue ?

HEAR YE THIS!

The course the Trustees of our Schools are pursuing, must eventuate in the ruin of the Schools, to the detriment of the Town; and we in common with many others are so interested that we can no longer be silent on the matter.

Mr. Romaine had the Gas Works, Mr. Carnegie being reported to have $1,000 interest in them. Messrs. Stevenson, Dumble, Bradburn and Clarton bought them from Mr. J. Perry who first built them, and by this means got them from Messrs. Romaine and Carnegie, paying for them of course.

Now just think of it ! Mr. Stevenson and Mr. Dumble of the Gas Company are members of the School Board ! Will the people of the Town permit them to remain on the Board unless they give up the Gas Works ? Will they not use too much gas at the Board meetings ? Citizens of Peterboro, will you thus ignore your own interests and allow those men to remain on the School Board. We know you will not unless they retain the Gas Works to Messrs. Romaine and Carnegie, who gassed the people into gas, as you know, or are supposed to know.

There is another evil that you will not continue, when you understand it, Mr. Dumble is a Grit, and you know how hateful the Grits are to the Review people. Will you permit this Grit to remain on the Board to the detriment of the principles of "progress" ? You cannot, you will not.

Messrs Toole and McLelland old conservatives are getting too independent of dictation. They won't do as they are wanted. They refused to be subject to their old party interests. They voted against the Review interest in the possession of the whole office, on the Blank affair. Yes, citizens, will not permit this effront to pass unrevenged. All independent members must be attended to next January, and among the men who won't submit to our advice, we must not forget the Mayor and Mr. Ellerbeck.

Citizens of Peterborough, there is one member of that Board—Mr. Scott—who deserves well at your hands, whom we brought up that Blank affair by at once commanded to attend the Board meetings [illegible] and with his dear [illegible] he ably supported our [illegible] for them and us. He opposed the gas men, he opposed Mr. Dumble, he supported the Conservative teacher for his party. Electors, he is a useful man on that Board, we must remember and support him.

For these and several other weighty reasons school matters must be attended to, until after the next election. We will write down the school, we will hunt up every disappointed office seeker to write letters against it ; every partizan must be solicited to lend his aid by word and deed; every little boy that got whipped or left for fear he might get whipped, must be asked to write letters against the school, and if a blockhead who never would, perhaps never could, learn, left in disgust, we'll get him too on our side.

Let us go in to win and victory will be ours. That which is spoken in the ear in chambers (closets) must be proclaimed on housetops if we would succeed. No matter if the school does suffer if we win.

THE SCANDAL.

Since our last issue nothing has been done by the Loyal Commission, except that they have had several closet meetings with Sir John, and are said to be preparing to take evidence. It is now well known that the whole thing will be a farce. John A. signs the Commission appointing the members of it. John A. meets them in private and advises them. John A. acts as prosecutor. John A. puts the words in their report to His Excellency, or rather to himself. John A. dictates the terms in which it shall be reported to the House of Commons through the Speaker. John A. controls the Speaker's judgments and decisions. John A.—the accused, the corrupter, the briber, the seller of his country's interests ; John A., who telegraphed for the money, who got $100,000 of it, and who used it to corrupt the people from the Pacific to the Atlantic, sits now as Judge, Jury, Counsel and Commissioners. Under the circumstances what should be done ? Will the people submit to the Commission in any way ? Surely not. As soon as the House meets we feel certain that there will be enough honest members of both parties to reject this solemn farce, and order a full parliamentary investigation before a properly appointed Committee, and consisting of men who will see that no injustice be done through party or selfish motives. But who will also see that none of those accused of bribery or of being bribed shall be on that Committee.

The Goverpor-General has been made the cat's paw of this huge swindle of John A. He had to accept their advice or reject them. In accepting their advice he has been the means of lending his sanction to condone one of the most unheard of acts of corruption ever recorded in history. To reject their advice and call in other advisers would appear to condemn the accused without investigation; and rather than do this, it is perhaps better to afford a respite of a few weeks, for it can only be a respite, justice will be satisfied and the guilty will be punished in due time.

THE DUTY OF THE PEOPLE.

Because the Governor General has been led into the error of retaining advisers who are accused. and on the oath of their own witness, Sir Hugh Allan, proved guilty, of those daring acts of corruption, shall the people tamely submit to these frauds by their representatives ? We trow not.

Already public meetings have been held, and now are being held to give expression to the indignation of the people on account of the corruption that has reigned in high places.

Should not a mass meeting of this County be held here at once, and let Mr. Grover, and his friends be invited to attend it, and give an account of his stewardship. He has supported the whole of this huge and heretofore unheard of system of moral polution that has existed and still exists at Ottawa. He is also believed to have received a share of the money so corruptly obtained, and to have used it for the same ends, to polute the people, and if so why should he be permitted to pass without giving an account of it.

We are glad to be able to say that there are numerous Conservatives in the County who do not believe in the wholesale debasement of their fellow electors and who would willingly join in securing a more wholesome discharge of public business than has obtained under John A. Macdonald.

The unmeaning cry ; that if John A is turned out corrupt men will get in—for all men are corrupt—all parties are vile. The people have this matter in their own hands and they can make and unmake parties until they get honest men to represent them. The universal cry now is that the mass of electors is so corrupt that it is not to be wondered at that candidates for legislative honors try to gain their votes by money. Is this so ? Are the electors willing to lie under the foul imputation ?

There is not a doubt but that the source of corruption is in the powers that be, who use the public funds and the price of their own shamefaced barter of the people's rights to corrupt the people. But be this as it may, electors should not permit this slander to pass unnoticed. Let them call a public meeting, and all who have clean hands can attend it, and there need be no fear, but that they will speak out against all corruption, no matter in what party.

The best time for a meeting is some time during the first weeks of September probably about the 15th. There need be no delicacy in the matter, the honor of Canada is at stake. If the present men are down the better for their party.

CHANGE IN MUNICIPAL STATUTES.

The following clause is at pages 209, 210 of the Statutes of 1873, sec. 63. :

"In every or any township that has not been [illegible] with the Clerk of the County Council, or with the Clerk of any Township, Village or Town Clerk, [illegible] Clerk, or the seal of [illegible] corporation, that such Reeve or Deputy Reeve duly elected, and has made and subscribed the declaration of office and qualification as such Reeve [illegible] by law required, and that such Reeve or Deputy Reeve shall be held to be entitled to act as such Reeve, and to be [illegible] with the Clerk of the County or aforesaid, the or deputation of the Clerk or other person having the legal custody of the last revised Assessment Rolls for the Municipality, which he represents, [illegible] there appear upon such Rolls the names of at least [illegible] freeholders and householders in the Municipality possessing the [illegible] qualifications as voters for the first Deputy-Reeve elected for such Municipality, and that no objections touching the [illegible] possessing the same property qualifications as voters have been [illegible] for such additional Deputy, then the said Roll was last revised, has taken place."

This Clause makes it compulsory to have at least 500 voters on the Roll, not merely ratepayers, and as a voter must be on the Roll (in townships) for [illegible] real estate, it appears to follow that all on the Roll for a less sum than $[illegible] can not be registered in the 1874 voters.

MUNICIPAL TAXATION.

David Burn, to the Editor of the Cobourg Sentinel.

DEAR SIR,—The agitation which has recently taken place amongst us on the subject of Municipal Corporations taxing the Banking and Circulating Capital of the Dominion impresses forcibly upon every subject, not merely the present state of the law affecting the taxation of the Dominion, but the yet more important principle of the relation to each other of the prerogatives of the Dominion and Provincial Governments. The subject is one which requires all the wisdom and patriotism which it is in our power to bestow upon it, and in this spirit I trust its consideration will be approached by our Dominion and Provincial legislators.

That the Dominion Government as the supreme authority in the State and the special guardian of its safety and welfare has, in the case of national emergencies, the prerogative of taxing not only the income but the capital of the country will be readily admitted, the prerogative being founded on the old maxim of the Roman law that "the safety of the State is the supreme law," (Salus respublicæ est suprema lex.) Thanks, however, to a kind Providence, no emergencies requiring such extreme measures of legislative as present exist in Canada. The odious exactions of a property or an income tax are unknown to us because emergencies which alone can justify such exactions do not exist, and it is to be hoped that they will never exist, inasmuch as the present indirect taxation by the Dominion Government might be doubled or even trebled without, in the least, imperilling the general prosperity of the country. Such being the happy position of Canada at the present time, it must appear to every person of a sound mind as somewhat monstrous that our petty Municipal Corporations should be invested with the power having, not only the income but the capital of all who live within the bounds of their corporation. That the Municipality of a town should have the power of imposing a tax for defraying the expenses of its municipal requirements is just and reasonable, but the conclusion to be drawn is this, "From what source should such taxation be derived ?' This conclusion, I am of opinion, may be arrived at by taking into consideration what a town in reality is. A town, then, may be defined as a congregated number of houses and buildings which require for their use and convenience streets, side-walks, water, a fire department and police, &c. If this is a true definition, it is certain that in equity the expenses of these requirements should be borne exclusively by the owners of the houses and buildings in proportion to their estimated value. For this purpose an accurate account of the real and fixed property within the municipality should be ascertained, and an equitable value of rental rated thereon. Upon this estimated rental the required Municipal taxation ought exclusively to be levied. This is the only kind of property tax, it appears to me, which any Municipality has a right to exact. It is, consentiously, a violation of one of the "Tavern and Shop License Act" which was passed through all its stages, appointing the Chief Constable.

The Clerk was directed to write to Joseph Leudy to finish the bridge across Downey Street.

Moved by Mr. Smith, seconded by Mr. Patterson,—That the Street and Bridge Committee be requested to examine Simcoe Street at the terminus of Bethune Street, with a view of making such improvements as to carry off the water that now comes down from Rubidge Street, and lodges in O'Donnell's yard, also to examine the crossing at the corner of Charlotte and Park Streets; and corner of London and Reid Streets, and to report at next meeting of this Council.

The odious exactions of a property or an income tax are unknown to us because emergencies which alone can justify such exactions do not exist, and it is to be hoped that they will never exist, inasmuch as the present indirect taxation by the Dominion Government might be doubled or even trebled without, in the least, imperilling the general prosperity of the country. Such being the happy position of Canada at the present time, it must appear to every person of a sound mind as somewhat monstrous that our petty Municipal Corporations should be invested with the power having, not only the income but the capital of all who live within the bounds of their corporation. That the Municipality of a town should have the power of imposing a tax for defraying the expenses of its municipal requirements is just and reasonable, but the conclusion to be drawn is this, "From what source should such taxation be derived ?' This conclusion, I am of opinion, may be arrived at by taking into consideration what a town in reality is. A town, then, may be defined as a congregated number of houses and buildings which require for their use and convenience streets, side-walks, water, a fire department and police, &c. If this is a true definition, it is certain that in equity the expenses of these requirements should be borne exclusively by the owners of the houses and buildings in proportion to their estimated value. For this purpose an accurate account of the real and fixed property within the municipality should be ascertained, and an equitable value of rental rated thereon. Upon this estimated rental the required Municipal taxation ought exclusively to be levied. This is the only kind of property tax, it appears to me, which any Municipality has a right to exact. It is, consentiously,

THE POLITICAL TRIO.

(From the Globe.)

Sir John, Sir George and Sir Francis
Together one day did combine,
And agreed that they do some blackwashing,
On the head of the famed Allan Line.

Sir [illegible], and
and sought for the Government's aid,
Join A add to George and Sir Francis,
"The ship we will bother our head."

"We need not be uneasy about it—
We've got a safe thing on Sir Hugh,
Besides, we will want lots of money
To put the elections all through.

"We're gone now so far in corruption,
Our consciences need have no qualms,
Let's go to the telegraph office,
And send Hugh some new telegrams."

"Agreed," said Sir George and Sir Francis,
Then John said "Let's all take a horn,
And when we get well educated
Sir Hugh will acknowledge the corn."

They [illegible] of somewhat doubtful integrity
Then straight to the office they went,
And this is the substance of some of
The telegrams which the Grits sent:

Sir George telegraphed Mr. Abbott
To do what he talked of before,
"Please send me twice ten thousand dollars—
Sir John A wants ten thousand more."

As soon as Cartier sent this message,
He gave a sly wink of his eye,
And turned to John A Macdonald,
And said, "John, how is that for high?"

Sir Francis had "great expectations,"
Says he, "this cannot be done
Unless I get left fifty thousand,
And two thousand a year for my son."

"Send me answers per messenger,"
(Was the telegram sent by John A)
"It will be the last time of calling—
Don't fail me but answer to-day."

"You can draw on me for ten thousand,"
Was J J C Abbott's reply,
And this is the way that these gentry
Our ports past have gained a supply.

No wonder they won the election,
No wonder they have ruled the roast,
But this with their other defections
Will cause them to give up the ghost.

The country is tired of their doings,
And Rouge'ism's praises we'll sing,
For bringing these miscreants to ruin
And breaking their Tammany ring.

"TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS MORE."

Send on "ten thousand more"—
There's Cartwright yet to win—
When victory's at stake,
There's no cash used as sin.

Wherever is left out,
John Hillyard never got in—
Of all my clever rogues
He has the blackest skin.

Now, Abbott, do not fail,
This is the later call,
The charter (tell Sir Hugh)
Will more than pay for all.

FEARFUL TRAGEDY.—A fearful tragedy in Bridgewater, Lunenburg County. On Sunday last Peter Mailman is supposed to have lured his wife into the woods, murdered her, and then set fire to the woods to the purpose of destroying all traces of the crime. The ashes of the remains of a female being, supposed to have been his wife, were found in the burnt district in the woods, and Mailman is now under arrest. After he came out of the woods he was heard to threaten to hang his children, and persons seeing him going into the bush with them, followed and prevented the consummation of a second crime. Bridgewater is excited over the tragedy.

ACCIDENT.—A serious accident happened on the Great Western Railway on the 16th instant, at 5.36 in the morning, express train going east. On its arrival at Merritton, near the Thorold station, where the railway crosses the Welland Canal, the bridge being swung, the engine, tender, and two baggage cars plunged into the bank. There were six passenger coaches filled with people, but not one of them went over the bank. The driver, Thomas Cox, jumped from the train. His fireman was not so quick and got a ducking, but was not hurt. The canal officials are fishing out the debris, and until that is done navigation on the canal will be at a stand still.

A BRUTAL ASSAULT.—Week before last while John Irvin and John Harris, two two farmers residing near Gope's Landing, on Rice Lake, were holding a rather spirited discussion in regard to the pugilistic abilities of a third party, the former became enraged at a remark of the latter, and struck full at him with the cradel he had on his shoulder, intending to decapitate him. Harris raised his left arm to shield himself from the blow, and the blade of the cradel took effect between the elbow and the shoulder nearly severing it. A brother of the wounded man being in the field at the time rushed to his assistance and by careful binding saved his life till a physician was procured. No arrests were made.—Cobourg Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 19.—The conductors and brakesmen of freight trains on the Western division of the New York Central Railway last night, struck for an increase in pay, in accordance with promises made them a month since. No freight trains are moving between this place and Buffalo.

ROBBERY.—A NEW SCHEME.—A stranger giving his name as Patrick Connor was sent for trial on Saturday by the Police Magistrate on a charge of stealing a coat from the residence of the Rev. Mr. O'Brien, and a tin box and its contents from Mr. Comstock. It appears that the prisoner, called upon the Rev Mr. O'Brien with the story that a woman was dying at the latest name the railroad depot, and wished to see his reverence. Mr. O'Brien not being at home, the Rev Mr. Jones, who was in attendance, believing the story, went to Mr. Nappy's thereby thinking this the place mentioned, but found no sick woman there. He then turned his attention to the Stevenson House, with a faint hope that the caught to the plate industrial, but here also he was disappointed. In this the fellow had manoeuvred to be to get the clergyman out of the house, for as soon as he was gone, the thief returned and stole the coat, threatening the servant man with violence if he interfered.—Recorder

THREE DOCUMENTS.—The Hamilton Times propounds the following pertinent queries: Who has become of the impeachment papers since the prorogation of the House? Is the sentence inquiry which now presents itself to every mind. Have they been removed to Sir Hugh Allan, that he might destroy them, and thus defeat the inquiry into the conduct of the Ministers? Who can tell? Will the organs so thoroughly posted give us some information on this questions, which is of so much importance, at the present moment?

MISS RUDDICK.—The St. Catharines News has heard from a variety of sources, which it considers to be thoroughly reliable, that Miss Ruddick has a great mass of evidence still to publish and that he will not hesitate to publish with a still further instalment in a few days. That already published is said to be sufficient with what it contains. There are rumors and strong grounds for thinking Sir John to a far greater extent than "Dead as Caesar" has shadowed it. We hope that Mr. Huntington will not delay any longer in the interests of publication.

Some time ago $2,000 were stolen from the deposit of the American Express Co. at St. Catharines, and much sympathy was felt for the agent, who would have to make good the amount until the money was recovered. This was fortunately accomplished by Detective Carroll, who arrested the express messenger, a man named John Marshall, and recovered nearly the whole amount stolen.

[illegible] and other U. Prop. papers will carry for one week and "draw on J.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL

Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have without cost the impartial judgment of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Then in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered. Where ever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alcohol is lost in that way, and you get only the smell of Oils which they may contain.

Plough will Never Clog.

This Attachment can be fastened to any Plough without the slightest trouble, and will effectually prevent grass, weeds or stubble from gathering under the beam and choking up the coulter. Many effectual attempts have been made by Plough manufacturers to remedy the evils which this overcomes. Farmers acknowledge that it saves its cost every day in dirty ground. For Sale only by

The Origin of Scandal.

And Mrs. A
To Mrs. J
In quite unprecedented rage,
"Oh, come to me
This minute, do
Tibbs too much drinking is her bane."

And Mrs. J
To Mrs. K
That night in confidence to say
She grieved to learn
Poor Mrs. Tibbs took such much.

Then Mrs. K,
Most strongly sober
And cold a friend, the self-same day,
"Twas sad to think"—
Shocking the grieving widow—
"That Mrs. B was fond of drink."

The friends disgust
Was such the most
Indecent a baby, "rubbish she seemed,"
And Mrs. D
At bridge next three
Was that for gems that she couldn't see."

This lady well
Have mentioned, she Gave needlework for Mrs. B,
And as such note
Could scarcely choose
But further needlework refuse.

Then Mrs. E
As scroll agree
Quite properly—she said—and she,
That she would teach
The scandal least
To those who painted her so black.

Through Mrs. K
And Mrs. J
She got at last to Mrs. A,
And asked her why,
With cruel lie,
She painted her so damp a dye?

Said Mrs. A
In sore dismay,
"I to such thing could ever say,
I quit, that you
Most strained grew
On too much cognac—which you do!"

A Tea Swindle.

It has been discovered that a New York firm have for for some time[illegible] been engaged in what may be termed doctoring tea, or making salable a vast quantity of condemned tea by giving it the appearance of the genuine article. The parties engaged in the [illegible] are hurrying forward their work so that their dodgery may not be frustrated. It is now understood that the tea now undergoing this strange process was a part of the British Steamer Petersburg which was wrecked on the Bermuda Islands while on her way to New York.—The vessel struck on a reef, which knocked a hole in her bow, and for sixty days the tea was immersed in the sea water in the hold. When it finally reached New York it was officially examined and was pronounced rotten from its long soaking, whereupon the speculators and underwriters refused to have anything to do with it. The Government ordered it to be sold for whatever the lead in the cases would bring, and the price brought for 9,102 chests was but $500. After purchasing the tea the owner employed other machinery in transferring it to his chosen warehouse. It was ascertained at the sale-house that the tea was to be operated on in fresh water to remove the salty taste from it; after which it was to be spread on the floor to be dried, for which the malt house owner charged a cent a pound. The drying process will be completed this week. The next step after this will be to color it and strengthen it with chemical ingredients, and when this is accomplished it is to be mixed with sound teas and offered for sale. Government officers and importers who have seen the [illegible] pronounce it entirely unfit for consumption. They speak of it as dirty stuff. It is said that the persons interested in the swindle have already been offered $25,000 for the tea as it stands. As soon as the plot was discovered the affair was laid before the board of health, who immediately ordered an investigation into the matter. It was found that the report was true, and that unless some effective measures were taken forthwith the vile stuff would be put upon the market. A vote was at once passed prohibiting [illegible] being [illegible], but how [illegible] the [illegible] will be imposed to the latter remains to be seen. The impression is that it will be disposed of among the poorer classes.

How to Raise Turkeys.

For several years I have been unsuccessful, when at last, becoming disheartened at repeated losses, I determined to abandon the business. So I quit my garden and really found my labor less than before. But I noticed that some of my neighbors succeeded pretty well in raising these birds, and from them I obtained a few hints, which I thought to put into practice. The next year I purchased a few eggs, and was determined this time that if I failed I would never make another attempt. In a proper [illegible] of the mother turkey brought off ten young birds, I had near at hand an old house, dry and warm, in which I kept them nights, and on damp, gloomy days, when I thought it hurtful for them to be [illegible] The [illegible] which [illegible] which I fed them from my hand. After this, the hard-boiled eggs, together with bread crumbs and other scraps from the table, all of which we chopped together fine. [illegible] I could not let them [illegible] grass or mustard leaves, which they seemed to relish. I do not give them raw and uncooked food, and for my care I have been well rewarded, for, out of the little brood, I never lost but two variety, and that from an injury which it received; and as Thanksgiving I had some of the largest and finest turkeys in the neighborhood, not only tasting well, but being the admiration of [illegible] shown.

Now, by way of [illegible] I am convinced that small [illegible] cannot be obtained a pleasant as well as remunerative business, —the great essentials being proper food and keeping them in a warm, dry place, as they are the first few weeks under all cannot bear the [illegible] and rain. The [illegible] of eggs may be saved, some extravagant; but if you wish your fowls to grow fast and gain strength, it is better to be liberal, equal to it, as the increase in growth will by market time compensate you for all extravagance in this kind of feed, which is only necessary for the first few weeks.—*Cor. How to Measure your Haystack.

Measure the length and breadth of the stack; then take its height from the ground to the eaves, and add to it [illegible] of the height from the eave to the top: multiply the length by the breadth, and the product by the height, all expressed in [illegible] which multiply by the number of pounds supposed to be in a cubic yard viz., in a stack of new hay, 9 stones of 22lb. avoirdupois, each; if the stone has been [illegible] 8 stones; but if the hay, 9 stones. Now you have the weight in stones. For example, If a stack is 9 ft. in length, 30 in breath, 12 in height, then the product of these three numbers will be 3240 cubic feet. Now divide 3240 by 27 (the number of cubic feet in a cubic yard), and the quotient will be 120 cubic yards. Now, 120 cubic yards, multiplied by 9 stones, the weight of a cubic yard, will be 1080 stones of old hay.

THE REASONS WHY

LAZARUS, MORRIS & Co's

Perfected Spectacles,

AND EYE GLASSES

1st. Because they are found to possess all the qualities claimed for them.

2nd. Because they will restore sight to those fitted by the common glasses, and will often be found to restore failing sight to its natural state.

3rd. Because no glimmering or dizziness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed against injury to the Eye-Sight from improper selections.

4th. Because the system of fitting is an unerring guide to the true requirement of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—solely our own.

5th. Because the never tire the eyes and last many years without the necessity of change.

6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.

Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the one of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable value.

A full and complete assortment has been supplied to and always kept on hand by

Mr. Johnston Cooney.

Has bought Mr. Richard Reid's farm in Otonabee. Price, $5,250 for 117 acres, or $44.87 per acre, nearly. Land in Otonabee is still worth something, notwithstanding the alarm about short crops this year. Mr. Reid, we understand, intends taking up his residence in Town, where he can live at his ease and enjoy the fruits of his early industry. This is the way many of our well-to-do farmers are now doing.

Mr. Christopher Leary's

Team ran away on Thursday last while they were left for about a minute standing opposite Mr. White's butcher shop, on Simcoe Street. They went all right to about Mr. Chamberlain's when, in turning too quick, one was thrown down and his leg broken. He had been offered $400 for the beast a short time before.

Donald Sutherland, Esq.,

Died at his residence, Ashburnham, on Tuesday morning last about 9 o'clock. He has been ill for over a year, suffering from what appeared to be consumption. Mr. Sutherland was a native of Scotland, but had been in Brazil for a time; afterwards coming to Canada, he has resided in Ashburnham many years. Deceased was engaged in the grain business several years, and during that time had made the shipping of the apple extensively, by all of whom he was highly respected and esteemed for his straightforward dealings. He was a staunch Reformer in politics, and in 1867, was unanimously selected by that party to be their candidate in the first election after Confederation, for the House of Commons for the East Riding of Peterborough, but declined on private grounds. His funeral leaves his late residence at 9:30 this morning for the steam boat, whence it will proceed to Cobourg for interment.

Judge Day

Has cut loose a Judge for twenty years. He is, therefore, as free to accept political preferment as other mortals. He was the grasping advocate of the Confederation, and received handsome preferment in the shape of the Vice-Chancellorship of Quebec. on the Whistle-Wing in connection with the Wesleyan Methodist Church Building Fund has been postponed to Thursday, 11th instant. This was owing to the Steamer having to take the funeral of the late Capt. Sutherland to Harwood to-day. The committee, kindly giving way to allow Mr. Calcutt to carry out a previously made engagement, also as he would convey the excursionists from the Railway at Harwood. It is believed that the deceased could not long survive under the disease of which he

Grip

Has a Cartoon of John A. Macdonald in the attitude of a Champion pugilist or "Bruiser," with the "Commission" in his right hand and Canada and the Constitution at his feet. Huntington is standing on the Constitution, with George Brown near him to carry him off. This and past numbers have been so well executed that Grip is becoming a favorite, although but a youngster.

New Post Office at Stoney Lake.

A new post office has been opened in Dummer, to be called "Stoney Lake Post Office. Mr. James Robb is appointed Post Master. This will be a great convenience to the people in that settlement, as they were about 14 miles from Warsaw.

Temperance in the Pulpit.

A Winnipeg Minister lately preached a temperance sermon in which were the words: "That it would be as hard to find ten liquor dealers with clean hands, as it would be to find ten with clean hands in the Dominion Cabinet. Whereupon the Gazette man flies in a rage and declares such a man is unfit "to point out the road to the Kingdom of Heaven. If ten out of eleven Ministers are clean they average well. The Gazette man had better wait and see how many are clean.

Lacrosse.

The return match between the Young Canadians and the White Star of Lindsay, came off in the Cricket field Ashburnham on Friday last. The ball was faced at half-past two, and the game was well contested for an hour and 45 minutes, when it was put through the Lindsay goal by A. Rountree. The second game only lasted about 5 minutes, when the ball was put through Lindsay goal by J. McGregor. The third game lasted about 15 minutes, but was disputed. They then concluded the better way to decide it was to play it over again, which was done, and lasted 20 minutes, when it was again put through by A. Rountree. About 8 p.m., the Clubs sat down to a supper got up in Mr. Faucher's best style. After supper the White Stars started for home, well pleased with their days enjoyment. The Young Canadians had the advantage of the Lindsay Club some little in weight, but nevertheless the White Stars played well, as the length of time for the first game testified.

Buckhorn.

Sheriff Hall informs us that the approaches to the Buckhorn Bridge, on the south side, are entirely consumed. The Government had given instructions to remove the approaches, which consisted of slabs. On Tuesday men were doing so—throwing them to one side; to get rid of them, they set fire to those taken off. This communicated with the approach on the south side, and soon it was in flames. Mr. Shaw immediately turned out all his men, and set to work with a will to remove the planking, and kept men on the end near the fire applying water. By this means he saved the bridge, but the approach for nearly 100 feet was completely destroyed. The men were forced to work till ten o'clock at night in order to save the bridge and village from being consumed. Sheriff Hall, who had passed over with his team in the morning, returned to find himself shut in, and had to get a raft on which to bring the horses and carriage to this side. This he succeeded in doing about ten o'clock p. m., after which he had to come home. He assures us that but for Mr. Shaw's exertions, aided by his men, the bridge would have been consumed, and with it the whole village would have been in danger.

Bowmanville

Has had a shooting case. A man named Polard is committed for shooting at and wounding another man named John Woodward. It took place on the street about 11 o'clock at night, on Monday the 25th of August. The Statesman says:

"The prisoner, who was without a legal adviser, denied having fired shots as represented, but the evidence was so conclusive that the Mayor committed him to gaol at Cobourg, to stand his trial at the Assizes. There are some queer circumstances connected with this case, which we may refer to next week as further incidents are developed. In the meantime we express our belief that the whole affair is the result of recent failure of justice, in cases in which Poland was a principal witness. Since that time he has been persecuted by those who formerly delighted to drink liquor with him, and the threats which reached his ears caused him to purchase a revolver for his own defence. We do not for a moment attempt to apologise for him in this instance, and personally know nothing about him, but in the public interest we protest against any man being hounded by a lot of bar room loafers, because of his giving evidence against violators of the law."

An Associated Press Despatch to the Daily Papers says:

The Wheeler & Wilson Manufacturing Company have received a despatch from Vienna, announcing that the Company have been awarded a grand medal on progress, and a grand medal of merit, and also that they were the only sewing machine company recommended by the International Jury for the grand diploma of honor.

AN ARITHMETICAL WHISKEY BARREL CHANGE.

Our fair town has been the theatre of some strange things these last few days. In the Music Hall, guitars, tambourines, cards, knuckledusters, grimace pigs, and other strange articles were used in the manipulations. But the professors of legerdemain never thought of using a whiskey barrel, they only used a bottle.

Peterboro has a wit of more brilliant parts than any of the professors, for he has succeeded in swallowing and carrying about with him, (not always steadily) several barrels of Gooderham & Worts whiskey. Lately while under the weight of a more than ordinary load of the spirits, and [illegible] he undertook a gubernatorial race in ample dividends, and found it far beyond his comprehension, as the figures would [illegible] Under, and themselves are not in consonance with his usual practice in drinking a glass of old Rye or old Tom.

The one-fifth of $2,100 added to $2,100 he, his, his, couldn't, his, see, would be a little over $2,500, and could he perceive that if the [illegible] quantity and the old will be one fifth part of the [illegible] setting. But some one would make bogey [illegible] Public Office, to measure beer-kegs with, than Arithmetic. They may learn us and learn us, but that is the highest pinnacle to which they can soar, and none that measure is more agreeable in the goods

JUGGLERY.

During the last three or four weeks, the townspeople have been favored with two exhibitions of the power of modern to perform feats of jugglery.

In the Music Hall on Monday evening some strange and amusing acts of legerdemain were exhibited by Professors Fay & Keller, each in his own way. The former appeared to catch money flying to him from the ceiling of the Hall, and placed an egg in a glass and covered it with a red handkerchief; placed a silk handkerchief also red, in a pistol, fired it off and although a boy held the glass with the egg like substance in it in his hand, when uncovered it was found to contain the handkerchief placed in the pistol. Several parties in the Hall selected one card each from a pack of cards, and after replacing them all in the pack he placed them in a glass or goblet, in another goblet he placed a piece of money, and although several feet from the money, it would at his or some will, move or remain stationary. This money would move as often as there were spots on the card, and by this means he could tell the cards taken out of the pack, and having discovered the particular card he caused it to rise out of the pack in the glass so that the audience could see it. The last card not being taken up by him was not in the pack, he however, told what card it was, and by its not rising appeared to discover that it was not in the glass with the other cards. Among several other tricks was one with a ring obtained from a person in the Hall. The ring was taken and tied with a piece of red tape around the neck of a guinea pig and placed in a close drawer on a chair before the audience, he then took a bottle and from it offered to supply any desired liquor, after this he broke the bottle in the presence of all and took the guinea pig from the bottle and around its neck the red ribbon and ring.

Prof. Fabre then performed in his dark seance, allowing himself to be tied, hands behind, to the chair, and his feet also to the chair, a connection being maintained with the table, on which were two bass violins and other instruments. The lights being put out, the instruments began to make a musical noise, and were knocked off the table, the man still being tied. The lights were again put out, when the cords became loosed, of course in the darkness no one could be seen assisting him. With his hands tied in the same fashion he took off his own coat while the light was out, and although the knots of the rope were sealed, he put on Mr. Black's coat which was left on the table beside him. He again took off Mr. Black's coat still being tied as before. These operations were all done with the gas out, light being always restored in a very short time

Not having any supernatural knowledge or powers of necromancy we are unable to explain the agencies used to perform those feats, but we are persuaded that natural, not supernatural causes, were at work. Except satisfying or arousing curiosity nothing is gained by attending such performances, as the information so much desired as to the secret influences or manœuvers is always withheld.

That the spirits of the departed are in such things is too much to accept, and demonstration is difficult to uninitiated.

PACIFIC SCANDAL.

Nothing new has transpired since our last issue. The Commission feel the awkwardness of their position in Mr. Huntington refusing to acknowledge their legal power or standing. It is admitted by gentlemen of the best legal standing in Canada that the Commission is without power, and therefore unable to have anything but an ex parte examination. The English press animadverts severely on the course pursued by the Governor General and his advisers declaring that the Parliament was the only competent tribunal to investigate an impeachment of Ministers. The Government papers are saying that John A. will proceed with his own witnesses before the Commission; but all can see that nothing can come out of an investigation where there will be no cross examination, and where the accused will be the prosecutor. The Governor-General promised an early session of Parliament, say in October, to consider the Report of the Committee, and to take action thereon. We will see what John A's own Committee will do, and whether he will attempt stifling discussion in reference thereto, when he calls the House together. His only object now can be delay, in hopes that the indignation of the people might have time to subside, last speedy vengeance should overtake the end of a career which has maintained itself by corruption and by gathering around him characters whom reward, office or promises could easily affect and control.

It is no matter for rejoicing by any party that our public men have been accused of the basest crimes in the calendar, nor can it be reason to rejoice if found guilty, although better men should take their place. The stain on the national escutcheon will not be easily effaced, nor will its effects be blotted out as easily as the remembrance of the men who have so sapped the foundation of honesty and morality in public business. The poison will show its virus in the business of the Country, in offices of trust, and wherever speculation or corruption can hope for concealment or defence.

We have been accustomed to look across the lines with derision on the vices and the Institutions of the neighboring Republic because the rumour of their venality in their legislatures and reached us. In future, however, the scales will be turned and they now will be able to point with the finger of scorn at the people whose Prime Minister, the Minister of justice, has been guilty of such corruption as no leader of any party in the United States had ever been, and is fairly represented in their "Credit Mobilier" Tammany rings—robberies.

The worst features in this Pacific Scandal affair are the number of otherwise honorable men who seek to condone the crime and screen its perpetrators, merely because of party pressure. Tyler, "banditti," or pooge resuscitations, only needs to exhibit a disposition to commit [illegible] by [illegible] to [illegible] that all parties are bad, then there can be no good reason for [illegible] one of the parties to [illegible] this admission [illegible] We are told the Globe spent money in this election? Then shame on them for so doing. But it can be no reason why we should palliate corruptions friends out of the public treasury. We are told it was Sir Hugh Allan's money. So it was, Sir Hugh's money, lent to his friends. But out of what fund could [illegible] Sir Hugh Allan, if not out of the Treasury? It is said out of the [illegible] of the state.

There is no [illegible] to [illegible] be no [illegible] a new party and all [illegible]

THE DOMINION CHARGED.

Goldwin Smith, the writer of "Current Events," in the Canadian Monthly, has induced the ire of the Toronto Leader, and the result is nearly three columns of abuse of that gentleman in Tuesday's issue. He is a "Canadian Parasite." That may be a hard name but it does not hurt. Mr. Beatty might be appropriately termed a Canadian parasite, for he truly lives on her ladyship—Canada; all who have learned the history of the York words can testify. But what has made Professor Goldwin Smith so unpopular? In the past he has shown symptoms of Conservative teadencies; has taken sides with John A., Beatty & Co., and has not been sparing in his efforts to belittle the Opposition, leading the influence of his name to the injury of Reform principles. Hoping that there was a trifling sense of honor in the Conservative leaders of Canadian politics, he was slow to believe them as represented by Canadian historians; but his eyes have opened to the fact, and the enormity of the course, has employed his facile pen to denounce the frauds, the callousness of character and unblushing disregard of honor and honesty which he has discovered.

The writer does not hesitate to call things by their names, however, notwithstanding the rage of those who formerly quoted from the same pen with approval. He admits the difficulties of snapping "old party ties," and especially while the loud exultations of old enemies are ringing in our ears. "But," he says, "every party who has not ceased to be a man of honor and a good citizen must know that the occasion for such a sacrifice must come, and when it does come, the sacrifice must be mad." Lord Melville fell by the votes of English Tories who before they were Tories were English men and men of honor. If the country succumbs to corruption now it succumbs for many a day. Our political morality, already shaken by the practices which have prevailed at Ottawa, and by the rapid spread of electoral corruption, will finally collapse, and in sympathy with it, our social and commercial morality will be loosened down to the very bottom of the social and commercial scale."

He says again: "There is nothing to be conserved here but honor and morality such waifs as have come over to us of the old Conservative institution of Europe—our nominative Senate, with its ostensible property qualification and its feeble powers—the slight remaining restrictions on the franchise—the existence among us of half a dozen persons bearing monarchical titles of honor, hereditary or otherwise—the retention of the principle of clerical influence over education in a few separate schools—will not avail to control the great democratic forces of the new world."

"The Conservative party, hitherto, if it has not had credit for special enlightenment, has had credit for special fidelity to honor: it has professed to be the party of gentlemen and the great antagonist of all that is characteristically low and profligate in the politics of the United States. If it ratifies, by its present course, acts, the turpitude of which so far as we are aware, has hardly been equalled in the United States, (for when was an American President detected in drawing from a competitor for a public contract money to be spent in elections?) a severe and probably an irreparable blow will be dealt to public morality in the Country."

Well may the writer add that the "sad effects of such scandals as the present are material as well as moral," and must affect the reputation of every Canadian wherever he may seek employment, for may we not expect that, when the highest positions of trust and honor are defiled by a breach of that trust, other men will ape the acts of their superiors and look for protection from penalties by appeals to party.

WHAT OTHERS ARE DOING.

TRENTON TRIFLE.—The Whitby and Port Perry P. Line is now issuing through tickets from Whitby to Lindsay, Fenelon Falls, and Bobcaygeon, which will no doubt be a great convenience. The Managing Director deserves credit for his public spirit.—Oshawa Reformer.

We thus find others rejoicing in chronicling our loss.

Mr. Bottom has commenced to run the "Ogemah" between Bobcaygeon and Bridgenorth. The Midland people are still telling the people that the Company will build a branch from Omemee. Peterboro is resting on her oars, and making no decided effort to secure the trade in the rear. The northern townships would now willingly go in to secure a railway from this town, and several of the Reeves would assist in securing sufficient bonus to warrant a Company to undertake the construction of a railway back, and thus open communication with the rear.

Before the season is too far advanced, action should be taken. There are two railways here, can the town come to no terms with them to extend at once. We may not be all of one mind as to the best route, but practical men can easily solve this difficulty. It makes little difference to Peterboro which route wins, favors or lords as nothing is being done. Lindsay is at work with a will. Omemee is using all possible influence to get the branch to that place. Toronto is stretching the [illegible] behind us, and Port Hope is [illegible] interest in securing the Midland [illegible] the construction of the Omemee branch to Bobcaygeon. Is it not reasonable, therefore, to urge by petition to obtain that for which other places are energetically contending. The town of Peterboro is losing in political importance [illegible] which should be spent in extending her trade and influence. How long shall such a state of things continue?

PASTING IN ENGLAND.

The Newry Telegraph and Chronicle says the writer:

"Twelfth of July demonstrations turned the grand anniversary into an enjoyable holiday over the whole Province, no unkindly or unneighbourly feeling being manifested on the side of the Roman Catholic people, but on the contrary, many individuals of that religious persuasion participating in the amusement which cheery hearts ordinarily derive from fifing and drumming and attractive parade of gay but mystical insignia."

The Roman Catholics then determined to have a day of parade of their own on the 15th of August.

The newspaper already quoted appealed to its clients to observe as good behavior as their quondam opponents had done. The Catholics had set the example which the Orangemen were to follow. The writer asks:—"In the public mind disquieted by doubt or fear that the magnanimity so honorable to Roman Catholics has failed to be appreciated by Protestants, and may not be reciprocated? A concession so dishonouring to the Protestants of Ulster ought not to have place in the minds of rational men. Irishmen have turned a new leaf; and it has been seen that they can 'hear and forbear.' Since Roman Catholics quietly looked on at Orange processions, taking no umbrage at either Orange insignia or such tunes as the 'Protestant Boys' and the 'Boyne Water,' we cannot believe that there is cause for impasting to Protestants of any grade either incapacity or disinclination to return the courtesy by good naturedly contemplating the parade and the distinctive emblems of fellow-countrymen who prefer the green, and who indicate at once their musical taste as well as their political sympathies by playing and applauding such airs as 'Garryowen' and the White Cockade.'"

This is from the centre of Orangeism, and may produce good fruit wherever it is read. There are no causes for bitterness of feeling at those party displays, but, unfortunately, while there was no real cause, ill-feeling existed. This arose more from foolish speeches of demagogues who wish to inflame passion, and from strong drink, the worst enemy of order and harmony everywhere. If those who control, even to a limited extent, the destiny of the Order, would but seek to establish it for good, and first seek to reform self before becoming missionaries, much would be done to destroy the antagonism of parties.

PRESS ASSOCIATION.

From the Port Hope Guide.

The Canadian Press Association meets in London at the time of the Provincial Exhibition. They have frequently met before; and we can't see to what purpose. The annual gatherings have been mere deadhead excursions and mutual adulation meetings, not calculated to impress those with whom "the editor" came in contact with the healthiest views of the journalistic profession. On the occasion of the last excursion, we beg pardon, proposed excursion, we have heard that but two or three answered the invitation of the Secretary. This degeneracy was probably owing to the discontinuance of the pass system on the railroads, and speaks volumes for the devotion of the members of the Association to the interests of their profession.

We believe in association, intelligent association, a gathering of those having mutual interests to discuss questions in which all are concerned. Had the Canadian Press Association even manifested a disposition to discuss topics connected with the craft with a view to devising means for correcting abuses and suggesting improvements, we would feel more kindly towards what we now look upon as a fraud, a delusion, and a snare. So satisfied are we that journalists should meet occasionally for mutual interchange of opinion and the improvement of their estate, that we would propose an Association of the newspaper men of the Midland District—say from the Counties of Durham, Northumberland, Ontario, Victoria and Peterboro'—who might meet in convive every six months or more, at points determined upon, then to discuss the many and important points which arise in the relationships of our newspapers to each other and to the public at large. In the interests of the press, and its improvement in more ways than one we make the suggestion. In fact, brothers, we'll embody it in the form of a resolution, hoping readily to find a seconder.

We will, therefore, move, seconded by ——— "that it is highly desirable that an Association be formed of the newspaper men of the Counties of Northumberland, Durham, Ontario, Victoria and Peterboro, for the purpose of discussing any matter of interest to the craft." Who is our seconder?

We will gladly second the resolution of our confrere, and await action in appointing the place and time for a first meeting.

PETRIFACTION.—Among the stones taken out of the quarry on the river side, was one containing a remarkably fine petrifaction of a Muskalonge, about two feet in length. Every scale was perfect, and each mark was distinctly visible. The stone, we believe, is now in the possession of Mr. Hazlit, of Peterborough.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

The people of Canada will be glad to hear that the Commissioners at Washington have unanimously disallowed the claim made by the United States against Great Britain arising out of the St. Albans and Johnson Island raid.

IMPROVEMENTS AT THE HARBOUR.—The dredge is actively at work cleaning out and deepening the harbour, although the water is still high enough to admit at the largest size vessels to come to and go out fully loaded. We notice that a storm signal is being erected on the East pier for the purpose, principally, of giving warning to mariners of approaching storms, although citizens generally may profit thereby. Another needed improvement we notice is, that a large sharp-toned bell has been purchased, which is to be [illegible] elevation and to be used as a fog signal when required. The want of something of this kind has been very often felt, and we hope no time will be lost in putting the bell in proper position for use.—Cobourg Sentinel.

A DISHONEST BUTCHER.—A man named Peter Barker, who has for some time past been plying his vocation as a butcher at Gore's Landing, took French leave on Friday morning of last week. The sudden departure of honest Mr. Barker could have been tolerated by the dominie of the Landing but for the attending little circumstance that he took with him a horse belonging to Mr. Byers, besides leaving a little bill unsettled with the same gentleman of nearly one hundred dollars. A young (?) man named Clarke of Highgate, only 85 years of age, lately led to the hymenial altar a blushing bride of only 60. We did not learn whether the happy couple went on a wedding tour or not. They may as well enjoy life while they can, they cant hope for a long period of it.

Mr. Bates

Addressed his old constituents of West Durham on Tuesday last. There was an immense crowd to hear him. He reviewed the whole field of politics since the confederation, and the awful consequence to the people, of the actions of the party in power and of the Railway Rings, every where ready to corrupt and pollute the people. He also dwelt on the outrage of removing the investigation from the Parliament, the proper tribunal, and the consequent outrage against the liberties and rights of the people. He was enthusiastically received. Several other gentlemen addressed the people, and among the speakers was Mr. Bertram of Lindsay The meeting was one of the largest ever held in West Durham.

SOMEWOOD.

A FRACAS—After the cricket match last Friday, a disagreeable pugilistic encounter took place in our village, probably arising out of a too hot discussion of the merits of the players of the day. Fortunately P. Pearce, Esq., was close at hand on the occasion, and by virtue of his office as magistrate, put an end to the thumping proceedings, not however before some sundry hard knocks and knockdowns were given and received by the pugilistics engaged.—Reporter.

SALARY RAISED.—At a meeting of the Quarterly Board in connection with the Wesleyan Methodist Church of this Circuit, held last Saturday at the Dummer Church, the salary of the minister, Rev. Mr. Hill, was increased from $600 to $1000. Rather a big jump that for a small circuit.—Ibid.

THE SUPER LOYAL.

The Mail has again raised the howl of "rebels" against those men who refuse to be led by the nose by men who have bartered away their Country's honor, corrupted the masses of electors, taught office seeker that they were attainable for money, and need nearly half a million dollars to corrupt the Dominion from sea to sea.

Mr. MacKenzie has gone to the Maritime Provinces and has addressed the people at New Glasgow. The Mail has all at once discovered that the people of that County hold republican ideas and raises the unmeaning cry of "rebel." It was all right for those same people to send men to support the Prince of Corruption, as long as they did this they were loyal, they were honorable, but as soon as they exhibit symptoms of disaffection to traitors, they must be denounced as rebels, republicans, etc.

These super loyal creatures, however, can be loyal or disloyal, rebels, independants, annexationists or traitors to their Country at will, and yet they are loyal men, very.

In 1849 they were very loyal when they burned the Parliamentary buildings library, etc., in Montreal and added the greatest indignity to Her Majesty, in the person of the then Governor General, Lord Elgin, for merely sanctioning a Bill passed by a majority of the Legislative Assembly.

They could condescend to insult Her Majesty by pelting His Excellency's carriage with eggs. To such a degree did they go that the people of this district considered it necessary to send a deputation and address to His Excellency to express their dissent to the principles of rowdyism and arson then so practically carried into effect by the Conservative party.

We have still a copy of the address presented by Charles Perry, John Walton, Stephen Nicholls, John F. Afford, Thos Short, Roger Bates, John T. Milburn, John W. Gilmour, Thos Keenan and Wm Henry Moore, a deputation on behalf of 2,500 persons who signed the address.

We have also a copy of Lord Elgin's reply from which we take the following choice as a fitting rebuke to those who cry rebel while they themselves are enemies to constitutional government, to patriotism and to national honor.

HIGH LORD ELGIN'S REPLY.

"In place of the considerations which I might have expected to enjoy as the faithful exponent of your rights and privileges, I HAVE BEEN SUMMONED TO WITNESS SCENES AS NO REPRESENTATIVE OF THE SOVEREIGN KNOWN IN ANY PART OF THE EMPIRE EVER BEFORE—AND THE APPLICATION to Government, instead of being conducted in that temperate and constitutional manner which, being a civilized and free people, has been characteristic by citizens and subjects."

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL

Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is Thomas' Eclectric Oil, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtue of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Thus in the proportions, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combinations or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered. Where ever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alchol is lost in that way, and you get only the small of Oils which they may contain.

Sunbeams in the Wood.

From Princess Honeyah's History of Song.

Mark ye not the sunbeams glancing
Through the overhanging shade,
On the waving fern leaves dancing,
In the quiet glade?

See you how they [illegible] quiver,
Where the lights come rim,
Rippling like a golden river,
From their fountain skies?

On the grey old linden resting
Like a fairy grandchild nestling
In an old man's love.

On the dusty pathway leading
Arabesques with golden style,
Light and shadow interlacing,
Like a tearful smile.

Many a hidden leaf revealing,
Many an emerald living,
Like a maiden lightly stealing
Past each secret bower.

Oh! how beautiful they make it
Everywhere they fall,
Sunbeams! why will ye forsake it
At pale Evening's call?

In the sinking violets linger,
In the woodland vale,
Gilding them with trembling finger,
Yet a little while.

Then your last calm radiance pouring,
Bid the earth good night,
Like a minstrel spirit soaring
To a home of light.

Thrash the Grain Early.

It is always economical to thrash early. We would advise every farmer, who can possibly do it, to thrash his wheat, rye, or oats, as the crop is drawn from the field. There are many considerations in favor of doing this. 1st. By reason of the state of dryness in which it is hauled off the field, the grain is in better condition for the threshing machine (or certainly as good), than at any other time. 2nd. Only one handling is necessary, and thus labor is saved. 3rd. At harvest time grain is almost always in better demand by millers, and in general market often brings a higher price than at other times. Take one year with another, it will be found that this is the most advantageous time to market grain. If the farmer holds his grain for speculation, very well he has a right to be a speculator if any one has; but we hold as a general rule, that as soon as a farmer has his produce ready for market, then is his best time to sell. The earliest markets are almost invariably the best. We were once enabled to sell the whole of our crop of wheat at a high price, for cash, because we had thrashed in time and none of our neighbors had. Lastly and most worthy of consideration is the fact that, by these early thrashing and marketing, the destruction by vermin—mice, rats, weasel, etc.—is prevented. We believe at ten per cent at least of the grain put into barns is put there—unintentionally of course, but not the less surely,—for the benefit of rats and mice. A granary may be made rat-proof, but a barn cannot, and if it could, would soon be stocked by the animals carried in from the field among the sheaves.

If [illegible] on the farm, one [illegible] while the other is at the thrashing. If only a single team is kept, they can be unhitched from the waggon, put into the machine, and as soon as the load is thrashed, taken to the field for another load. While loading the extra hands may be profitably engaged in putting away the straw or cleaning up and bagging grain, or storing it in the granary.

If it is impracticable to thrash the grain as it is drawn, we would stack it close to the barn, make the [illegible] quite secure for a few days, and as soon as possible, thrash it out. Even this mode would tend to save labor as well as grain, and on a small or new farm where machines are not yet introduced any plan whereby labor can be saved is worthy of consideration and adoption.—American Agriculturist.

Income from Eighteen Cows.

Mr. Jeremiah Pierce of Erie County, N.Y. has sent us a correct statement of his dairy, mentioned in our December number. This statement showed an average of 24-36 pounds of milk for each cow, per day, for four months at the cheese factory. The account for the whole milking season stands as follows:

121 days at Cheese Factory	$442 38
For calves latted on milk	89 25
Butter sold	504 37
Gross Income from 18 Cows	$1,036 00

This gives an average of $57.55 per cow besides the milk that was used in the family, and pork made from whey and refuse milk, which is an excellent result for a dry season. These cows were fed during short pasture $90 worth, or five dollars per cow. of malt sprouts or bran. Much of the butter was sold under twenty five cents per pound. Not many of the dairies at the same factory reached $40 per cow, while his averaged $52.55 after deducting extra food. Let dairymen make a note of it.—Irish Block Journal.

Artificial Leather.

A gentleman lately from Bangkok said in England for working up scrap leather, and such parts of old boots and shoes as have not been burned, or the fibre of the leather otherwise destroyed, into a sort of artificial leather, which is claimed to be nearly or quite equal to any in point of wear. The scraps are first reduced to pulp. To do this, the thicker and harder pieces are put into a suitable disintegrating or tearing mill, where they are broken up, care being taken that the fibre is not injured. These are then put with the thinner pieces which did not require tearing, and the whole thrown into a powerful rag engine and converted into pulp with water or a thin solution of gelatine. When the pulp is sufficiently fine it is run from the engine into a tank and mixed with a stronger solution of gelatine, after which it is converted into sheets of thin but perfect leather.—A sort of compound sheet is thus obtained, which after being subjected to pressure is ready for use.

TREATMENT OF HORSES.—However often a horse stumbles, from any cause whatever during shoeing or trips, for the animal stands to be shod: Do not strike the victim, for his mouth is much more sensitive than your lips are. Do not use the whip, for the horse is naturally so timid that the moment you begin to correct him, he becomes so terrified that he loses control of his own reasoning faculties, and in his blind terror plunges, rears and fails to obey. Use right-hand to pat him, and speak quietly but firmly to the creature. Comfort the trembling animal with the magic of your voice, and bring back those proper joys which help your horse to guard against repeating the action of stumbling. This manner of procedure is far more human and reasonable than to yell at the animal, or lash him fiercely, thus frightening him, and thereby [illegible] doing him what was expected of him.

SNUFF OR TEA.—We condemn narcotics, but still cannot turn our backs on tea, the extreme benefit of which can scarcely be valued sufficiently. Throughout America the consumption of tea is rapidly on the increase. To the inhabitants where tea does not naturalize. It is a soothing balm for headache, drives impurities out of the system, and in the admirable concomitants [illegible] the family circle.

A GERMAN PHYSICIAN asserts a decided prejudice against potatoes. The Prince who makes a perfect science of all the whole business of nourishment and cookery, rarely eat potatoes, except occasionally fried. They consume more time than any other vegetable.

VINEGAR BITTERS

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.
No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided bones are not destroyed by mineral poisons or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.
Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are caused by the Miasmas of our great rivers, valleys and lakes, throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, Appomattox, Potomac, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, as a general rule, should precede the use of VINEGAR BITTERS, which will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter, with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.
Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.
Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.
Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and inveterate cases.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.
Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Painters, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.
For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the skin of whatever name or nature are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.
Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmentics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.
For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

From the Canadian Monthly.

PREMONITIONS.

We have now unhappily to advert to what appears upon the most signal violation of the constitutional rights of a British community that has occurred for several generations, and at the same time an example pregnant with calamity, of high-handed villainies committed under the forms of law. Parliament, to which the duty of instituting this inquiries on behalf of the nation undoubtedly belongs, and which forfeits one of its duty as the sole guardian against the abuses of Government, has appointed a committee to investigate the conduct of Ministers with regard to the Pacific Railway contract. The Committee has entered on a legal obstacle, "Parliament," to use Mr. Gladstone's words, "had again to consider what course it would take." It met with that intention, and with the grounds for prosecuting the inquiry very fully established before it. Disclosures which have occurred since its first sitting. But upon its proceeding to do its duty the prerogative of prorogation was played by the Governor General in the hands of the accused Minister, who was permitted to evade the impending stroke of national justice by carrying the record of the misdoing of doors and thereby transferring the inquiry from the Commons to a Royal Commission appointed without its own advice. Members of Parliament under the influence of the Government had stayed away by collusion with the Minister, the independent members having intended for their places, as it was their duty to do, were dismissed with contempt, amidst a burst of ... upon the members of the Government and their friends. A nation willing to acquiesce in such proceedings as this would be better without the forms of Parliamentary government, which merely impose upon it by the periodical necessity of spending large sums of money in unsettling the people by electoral corruption.

The only thing connected with this part of the matter that could justify any misgivings as to his Lordship's conduct, was the use which he permitted his friends to make of his name in pendering a Royal Commission to the Committee of the House of Commons. The measure is Parliamentary business, of no easy business at all, must have known that the Committee could not possibly accept new powers or instructions without the authority of the House. Subsequent events have justified us in believing what we could not help suspecting at the time, that the offer was a stratagem on the part of the Minister, who thus appeared to court the inquiry which it was his real object to evade. His Lordship however, declares that no one can regret more than he does the unfortunate delay interposed by the action of the Committee, and we expect, but expect in vain, his reasons for thinking it desirable that they shall be prolonged for some months more.

Lord Dufferin considers that in refusing to prorogue, and requiring his ministers at once to meet Parliament, he would have been supposed to proclaim their guilt not only to Canada, but to America and Europe. Their refusal to meet Parliament proclaims their guilt and the guilt of their confederates, with a loud voice to the whole world. But that by allowing them to go before that which no one can deny is the natural tribunal, his Excellency would have been proclaiming his belief in their guilt; a surety a fallacy which he might have felt confident would be at once rejected by every unperverted mind.

OF THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S DUTY.

Generally speaking, a Governor-General is of course required by the constitution to be guided by the advice of his Ministers, but we must demur to the assumption, latent in this part of Lord Dufferin's speech, that he can be vindicated in doing what is wrong towards the nation merely because the Ministers advise him, in their own interest, to do it. There is one class of questions with regard to which his Ministers are manifestly incapacitated for tendering him advice, and if they attempted to tender it, would at once prove themselves unworthy of his confidence—the class of which the present is an example, inasmuch as it affects the personal conduct and integrity of the Ministers themselves. On such questions he must be guided by his own sense of right and by the paramount interest of the nation. He is a constitutional ruler, but he remains responsible for his own honor and for the personal character, though not for the Parliamentary action, of the members of his Council. If he is to be a mere seal of state, and to allow himself mechanically to be affixed to any instrument, whether right or wrong—whether of honor or of dishonor—by any hand that may happen for the moment to have got hold of him, we respectfully submit that such an instrument might be furnished to the public at a far less cost, and that we might at the same time avoid the moral nausea of having a pure name attached to proceedings which are the reverse of pure. Advice which no man of honor can give no man of honor is any position can receive, and no man of honor can give official advice in any matter concerning his own interest least of all in a matter concerning his own interest, least of all in a matter concerning his own guilt or innocence, interference in which is ipso facto a proof of guilt.

GUILT OF MINISTERS.

It is in this part of his speech that Lord Dufferin makes an effort to break the force of the evidence against his Minister. He suggest that the documents which prove the receipt of money from Sir Hugh Allan derive their "questionable" character only from being "appended" to Sir Hugh's letters and read "in juxtaposition" with them. This seems to imply that wholesale bribery, which is disclosed on the face of the documents themselves though committed by the Minister of Public Justice, is not criminal in the eyes of His Excellency, who, however, did not the advantage of seeing his Minister actively engaged in the work of the campaign with his troop of corporeal agents hovering round him. But the fact that the documents are not appended to Sir Hugh Allan's letters; they are appended to a narrative of Mr. Mackenzie. Nor is any juxtaposition with those letters needed to give them a criminal complexion; they have that complexion in themselves, as proofs of the receipts of money by Ministers in the midst of a general election from a contractor for a public contract, and with reference to the relations between the parties and to the circumstances of the time they constitute, as we have said before, a complete case against the Ministers. Those letters show distinctly that Sir Hugh Allan's motive was not political but commercial. In this respect they materially assist our interpretation of documents; in other respects their plot is materially. Dr. Solicitor Foster's testimony Lord Dufferin takes no notice.

THE ROYAL COMMISSION.

Of the two modes of inquiry, a Committee of the House of Commons and a Royal Commission, we avow our decided preference for the latter, supposing that it can be invested with sufficient powers, and provided that it be appointed with the full consent of Parliament,"—to use the words of Mr. Gladstone with reference to the Royal Commission recently appointed to inquire into the subject brought before his Legislature by Mr. Plimsoll. In England matters which have come before Parliament are often referred with its consent to Royal Commissioners for the purposes of preliminary investigation, though not as a matter of right. In the case of Mr. Plimsoll's Bill, part of the heads of Parliament upon which it was left to the Commissioners to report before the Bill was passed into a law. Another obvious condition is that, in case of a Ministry the personal conduct of whose members shall be in question, it shall not be appointed by the Ministry, but by the Governor-General with the legal advice of Privy Council, or by some other authority. Privy Councillors are Privy Councillors when acting as Ministers, and a Minister of Justice ought not to put the seal to a Commission for the purpose of inquiring into the conduct of his colleagues. Such a Minister should be allowed to plead his own cause before the Privy Council, but it is no longer a question of his own cause when the conduct of his colleagues is in question. Nor is it a question of his own cause when the conduct of the Governor-General himself is in question, for the purpose of deciding whether he has been guilty of a breach of the fundamental laws of the British empire, for the purpose of deciding whether he has been guilty of a breach of the fundamental laws of Parliament and liberty which is the foundation of the British empire, and consequently the inquiry to a criminal prosecution against Himself. This is the issue between the Government and the nation.

That the accused shall not be permitted to appoint his own judge in a case [illegible] against his own person, but of course [illegible] is the universal rule of justice. It has been notorious that the Governor-General has exercised his prerogative of appointing the members of the parliament who have volunteered to serve on the Commission, we need scarcely say, not improperly. It is enough that the Court as a whole is manifestly packed in the interest of the accused Minister, and incapable of doing justice between him and the nation. It has been alleged that the function of the Commission is only to take evidence, not to pronounce sentence. Supposing this to be true, the sentence would still be in a great measure determined by the manner in which the evidence was taken. But it is not true, the commissioners are distinctly empowered to express their opinions in their report.

What will be the end? We cannot ask ourselves that question without the deepest anxiety or without much misgiving. Everything depends, in fact, on the moral stamina of the people, and we hardly know what estimate of their moral stamina would be formed by an observer talking—like Sir Hugh Allan, though with a different object—a calm view of the situation. A long period of government by corruption has not failed to produce in the political country a criminal population which looks forward to another escape of its favorite hero from "a tight place," just as the community of Seven Dials would have looked forward to another escape of Jack Sheppard from the "Stone Jug." The language held by these people is the precise counterpart of the language held by the followers of Tweed and Butler in defence of their respective chiefs. The flunkey element is also, we fear, considerable; thanks, in no small measure, to the fatal hypocrisy of Liberal journals, which is their anxiety, apparently, to purge themselves of some dreaded imputation, receive the representatives of the Home Government not with seemly respect and genuine cordiality, but with a strain of flattery of which, when employed towards a royal personage in formal days, the loyal but manly old Dr. Johnson said, that "it was wonderful that any man that knew the meaning of his own words could use it without self-detestation." The Governor-General, in his speech at Halifax, decorously described the relations between himself and the people under the rule as similar to those between an idol and its unreasoning worshippers, and we are afraid that there is in very deed, no small amount of justification for the metaphor. When called upon to display true loyalty, by defending the great principles of constitutional government, some Canadians would quail beneath the calm of disloyalty levelled at them by men whose "loyalty" is the label on a bale of goods. Not apart from these points of special weakness the perceptions of the whole nation have been confused, and its moral judgment has been deadened, by the incessant intolerance of party calumny and vituperation, so that the clearest evidence of a really heinous offence now makes a comparatively feeble impression on the popular mind. There is also the irritable and ingrained belief that every appeal is made in the interest of a faction, which renders it almost impossible to gain the public ear on behalf of the nation. Besides, if the struggle is protracted, we can hardly expect a busy and moneymaking people to keep up the lively interest or the moral tension necessary for the support of their champions to the end. Again the appeal perhaps still more formidable partner of corruption is the corruption of Parliament, which has opened a terrible abyss beneath the foundations of our free institutions. It is not impossible that for the present the nation may succumb, and that it may be left for some youth who is now watching the triumph of iniquity with a swelling heart, to rise hereafter and beat down the vultures which are preying on the vitals of his country. But the patriotic conduct of the fourteen Ministerialists who joined in the remonstrance against the prorogation is a hopeful omen—and in the political sphere a gallant effort is never made in vain.

Jeff. Davis' Speech before the Southern Historical Convention

When introduced to the Southern Historical convention recently, at Montgomery White Sulphur Springs, by ex Admiral Semmes, Jeff. Davis was received by the audience, the telegraph reports say "standing and with prolonged applause." In response to an address of welcome from Governor Letcher, the ex-chieftain said;

"I feel at home in Virginia. She gave her bosom to be torn by all the horrors of war, and her sons and her treasure for the cause, and I look upon her mountains in their peaceful grandeur, her verdant vales and her material wealth, yet, above all, her men excel her soil, and her women excel her men. Fresh in memory is the devotion and self-sacrifice of her noble women. When the Shenandoah Valley was laid waste the fair women, whose hands had never known an hour's toil, labored for the support and comfort of the army. I am most happy to know the cause for which we have conversed. Much time has passed away, many of the participants have since been called to their fathers. It is hard for those whose hearts were in the cause to think of those days without feeling their mother's softness coming to their eyes. We have been cheated rather than conquered, and could we have foreseen the results of the surrender we would have been free to-day. The time has come for us to vindicate the truth for the sake of the surrender dead who fought for truth and died in a patriotic cause. These scraps of history do us injustice. We must collect the material for the future historian. It may have been well to wait until passion and feelings should subside, but we should delay no longer. Do we not see decadence in all that makes a people great and happy? Therefore the higher the duty on us. I have received a letter from a gentleman in Massachusetts, in which he writes that people: 'I owe you a debt of gratitude for maintaining those principles of constitutional liberty on the safety of the country depends.' Ladies, I have [illegible] for the future of our country. I have [illegible] that it was my privilege [illegible] the grand and lasting [illegible] your bend, whose [illegible] never failed or faltered, and who had the manliness, whether in a foreign land or on his native soil, to assert the glorious principles for which he so nobly struggled."

Story of a Humorist.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER WRITTEN IN 1792.

Well, I have seen your friend, and find him to be exactly what you described him as being—a humorist. He seems to have imparted much of that character to every thing around him. His servants are all admirably disciplined to second his whims, and his very forebears so far the most part, subjected to the same genius. They put me upon my guard; and I know not hardly anything in the room that I did not touch with apprehension. His drink, however, was practised upon me; and, as I found subsequently, I was indebted for much indulgence to one which was reserved for me at night, and which was such as perhaps all my English palates would not allow me to bear with tastefully. I [illegible] consider—[illegible] of a pound of Scotch sovereigns, who was thought to have subjected her to the often repeated experiment. The Sc

A Troubled Redheadshed.

On last Sunday afternoon, about four o'clock, might be seen a youth about 12 to 14 years of age, north of Mr. Clinton's residence, in a hopeful state of intoxication, another boy about the same age but who was sober, was endeavoring to take young hopeful home. Where did the lad get the "tangle leg"! It is bad enough to make old fools drunk, but it is a crying evil to give it to comparative children.

Bad Accident.

Thomas Russell, a farmer living at Cobourg, died on Sunday morning from injuries received three days before. After he had thrown a quantity of hay from the loft, he jumped down, but lighted upon the handle of the fork, which entered his abdomen

Sudden Deaths.

Three very sudden deaths have occurred in this vicinity this week. Mrs. John Babb died of appoplexy on Sunday morning about four o'clock, she had been in her usual health up to about 6 o'clock the previous evening, and was about sitting down to tea when she was suddenly seized, and the doctor was immediately sent for but his services were unavailing. The wife of Mr. [illegible] Smith also died on Monday, after an hour's illness, and Miss Sarah Jane Shannon of Douro died on Monday, being taken ill suddenly, and dying in about an hour after. Sudden calls—"Be ye ready."

The Warden visited the Burleigh Road on Monday and Tuesday to see how matters were progressing, and reports favorably Mr. Kelly is using every effort to show improvements for the amount expended.

Union Plowing Match.

The Directors of the East Riding had a meeting at Westwood about two weeks ago, when it was agreed to have a Union Plowing Match with the West Riding if the West Riding Society should enter into the scheme. The ground to be chosen convenient to Peterborough. If the West Riding should decline the offer then there is to be a Plowing Match in the East Riding as usual.

We suppose owing to the District Match to be near Port Hope this year, that the Union Match here will not take place. At the Meeting at Westwood there was no knowledge of the District Match reported in another column.

Accident on the Cobourg Railway.

A Young man named Donald Carmichael from Eldon, who was working on the extension to Mud Lake met with a severe accident yesterday about 4 p m. The men were undermining a bank which gave way. He was shouted to, to run, but he had only time to look up when it struck him and knocked him down, his pick with which he had been working was knocked with such force as to strike him on the front pelvis bone, breaking it and it is feared also penetrated his abdomen. He was brought to Leahy's tavern Ashburnham, where Dr. Burrit is attending him, but fears are entertained that the injuries will prove fatal.

Auction Sale at Lakefield.

Mr. Joseph Nelson of Lakefield has put in the Market Thirty beautiful Village Lots. They are to be sold by Public Auction on the 25th inst. Lakefield is fast becoming a beautiful and attractive place of residence and we have no doubt but that all who purchase will in the future have good cause to congratulate themselves on their investment. The Lots are in the neighborhood of the Presbyterian Church.

Accident.

We regret to learn that a son of Mr. R. Weir, of this town, lost three fingers of his right hand on firiday last, by a circular saw in Mr. Sperry's shingle mill. The boy was attending the saw at the time the accident occured. We believe he is getting along nicely, but the loss of his fingers will be a serious affair to him through life. It is strange, with so many accidents occurring from time to time with small circular saws, that some way of protection from them has not come into use.

Temperance Pic-Nic.

The Temperance of Lakefield will have a pic-nic to Stoney Lake on the 23rd instant, leaving Lakefield at 9 o'clock and returning about six, thus affording another opportunity of visiting the delightful scenery of that lake. Friends of the cause from Town should join their friends of Lakefield. Perhaps in their united wisdom some means covld be designed to stem the evil they are associated to ameliorate. There should be work as well as play.

Orange Intelligence.

Bro. McWilliams, County Master; Bro. R. Weir, District Master; Bro. Wm. Hall, Deputy District Master, and a large number of brethren from Town visited Lakefield on Friday evening and organized a new lodge in that village. There were a number of the brethren of the village and visitors also present. The Lodge is called the Young Canadians and likely to be very efficient. The officers elect are:—Bro. S. Kabora, Master; Bro. J. Hall, Deputy Master; Bro. W. Thornton, Chaplain; Bro. W. C. Sanders, Secretary; Bro. C. Quinn, Treasurer; Committeemen, 1st, Bro. R. Robinson; 2nd, Bro. J. Mann; 3rd, Bro. J. Quinn; 4th Bro. W. Preston; 5th, Bro. W. J. Hunt; Director of Ceremonies, Bro. Geo. W. Fitzgerald. We understand that it is the intention of the officers and members to form the lodge on strict, temperance principals, in making their by-laws and rules and regulations. Let them keep the two canons of the Orange association, as of all other associations, out of their lodge, and they will prosper. If not, there are breakers ahead.

Dominion's Lenity

Is running on hearty line of "Beans" to the camp ground every day. Fare, there and return, only 20 cents.

Grand Concert.

The 46th Battalion Band will give a grand Instrumental Concert in the Metropolitan Rink on Friday evening. This is one of the best, if not the best band in the Province of Ontario, and Mr. Philps, its popular Bandmaster, is no long and favorably known in Peterborough, that we bespeak a large audience. The programme is a popular one. This will be the only chance of hearing this band as they will leave on Tuesday for the Guelph Exhibition.

Sabbath Service in the Methodist Church.

The Rev. Mr. Fish will preach a sermon on Sabbath at 10:30 o'clock to the volunteers. We have been requested to state that the centre of the church will be reserved for them, the owners of the pews have kindly consented to give them up for the purpose for that day.

THE CAMP.

The Volunteers of Battalions 40, 45, 46 and 57 went into Camp here on Tuesday evening. Those of the 45th and 46th Battalions came by the Midland Railway. The 40th came by the Cobourg Railway and steamer Whistle Wing, as did also the Norwood and Hastings Companies of the 57th Battalion. The ground chosen south of the town is very suitable being dry, yet in the vicinity of an abundant supply of water.

On Tuesday evening when we visited the Camp, the men were just in the act of putting up tents and fixing for the night. The field was beautifully dotted with them. Others were preparing places for the Cavalry, and everything was orderly and quiet.

We hope to be able to give a full report next issue, as we found that on the first day, complete returns could not be expected.

We wish them fine weather during their camping and drill, and a general pleasant time, unmarred by any circumstances of of unpleasantness.

There is only onething likely to cause evil in the Camp, we need not name it, but trust the officers in high places will prevent the too free use of ardent spirits. The difficulty of entire prevention will be admitted and due allowance must be made for so many men brought together, but excess should be prevented for the sake of the noble young men who are in the Volunteer Force.

Crowds of citizens are hourly visiting the grounds and stages are hourly leaving to convey them back and forward. The steamer Whistle Wing is making hourly trips to the ground and will have excursions every night, so that all who wish will have abundant opportunities of seeing the Volunteer Camp and also of otherwise enjoying themselves.

It is said that the fair sex are peculiarly fond of the red coats. They will not fail to fyle appearance and lighten Camp duties by their cheering presence and smiles.

GOLDWIN SMITH on the POLITICAL SITUATION

We have seldom read a more calm, candid and conclusive discussion of public affairs than in the current number of the Canadian Monthly. The writer is Professor Goldwin Smith, who, after a brief sojourn in the States, came some two or three years ago, to take up his permanent residence in the New Dominion. An ultra liberal in the Old Country he was, it may have been thought, bound by the very principles he had always avowed, to ally himself with the Liberal party of Canada. He, however, on assuming the editorial management of the Monthly, adopted a position professedly independent, and his advocacy of the no-party creed, of which he constituted himself the apostle, together with his marked inclination to suppoort the Government of Sir John A. Macdonald, exposed himself and his opinions to animadversion in the columns of the leading liberal journal, which may account for his cordial hatred of the Ontario Liberals and, in some measure, for his almost affectionate partiality for the Conservatives. Yet we see nothing surprising either in the opinions he avowed or in the treatment they encountered. It was natural for him, an accomplished historian, a closet politician, an ex-Oxford Professor and an Englishman withal, to express himself with a self satisfied dogmatism that could not fail to be distasteful to Canadians. Had he abstained from writing for a year or two it were better; but beginning to criticise men and measures while yet a stranger to the country and its institutions, with that tone of superior wisdom so characteristic of the English press and so offensive to colonists, it can hardly be wondered at that his errors were somewhat rudely exposed and his opinions somewhat harshly condemned. Disgusted with the excess of political factions in the States, and observing political warfare carried on with almost equal bitterness here, it was natural that he should be alarmed, and that he should advocate no-party government as a remedy for a condition of affairs which he imperfectly understood and the evils of which his late experience lead him to unduly magnify. An utter stranger in the country, ignorant of our political history and unacquainted with the records of our public men, the discussion of questions in and out of Parliament would seem to him unnecessarily rancorous, the questions themselves trifling, and the whole strife merely an indecent struggle to get or retain control of the Treasury. It was natural, too, that he should lean towards the Government, and give it at least a generous if not an unwavering support, and in the current number of his magazine he tells us the reasons for his so supporting it. He says:

"There were special reasons connected with the recent origin of our Dominion and with imperfect stage of consolidation, which existed, under existing circumstances, to render the stability of our government an object of unusual importance, and to war not us in sacrificing something of efficiency and even of purity on that account. We were glad at the last election to see the Opposition strengthened, because, while every government exists a strong opposition will always be unreasonable, but we did not care to see the Ministry overthrown. We were also glad, over, in reference to the present charges, that Sir John Macdonald, whatever his merits or demerits as a ruler, had in fact been the elective head of the nation for many years: that the national honor had become, to a certain extent, identified with him, and that patriotism compelled with justice in bidding us decline to accept any but decisive evidence of his guilt."

He had not our knowledge of the merits of the two parties. He had not our experience of Sir John's character and policy. He did not know by what unparliamentary means the Prime Minister had for so long a time maintained himself in power, or he rejected the dark tales current in the press as the mere hyperbol of partizan warfare. Yet, for our part, we found less fault with his support of the Ministry, than with his denunciation of party. We felt that he was at least earnest and honest, and that although resentment against liberal organs and liberal leaders might render his support of the Ministry warmer and more cordial for a while, he must learn ere long, what many impatiently imagined he ought to know instinctively, that the Government of Sir John Macdonald was established on corruption and maintained by debauching the political morality of the country. What we anticipated has actually occurred. Prof. Smith is a "the Grits" as little as ever, but he has ceased to support the Government, and no Opposition writer in the country takes higher ground than he in defence of Parliamentary privilege, and in condemnation of Ministerial corruption and executive interference. The position he takes throughout is almost identical with that of the Globe and other liberal journals, but his knowledge of constitutional history, his acknowledged candour as a writer, and above all, his position with respect to political parties in the country entitle his opinions to a weight and authority and a freedom from suspicion of prejudice, which all but the most bigoted partizan will readily acknowledge. He counsels Conservatives to sink their allegiance to party and display the higher allegiance due to their country. He is reluctantly compelled to admit that the case against Ministers is clearly made out, and that—

"Their refusal to meet Parliament proclaims their guilt, and the guilt of their confederates, with a loud voice, to the whole world."

He justifies the refusal by Messrs. Blake and Dorion of the Royal Commission and endorsed them, after the disallowance of the Oaths Bill He says:

"The merest tyro in Parliamentary business, or in any business at all, must have known that the Committee could not possibly accept new powers or instructions without the authority of the House. Subsequent events have justified us in believing what we could not help suspecting at the time, that the offer was a stratagem on the part of the Minister, who thus appeared to court the inquiry which it was his real object to evade."

He subjects the conduct of Lord Dufferin to unfavorable though temperate criticism, and characterises the prorogation as—

"The most signal violation of the constitutional rights of a British community that has occurred for several generations and at the same time an example pregnant with calamity, of high handed violence committed under the forms of law."

He frankly avows his preference for a Royal Commission if properly appointed and invested with sufficient powers, but he cannot say a single word in favor of a court—

"Manifestly packed in the interests of the accused Minister, and incapable of doing justice between him and the nation."

He declares however that—

"It is no longer a question as to the comparative advantages of different modes of inquiry. The question now is whether a Minister shall be permitted to trample under foot the fundamental laws of the British Empire, for the purpose of taking out of the hands of Parliament an inquiry which it has commenced, into his own conduct, and transferring the inquiry to a tribunal appointed by himself. This is the issue between the Government and the nation."

He eulogises the conduct and demeanour of Mr. Huntington, in the arduous task he has taken upon himself, justifies his refusal to appear before the Commission, and characterizes his letter to Judge Day as—

"Plainly in accordance with the principles of constitutional right, of the common law and of common justice, and entitling its writer, as the defender of these principles against a misuse of the prerogative by the officers of the Crown, to the sympathy and support of the nation."

In another column we give further extracts from this admirable article.

Mr. Lundy, as Chairman of the Street and Bridge Committee, read and submitted the following report, which was received and adopted:—

To the Mayor and Town Council of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN:

The Street and Bridge Committee in submitting this their Fifth Report, beg to report as follows:

As to the resolution of Council in reference to flow of water from Rubidge St., we submit that in order to keep the water from the low lots between Hunter and Charlotte St., west of Railroad, a drain will have to be made along the Railway [illegible] Charlotte and King St., so as to empty into the creek. But as this will cost a larger amount than we feel justified in expending this year, we recommend that the side walk be taken up in front of Mr. O'Donnell's and Mrs. Donovan's, and the side of the street filled with gravel. This we think will answer the purpose this year, and remove the cause of complaint. We have examined the crossing at Charlotte and Park Streets and find it will require a culvert, which the Street and Bridge Inspector has agreed to have done.—The crossing at London and Reid we find in a good passable order. As to the petition of H. C. Hill; he was informed that if the earth was not removed on Reid St. he could have [illegible] We have no doubt the Street and Bridge Inspector can point out where Mr. Hill can get all the earth he requires. We recommend the opening asked for by Mr. Hill. As to the petition of Robt. Johnston asking to have a fence removed from Edinburgh St., they recommend that the Street and Bridge Inspector notify Mrs. Bird to have the same removed at once, and would suggest that Mrs. Bird be allowed to place the same on the east end of Edinburgh St., and to assist her to do so we recommend a grant to her of $20. As to the petition of Robert Robertson and others we recommend a grant of Fifty Dollars to open Bethune St. from Dalhousie to Rink St., also Twenty five dollars to open up Townsend St. from Aylmer to Stewart Street. On the petition of Wm. Brayshaw we recommend a grant of Ten Dollars to open a drain on the east side of Railway on Bethune St., from Townsend St. to Rink St. We recommend that a culvert be put across Town drain on Stewart St., cost not to exceed Ten dollars. We recommend the putting down of a crossing on Park St., and side walk to connect new side walk on Weller St. with the one on Hunter St. We recommend an additional grant of Fifteen dollars to complete work on Dublin St. between Bethune and Rubidge Streets. We also recommend a grant of Twenty-five dollars to be expended on Brock St between Rubidge and Reid St.. this is rendered necessary by the work now done on Reid St. The Street and Bridge Inspector has pointed out to us the necessity of repairing the main sewer on King St., and rebuilding the shaft of the same at Mr. Fancher's, and putting in a new shaft at Mrs. Dixon's, corner of George and Simcoe Streets, all of which we would recommend being done under the Street and Bridge Inspector, he using stone and water lime or cedar, in making the repairs, as he may think most desirable. We wish to draw the attention of the Council to the state of the water tanks at the Market Square, and Church on Murray St., and ask for instructions as to having them put in repair before the close of the season.—We also recommend an additional grant of Twenty-five dollars to cover contract for work done on Street by Mr. Hazlitt, making in all $150 expended on the St.

All of which is respectfully submitted on behalf of the Committee,

JOHN J. LUNDY.

Peterboro, Sept. 8th, 1873.

Mr. Smith, as Chairmain of the Finance Committee, read and submitted a report giving the estimates for the year, and recommending striking the rate at 12 mills on the dollar, and recommending dropping the bank stock assessment.

To the Mayor and Town Council:

The Finance Committee beg to submit for your consideration the estimates for the year, they regret not being able to report a more satisfactory statement; this in their opinion arises from the fact that after the rates are struck new grants are constantly made without provision having been made for same, so that each year shows a deficiency. Your Committee find a sum of $3,264 carried over from last year, although at the time of making up the estimates for 1872, the rate struck (13 mills) was supposed to be more than ample to cover all expenditures for that year:

The estimates for the present year to meet the general demands on your Treas. amount to $30,245, from which is to be deducted $6,331, leaving the sum of $23,914 to be made up by direct taxation; and as the total amount of taxable property amounts to $1,836,859, your committee recommend that Twelve Mills on the dollar be the rate for the present year, which rate will produce $23,866.30, or within $47,70 of the supposed estimate.

Your Committee regret the result of the Bank Stock Assessment, but would recommend the matter to drop for this year notwithstanding the large amount that has been lost to the Town, as no revenue is received from Bank Stock in any shape.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

A. SMITH,

Chairman F. Com.

SCHOOL BOARD.

The Board of School Trustees held a special session Tuesday evening.

Present—Messrs. Stevenson, Dumble, Edmison, Rutherford, Scott, Hilliard and Edwards.

After some minutes Mr. McClelland and Mr. Cox took part in the meeting.

After the reading of the minutes Mr. McClelland, Chairman of the Building Committe, reported as follows:—

That they had received tenders, viz:

Douglass	$6,000
Robson	5,739
Green	4,855
Croley	4,500

All of which are higher than the Committee were led to suppose it would cost, and the only way the Committee can account for it being so much higher than anticipated was the lateness of the season and the consequent difficulty of getting labour and material. Believing that extension of time would remove the difficulty, they recommend an extension of time till the 15th of August next, and to ask for new tenders.

On motion of Mr. Edmison, seconded by Mr. Edwards, the report was received.

Several of the members favored the adoption of the report; others urged immediate action.

Mr. Edwards moved the adoption of the report.

Mr. Scott moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Rutherford,—That the report be not adopted, but that the Committee be instructed to proceed with the building of the proposed new school building at once, [illegible] into a proper contract with the lowest tenderer, providing his securities be satisfactory, and if not, then with the next lowest, and so on with the privity, if they can do so, to contract with other parties, should they be able to get better terms and with power to extend the time for the erection of the building for a month or six weeks.

Mr. Edmison, in fixed the wishes of proceeding, as labor and material were now high.

Mr. Rutherford regretted that he had not been notified as a member of the Committee, as then he could have attended Monday whether the tenders were reasonable or not.

After discussion Mr. Scott's amendment was carried. Mr. Edmison, Architect, having addressed the board as to the tenders.

The Board then arose, transacting no business but that of the Report of the Building Committee. During the meeting Mr. Rutherford called the attention of the Chairman to the fact of not ever being notified of the meeting of Committee.

Mr. McClelland explained that he notified all whose names the Secretary had given him.

The Secretary stated that he had believed that Messrs. McClelland, Cox and Stevenson formed the Committee, and he notified Mr. McClelland to that effect, but afterwards the Board amended the minutes, and he he had not notified Mr. McClelland. The matter then dropped.

ASSESSMENT OF BANK STOCK.

This subject is attracting unusual attention just now in various parts of the Province. Believing that it was a matter of law, not of advice, we refrained from dabbling in the matter, fully aware that there were enough of the fourth estate exhibiting their personal proclivities or feelings, without even the hope of affecting anything, satisfied, no doubt, with giving vent to their predilections.

The Toronto Assessors assessed the Stock, as did some other Municipalities, and took legal advice which may be of value in determining the probable course of Councils.

At the meeting of the Toronto City Council on Monday night this question was up for consideration.

A communication was read from the City Solicitor, comprising answers to questions submitted to him by the Mayor, in respect to the assessment of bank stock. Among other information is a list of the statutes referred to by the Hon. John Hillyard Cameron and the Hon. Edward Blake, who had been consulted by the Solicitor. The following questions were submitted to the counsel named:—1. Is bank stock assessable? 2. What banks are assessable? 3. When should such stock be assessed? To these questions the following answers were given:—

Upon the questions submitted to us by the Assessment Commissioner of the city of Toronto on the liability of bank stock to municipal taxation, under the Assessment Law of Ontario, we are of opinion as follows:—

1st. By the Assessment Act the stock of incorporated companies is liable to municipal taxation in the hands of the stock holders, but the stock of banks was exempt from such taxation so long as the issues of such banks were liable to the general tax existing when the Assessment Act was passed, and this exemption being exceptional and temporary ceased as to those banks the issues of which are no longer taxable under the General Banking Act, and therefore in our opinion such Bank Stock is now liable to municipal taxation, but we consider that bank dividents should not also be taxed, although we do not say that they are not also taxable.

2nd. The stock of any such bank doing business, and having offices or agencies in Ontario, and the stock of which may be transferable by law within Ontario, although she Head Office may be without this Province, is taxable as the personal property of the person owing to the same and resident in this Province.

3rd, The stock is taxable at the time when the other personal property is assessed.

(Signed) J. HILLYARD CAMERON.
EDWARD BLAKE.

(From the Port Hope Guide.)

The Chairman reported that the following Electoral Division Societies had contributed the sum of twenty-five dollars towards the object, in accordance with the conditions of the Council of the Board of Agriculture and Arts, and were each entitled to have one representative as this meeting, viz: East and West Durham, West Northumberland, South Ontario and West Peterborough.

Another of the Old Pioneers Gone.

Mr. William Tully, of Smith, one of the oldest settlers of that Township, died on Tuesday last, at the advanced age of 89 years. One after another of these brave men who entered the forest to make homes for themselves and families are passing away to their reward. Fifty-three years ago Mr. Tully settled in Smith, and great must have been the changes witnessed during these years. He was a native of Roxburghshire Scotland, whence he emigrated in 1820 to Canada, emigrating for a year near Ottawa. The next year he emigrated to North Monaghan, and lived for a year on the farm where Mr. Bonfier now lives, but in the year 1830 he located in Smith, where he resided [illegible] his decease. He was a man of an iron constitution, well fitted to battling with the privations, and enduring the hardships of a new settlement. About two years ago he had an axe amputated by Dr. Burnham, which had been a source of much suffering for several years. But since the removal of the axe he did not stay the disease. It [illegible] itself in an adjacent portion of the body, and eventually was the cause of his death. He was the father of the late Andrew Tully, well known here, and also of Mrs. Scollard, Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. E. Hilliard. He was highly respected and his funeral was largely attended by a large number of friends.

The monthly meeting for September, of the above Lodge, will be held next Tuesday evening.

Postponed.

Owing to the East Riding of Peterboro' Agricultural Exhibition having been fixed for Tuesday and Wednesday, the 14th and 15th of October, the same days as that of the West, and it being impossible for them to change it on account of the Fair to be held in Norwood at the same time, the West Riding Society has postponed theirs until the Thursday and Friday following, the 16th and 17th of Oct.

"AN INTERESTING COMPARISON."
"TWO WAYS OF MEETING A CHARGE."

Under the above headings, our cotemporary, the Review, printed last week, in parallel columns, the Royal Commission lately issued by Lord Dufferin and extracts from the proceedings of the Ontario Assembly with reference to the "Speak now" charges and the so called "Proton Outrage." We cannot see any object in inviting comparison unless it be to show the superior honesty and manliness of the way "the grits do it."

The mental faculties of the Review Editor must have been in a strangely bewildered condition if he fancied the comparison would tell in favor of the Tories.

On the one hand we have Mr. Huntington standing up in his place in Parliament to make the most serious and damaging charges against the Prime Minister and other members of the Government. He did not shirk the responsibility of the step he was taking. He moved for a Committee and pledged his reputation as a man of honor and a member of the Commons of Canada to make good his charges in every particular. That is "how the Grits do it!"

The Tories interposed delay after delay, and by artifices which to every candid mind must be evidence of guilt, have postponed the investigation they professed to court, until it can be had under circumstances most favorable to themselves.

The accused have invoked the protection of the prerogative, they have violently wrested this Inquiry from the representatives of the people and entrusted it to a tribunal created and controlled by themselves. That is "how the Tories do it."

And what does our cotemporary want us to condemn in the action of the Liberals in 1872. Rather let us condemn the mean and cowardly conduct of Mr. M. C. Cameron and Mr. Abraham Lauder.

Instead of adopting the manly straightforward and Parliamentary method of Mr. Huntington, these gentlemen made serious charges against members of the Committee, but they refused to assume th responsibility attached to the making of such charges, and Mr. Cameron refused to appear before the Committee though composed for the most part of his own supporters. Surely our cotemporary can find nothing comforting in "how the Tories do it."

THE ROYAL PARTY.

The Scandal Commission met on last Thursday, and after reading of the Commission proceeded to examine Mr. Starnes. Judge Day put all the questions.

John A. Macdonald was in the room, and when Mr. Hincks was being examined, put some questions to him. There is not the appearance of a desire to get the truth. The Chairman of the Commission suggesting answers and words to the witnesses.

Some strange things have come to light already, one of which is that $60,000 to $70,000 were subscribed by Sir Hugh Allan and others for the Montreal election.

In answer to the question—Did Sir Hugh give the money under any conditions? Mr. Starnes says:

A—No condition so far as I know. I have no knowledge of such.

Q—Then you signed the receipt inadvertently?

A—Yes, just as stated, and I did not think anything about it until it was published in the newspapers.

Q—The receipt mentions two letters which I suppose are extant somewhere. Now have you any idea in whose hands these letters now are?

A—No.

Q—Were you induced to give that receipt in consequence of any particular undertaking contained in those letters, such as Pacific Railway?

A—No, I was merely asked to sign the receipt, and therefore I signed it.

Q—Therefore you know nothing more about it?

A—No.

Q—Were there more receipts than one given?

A—I think there were, but I can't say positively. I have, however, reason to believe there were.

Q—Have you any information which enables you to state what amount was received from Sir Hugh Allan's subscription?

A—No. Nothing more than passed through my hand. I have no other knowledge.

Q—You could not at this moment inform the Commission what that amount was?

A—No.

Q—Was the Election Committee on which you were solely for the purpose of promoting Sir George Cartier's election, or for the elections generally?

A—When I first joined the Election Committee, it was to look after Sir Geo Cartier's election, but afterwards the Committee seem to have attempted to control elections outside of Montreal, but to what extent I can't say.

Q—Can you think of any other matter that will assist in furthering the object of this inquiry?

A—No, I cannot now. I attended the Committee very seldom, and my object more particulary was to see what money was subscribed by the friends of Sir Geo Cartier.

Q—You cannot state what amount was subscribed by Sir Hugh Allan individually, but can you state what amount was received on deposit altogether for promoting elections?

A—I could not exactly state, but it would be as nearly as possible $60,000 between $60,000 and $75,000.

Just think of the glib way thousands of dollars are spoken of, ten to fifteen thousand being mere trifles. There passed through his hands $60,000 to $75,000. A margin of $15,000 is a trifle in election times. Then as to the manner of giving receipts, he gets $60,000 to $70,000 and is surprised that he gave a receipt for it, in fact, did not know that he had done so, such trifles were tens of thousand of dollars in election times in the hands of those pure patriots who so desire the welfare of their country.

Sir Francis Hincks was sworn but merely gave a transcript of his letters in the papers.

E. L. DeBellefeuille formerly secretary of the Allan Company, and lately secretary of the Pacific Provisional R. R. Co., of which Sir Hugh was president, knew but little of what was given except $7,000 to pay the election expenses of Mr. Beaubien of Hochelaga, but Mr. Beaubien gave his note for it, for an indefinite loan, never perhaps to be repaid.

Thus far nothing has transpired to warrant the public to expect a fair investigation. Sir Francis tells his own story. Mr. Starnes very conveniently forgets important items and knows little of other events likely to benefit the Commissioners in arriving at an intelligent decision, for decision they will pretend to give. A searching cross examination is not to be, and the whole thing will end in a finale.

Corruption is rampant, just read the letter of Sir John to Mr. Pope, a regular bartering away the places of trust to those who appear to be men who can be subservient to J. A's interests. There is a great howl about giving the letter and how it was obtained, but there is not a word of denial of its genuineness.

The revelations of the Scandal are only adding force to the pent up feelings of those who are willing to sacrifice everything to retain office and the means of corrupting the people.

The Post Office Robbery Again.

TORONTO, Sep. 3.—A remarkable incident in connection with the late robbery of registered letters from the post office happened on Monday evening. Some children were out playing in the woods, about two miles west of the Lunatic Asylum. The precise locality is in the rear of "Sunnyside," a short distance up from the portion of the road at the junction of the Great Western with the Lake Shore road, known as the "Dog way." The children, named Lovell, first found some letters which they carried back with them to the house of a Mr. Duffy, who, on looking at the papers, saw at once that they were likely to be of interest in some quarters. He took the children back with him to the bush, and a more strict search discovered, at the root of a tree, lightly covered with leaves, a bundle containing all the letters stolen from the post office about six weeks ago. All the covers, envelopes with the letters and drafts and checks were lying there, but no money. Of course the discovery gives a new hope that the robbers may, by some means be this time found out, and the Inspector is again at work with the new clue to follow.

MORE SCANDAL—A REGULAR OFFER OF BARGAIN AND SALE.

The following letter has found its way into the Montreal Herald, speaks for itself:

OTTAWA, Sept. 1st, 1873.

MY DEAR POPE,—I want you, before we take any steps about John Young's appointment, to see about the selection of our candidate for West Montreal. From all that I can learn William Workman would run the best. He will very likely object, but if he is the best man, you can easily hint to him, that if he runs for West Montreal and carries it, we will consider that he has a claim to an early seat in the Senate. This is the great object of his ambition.

I dont think we should take any steps about filling up the appointment until we have our candidate ready and all competitors out of the field. There will be some difficulty in getting A. A. Stevenson to consent, but I suppose it can be done. Will you see to this at once? If our candidate is ready, then we must take the necessary steps to procure Young's resignation, which, I am pretty sure, he will send in when he finds that, if he does not do so, we will appoint another Inspector.

Yours sincerely,
JOHN A. MACDONALD.

After its appearance, this reply was sent to the Witness:

SIR,—Referring to the letter published in the "Herald" this morning, purporting to have been written by Sir John A. Macdonald and addressed to me, I have to say that no such letter was received by me, has never been in my possession, nor did I ever see it until I read it in the "Herald" this morning.

Yours, &c.,
J. H. POPE.

Montreal, Sept. 4, 1873.

The Herald, however, says it has the original of the letter in question in its possession and will be ready to exhibit it; while persons who have seen it say that, so far as may be judged by the signature and the official paper, it has every appearance of genuineness. The inference, therefore, in view of Mr. Pope's denial, is that the letter got into the wrong hands and was given to the enemy. The way in which confidential documents laying bare the secret acts of the Government and affording prima facie grounds for charges of gross corruption have got into the hands of their enemies, is not the least extraordinary feature of this huge scandal, and strikingly illustrates the saying, "Be sure your sins shall find you out." It bears some resemblance to the acts of a detective who, in ferreting out evidence against a criminal, violates the sanctity of the Post Office, and uses other means not over-scrupulous, but which the public, grateful to have crime unveiled and punished, are accustomed to wink at. It reminds one of Roderick Dhu's words:

"To spoil the spoiler as we may,
And from the robber rend the prey."

There are, undoubtedly, a vast number among us who will look upon the unusual enormity of making use of confidential documents as much greater than what will be considered very customary crimes charged against the Government. At all even this is a very serious document to be laid before the people of Montreal and Canada on the day when the Royal Commission begins to take evidence. If it is genuine, the people of the Western Division will doubtless appreciate the delicate compliment reserved for them of being used as as a footstool to enable Mr. Workman to step into the dignified repose of the Senate—"the great object of his ambition"—the abominably corrupt use to be made of the patronage confided to the Government for the public good, foreshadowed in the letter is of a piece with all the [illegible] charged against them in a similar direction. Constituencies are viewed as so many flocks of sheep, to be bought and sold as certain interests that rule, while newspaper organs and agents do their best to pull the wool over their eyes.—Witness.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL
Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have without cost the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtue of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Then in the process of this Oil a chemical change takes ace, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered. Where ever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alchol is lost in that way, and you get only the small of Oils which they may contain.

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER

A family medicine, well and favourably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

The CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier alternative stomach tonic, unsurpassed in the history of medical preparation. Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, diptheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is fast supercending all other preparations of the kind.

Teddy Malone and Sylvia Pratt.

BY REV. J. ADAMS, BROCKVILLE.

Of late a gold couple came
In the bar of a sailor-room out,
Where the cronie Mr. Teddy Malone,
Higher hand at the pinmy like. Pratt.

His profess as printer by
The widow reserved with a smile;
She knew'd nearly thought he could say,
But she pretended how surely the while.

"Mrs. Pratt," she first attempted begun,
"How can you be cruel to me?
I'm a love-sick and thirsty young man,
Oh, give me some gumption tea.

For rolls, never trouble your mind;
I feed when I look upon you;
To my love let your answer be kind,
And help a poor fellow do."

"No trouble at all, sir, indeed,"
Said the lady, and gave him a bow;
"Do you wish to-day's paper to read?
Will you smoke, sir, or take your tea here?"

"No, I take my tea, then will
I read your paper, and then
Some [illegible]
Then [illegible]

"Saint Patrick! I emptied the pot,"
Exclaimed the most thoughtful Pratt;
"But my honey, you've had but half,
It has muddled the top of my teeth.

"How will your good time you sampley!
May I beg for some of your cream?
The waterfowl calls but half for, while mine
My children are always by the steam.

"Mrs. Pratt, you're an angel in deed,
Here I date on your fingers so fair!
Oh, I long like a dragon to plant
Another gold wedding-ring there.

"Do you shake over my tea and sample?
Tell me your dear three fourteen of your own,
And then will but that I may love
Like Ophelia, Mr. Teddy Malone.

"Come take your weight to my arms,
And there, where's always room and rest!
When you are the desk of my home,
What a beautiful charmer I'll be.

"I have fields in my farm at Kilmore,"
Again Mrs. Pratt gave a bear,
And all that he manfully swore,
He drank with a fascinate ear.

But sorrow did the widow begin
To answer her lover so gay,
When, alas! a home-bailiff came in,
And took Mr. Teddy away.

The patent churn is the latest Rem-orse or yet produced in the boundless West. A little girl at Clinton, Wis., was recently caught in the gearing of one of these triplements, and ere she could be rescued looked as if she had been spanked with a curry-comb.

A little boy hearing the phrase that "Matches are made in heaven," said he "should think they could be made easier in the other place, where the brimstone is." This youngster's turn of mind will probably save him from becoming a gloomy sectarian.

A very conceited young man came into the Garrick Club fresh from Covent Garden, where he had been hearing an opera. He was talking in a most enthusiastic, but silly way of the music, and said, in speaking of one air, "Oh, it is perfectly enchanting—it carries me away! Douglas Jerrold looked imploringly around on a little circle he was trying to talk to, and said, "Can anybody whistle it?"

Josh Billings, in speaking of tornadoes, says: Tornadoes have worked themselves up into a necessary and I am not the man to injure their reputashun, for I believe an innocent humbug is as much right to win (if they kin,) as any other man. I have seen lots pick them oph from the vine in the garden, and eat them right down alive. I wood as soon undertake to eat a handful of putty. There is one thing I do hope, that nobody will undertake to make kasterile one of the luxuries until after I am ded, for kasterile and bed bugs is 2 things that I solemnly swear I wont have if they get to be ever so fashunable.

One of our composers has written a very pretty song, entitled "Kiss Me." A very pretty, blushing maid, having heard of this song, and thinking she would get it, stepped into the music store to make a purchase. One of the clerks, a modest young man, stepped up to wait on her, the young lady threw back her veil, saying, "I want 'Rock Me to Sleep.'" The clerk got her the song and put it before her. "Now," said the young lady, "I want the 'Wandering Refugee.'" "Yes, ma'aap," said the clerk, bowing, and in a few minutes he produced the Refugee. "Now," 'Kiss Me,'" said the young lady, of course meaning the song above mentioned. The poor clerk's eyes flashed fire almost as he looked at the young lady in utter astonishment, for he was not aware of the fact that a song by that name had been published. "Wh—what did you say, Miss?" "Kiss Me," said she. "I can't do it; I never kissed a young lady in my life," said the clerk. And about that time a veil dropped, a young lady bit in sadness, the clerk felt sick, and the dealer lost the sale of some music.

A DARTMOUTH STORY.—When Jeff Davis several articles and one of them slips it is best not to try to recover it. An Essex street man named Roberts was helping his wife to prepare the dinner table on Sunday, as one of the deacons was to take dinner with them. Roberts took a plate of steak in one hand and a coffee pot in the other, and had a dish of peas on the arm with the steak. The wind blew the dining room door partly to as he approached it, and pushing out his foot to push it back, the arm with the peas moved out of position, and that dish commenced to slide. The cold steak flew up to Roberts again, and his hair began to rise, and he felt a sudden sickness at the stomach, but dodged ahead to save the peas, partly caught them, made a wrong move, lost them again, jabbed at them with the coffee pot and upon the steak dish; and in springing back to avoid the gravy, stepped on the cat that belonged to the family down stairs, and came to the floor in a heap with the steak and peas and a terrible mad cat under him, and an overflowing pot of scalding coffee on top of him. Then he bounded up and stamped on the steak dish, and picked up the other dish, and threw it out of the window, and finished that performance in time to hurl the coffee pot and the remaining contents at the cat, which was making the very best time down the front stairway. The deacon did not stay for dinner. Robert retired to the bedroom with a bottle of sweet oil and a roll of cotton batting, and Mrs. Robert went over to her mother's to cry.

A sea-captain, invited to meet the committee of a society for the evangelization of Africa, when asked: "Do the subjects of King Dahomey keep Sunday?" replied: "Yes, and everything else they can lay their hands on."

A HOUSE BUILT IN A DAY.—The newspapers of Dansville, Penn., publish an account of the building of a dwelling house in that city in ten and a half hours, the materials having been prepared and collected on the site previous to the commencement. The house is twenty feet by thirty on the ground floor, two stories in height, and contains eight rooms. There were in all [illegible] of men employed. The cellar excavation was already [illegible] and at precisely 6 o'clock Friday morning the men went to work. Mr. J. T. THE REASONS WHY
CELEBRATED
Perfected Spectacles,
AND EYE GLASSES,
have met with such extraordinary success and are so much in demand:
1st. Because they are found to preserve all the qualities of the natural sight.
2nd. Because they will restore sight lost by the common glasses, and will often be found to restore failing sight to its natural state.
3rd. Because no glimmering or dimness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed against injury to the Eye Sight from long-sightedness.
4th. Because the system of fitting is an unerring guide to the true requirement of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—solely our own.
5th. Because the never tire the eyes and last many years without the necessity of change.
6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.
Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable value.

VINEGAR BITTERS
D. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS
Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable Preparation made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.
The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Select Poetry.

The Unseen Cross.

BY ANNIE F. BRADLEY.

[illegible]
Thus my heart is bright
With the sunlight and happiness that
Cheers the day in clear and joyous;
While darkness can blindness in my heart,
That happy should my spirit be
As mated bird or humming bee
That, through the fragrant summer time
Gleams from full flower or showers prime.
They do not see my cross.

They might mantled upon the sky,
No shadows in this laughing eye,
They see the sunlight on the pane—
They look not for the mist and rain,
The hot, hot tears that fall from me,
In many wise God alone can see—
The throes of anguish and distress,
The cries of mortal helplessness,
They do not know my cross.

And yet a heavy cross I bear—
Not scorn of self, or dread of care,
The torture of the flesh is not
The drawback to my happy lot
I welcome labor, knowing well
The forfeit then on Eden fell,
And painful weariness may bring
Relief from keener suffering.
Not such the cross I bear.

Oh, Lord in humble tearfulness
I pray to meekly use success
Not less to bear, if for my good,
But tough and patient fortitude,
Lighten the load, that I may see
The face of thy benignity,
And in its flashing brightness read,
Through thorns that pierce and wounds that bleed,
My Saviour on the Cross.

COTEMPORARY PRESS.

G. W. McMullen Interviewed.

HE IS STILL CONFIDENT IN HIS CASE.

As Mr. McMullen declines to appear before the Royal Commission now sitting at Ottawa, preferring apparently to reserve his case for the constitutional tribunal, the following extracts from the account of an interview between him and a reporter of the Chicago Times may be interesting. It will be seen that he speaks with the utmost confidence of his perfect ability to prove his case, and predicts the speedy downfall of the Macdonald Ministry. Mr. McMullen recapitulated most of the leading features of the Pacific Scandal business already published. He said he had his case ready and complete in every detail. He gave the reporter the names of the Americans associated with him in the Pacific enterprise, but not for publication. The reporter, however, states, that "they included the highest railroad basis and the most noted capitalists in the United States."

R—I have here in my hand a long and minute affidavit, covering several columns, sworn to by Sir Hugh Allan and attested by J. L. Beaudry, in which I read, "I state positively that no money derived from any fund, or from my former American associates, was expended in assisting my friends or the friends of Government at the recent general elections." Does Allan swear falsely?

McM—Yes, to put it very mildly indeed, Allan makes mistakes from first to last, from alpha to omega. He never would have made oath to that statement had he supposed that I possessed and can produce receipts and orders signed by the Ministers or their committees. And J. L. Beaudry, who attests Sir Hugh's affidavit, is the first signer to a receipt for $20,000 under the bargain between Cartier and Allan and was a member of the committee which drew over $125,000 of money paid out under that bargain.

R—What do you mean by the bargain with Cartier?

McM—The Parliament assembled in April. The elections were to take place in August. Sir Hugh Allan had so effectually undermined the French support of Cartier, through the press and the priests, that Cartier found himself face to face with political extinction. He had no money, and, without an extravagant outlay, his defeat was assured. That was Allan's chance. His proposition was soon before Cartier. "You agree to give me the Canada Pacific charter and I will give you the means to secure your re-election and that of your friends." The bait took. Cartier succumbed. On July 20th the contract was entered into between them.

R—Wait. Here I find Sir Hugh swearing that that letter of Cartier's was withdrawn.

McM—Yes. Poor Sir Hugh. He has not the slightest idea of the remarkable announcement this copy of the Times will carry to him. It will be amazing reading for the self-selected tribunal, for the Governor-General, for Sir John and Sir Francis, and for all Canada.

R—What next, sir?

McM—On the 30th of July two contracts were drawn but when Sir Hugh Allan and Sir George E. Cartier. The first was a blind, written so that it might be said "a contract of July 30th was withdrawn." The second was written by three different clerks in Abbott's office, so that no one of them should be able to know its entire contents. It was negotiated over for several days, and finally on August 5, the [illegible] contract, Cartier bound himself to give the charter to Sir Hugh Allan in consideration of Allan's furnishing money for the election. [illegible] not satisfactorily awarded to Sir Hugh, the money was to be returned to Sir Hugh.

McM—I will name the clerks who wrote it, and put it in writing, on the table.

R—Did the money [illegible] Sir John A. Macdonald know of the bargain?

McM—I can. I will even show his [illegible] Allan to [illegible] during the most [illegible] moments, to [illegible] the arrangements made by Cartier with Sir Hugh and I would hold himself bound by it. He confirmed the bargain unreservedly [illegible]

McM—I will put witnesses on the stand [illegible] the telegrams, one of which [illegible] I will name the man who wrote the record of these transactions.

R—Why should Sir Hugh pay out to send these honest men back to power?

McM—About $350,000. For Cartier alone $50,000 was spent. But Sir Hugh's campaign against him prior to the bargain had so fired the popular heart against Cartier that he could not be saved. He was beaten by 1,300 votes. For every fresh outlay of money Allan compelled him to sign a new contract, and to give a new receipt.

R—Are you not Allan and Cartier taught and the Government in its power he sold you out?

McM—Yes. He did not see that he needed us then. He thought he might as well have the charter and its millions of gold and its millions of farms to himself.

R—When did you suspect his defection?

McM—Throughout the whole summer. He never gave any intimation of it until the 24th of October, but all my letters to him were calculated to draw him out. He is cunning but not deep.

R—What awakened your suspicion?

McM—His misrepresentation concerning money.

R—Sir Hugh Allan, a millionaire, a knight, head of the Allan line, [illegible] on money matters?

McM—Yes. Allan stated that he had paid $13,000 of the first $40,000 to four French newspapers. I found that he had simply put it in his pocket gave them loans, and secured himself against loss.

R—Did he get any more money out of you?

McM—In September he wrote me here to Chicago, that he had paid out of election expenses $343,000, with $13,500 more to pay. I was alarmed and went to Montreal. All I could do was to submit his statement to New York gentlemen. His demanded reimbursement.

R—When did he break from you?

McM—The first intimation was October 24th.

R—What? Does not this memorial submitted by him and accepted by the Government say he broke off in April, the beginning of the season?

McM—Yes, but it is all brazen lying. Here are all his letters and telegrams, dated all along from April to November. Here are the paid checks, with his name. Here are his letters to Smith covering the same period, and there are copies of his letters to ——— in New York on the same subject. He intended to sell us out, but for just his $400,000 before we would catch his game.

R—What did you do?

McM—I went to Ottawa, submitted to Sir John A Macdonald the history of the business in authentic shape. He seemed afraid to move. On the 23rd of January of this year I saw him again, accompanied with two friends. I gave him copies of all the documents of the receipts for the expenses of Canada improvement and Canada Pacific bills paid by me, and he could not deny anything.

R—What did he do?

McM—Sir Hugh had him. They went on, gave Sir Hugh the Charter, prescribing that certificates of deposit to the amount of $1,000,000 be furnished, as guarantee for building the road.

R—Did Sir Hugh deposit?

McM—Oh! the Receiver-General stated that it was not the intention of the Government ever to remove the money from the banks.

R—Then there is not the guarantee of a cent that the road will be built?

McM—Not a cent.

R—Have you any further proof that the Government were aware of Sir Hugh Allan's bargain with Cartier?

McM—I do not feel at liberty to submit it all for publication. I will give you a single item that will probably be sufficient. Shortly after the elections were over and while Allan was pressing for a fulfilment of his bargain, he began to think that the Government intended to [illegible] He prepared a complete statement of all the transactions between him and Cartier and Macdonald—the contracts, supplementary contracts, orders for money, receipts for money, telegrams of Sir John, and memorandum, especially [illegible] for publication on the following morning. The Government was notified, and yielded to the threat.

R—How do you know this?

McM—I can prove the preparation of it, and the fact that it was shown to at least one [illegible] who will be ready to swear to it at the proper investigation.

R—What will be the result of all this?

McM—The Ministry must go out as soon as Parliament meets in October—that is if it will be called together, then, as is promised. The whole transaction of the bargain with Allan will be proven before them or its proper committee, the evidence being overwhelming in all its features. What over will be the up shot depends on the action of Parliament, the only [illegible] certainty being the overthrow of the Macdonald Government.

THE RAILWAY POSITION OF PETERBOROUGH.

It is pleasant to find our Peterboro contemporary the Examiner is at length entertaining a dim kind of an idea that the Grenville and Bobcaygeon is a project of importance. [illegible] which it points out that Cobourg is [illegible] ing itself to assist in the promotion of the Bobcaygeon line, and that therefore there is a big [illegible] in a big manner, insisting that undertaking [illegible] The Cobourg [illegible] of railways to the back country, the Peterborough [illegible] gained it blindfold, and the Examiner [illegible] long on [illegible] Peterborough ought to [illegible] on [illegible] railway to the north, and Allan [illegible] to [illegible] Peterborough [illegible] length [illegible] the Grenville and Bobcaygeon [illegible] Peterborough [illegible] Cobourg [illegible] Peterborough [illegible] Cobourg [illegible] Peterborough [illegible] Cobourg

The late Horticultural Exhibition.

THE Directors of the Horticultural Society desire publicly to express their sincere regret at the disappointment occasioned by the failure of the District Bands to carry out the engagement made by the 57th Battalion Band Committee with the Directors of the Society, by which a Promenade Concert was to have taken place in connection with the Horticultural Exhibition on Tuesday evening the 16th inst. Up to the last moment the Directors were in expectation of the appearance of the Bands in the Drill Shed, and they are totally at a loss to account for their failure to carry out their part of the programme. The Directors venture to hope for the indulgence of the Public under the circumstances, feeling, as they do, that no blame can fairly be attached to them, their mortification having been at least as great as that sustained by the ladies and gentlemen who favored them with their presence at the Exhibition.

Delayed.

Owing to delays on the Grand Trunk in forwarding our paper, we have been delayed one day behind time in publishing this week. Deserving the Look.

One or two of those who accompanied the 46th Battalion, were "a spoilin' for a bath. We do not say that they belonged to the 46th, for they would be a disgrace to them, but a dozen roughs would give a bad name to a brigade.

Change of Show Days.

The West Riding Agricultural Show will be on 16th and 17th of October.

The South Monaghan Agricultural Show has been changed to the 10th of October because of the Keene Show.

No Arrangement.

Why has there been such mismanagement among agriculturalists about their Show Days. There should be fixed days for all in the County, and no clashing.

Band Concert.

The Band of the 46th Battalion gave a Concert in the Metropolitan Rink on last Tuesday evening. The attendance was not so large as it might have been. The playing of this Band is acknowledged to be excellent, reflecting great credit on their popular Bandmaster Mr. Philips.

Through a Mistaken Policy

The Bands neglected to fyle an appearance at the Horticultural Show, after arranging to do so. The leaders should have fully considered the matter before promising, as the citizens are not short of memory, and Bands cannot live without the good will of the people and Council.

A Commercial College.

A Mr. Cann, late of the British American, (now Bryant & Stratton's,) Commercial College, is now in town with a view to establishing a Commercial College here. Several members of the Board of Trustees are in favor of encouraging Mr. Cann, and so are the Directors of the Mechanics' Institute. The scheme has not yet been fully shaped, but we may be able to report progress next week, in the mean time the School Trustees may engage Mr. Cann to teach Penmanship, Commercial Arithmetic and Bookkeeping in connection with the Schools.

Buchanan Property.

Mr. Dumble has purchased the Buchanan property in Ashburnham. We understand that next spring he will cause it all to be planted with trees, with a view to making it a desirable place for private residence. It is now offered for sale in small park lots, to persons who will be expected to improve it, and on very easy terms of payment. When the new bridge is built across Dixon's Dam this property will be brought very close to the centre of the town.

Ottawa and Toronto Railway.

We have been informed that the Ottawa and Toronto railway project is again receiving the active attention of Sir Hugh Allan. While we don't admire the morality of his railway movements the fact remains unchanged—that if any man can carry the scheme through he can if he will. It is usually by some one who exposts more than casual advantages that such projects are started and accomplished.

Hall's Music Mill.

Hamill's Serenaders are announced to make their debut in Peterboro' on the 19th inst., in the Music Hall. They come here bearing the praise of the public who have heard them, and the commendation of the press. Messrs. Hugh and Arthur Hamill rank with the first vocalists of the Dominion. The manager takes pleasure in announcing the engagement of Mr. Nell West, one of the best comedians on the American stage, who has only been found with the first-class company's of the country, in connection with a host of other artists, all selected for their genuine merits. Read the comments of the Quebec Chronicle; "Mr. Hugh Hamill, in his song, Killarney, stopped with unrestrained pathos the sentimental chaunsets of all present. Mr. Hamill is no mere mechanical vocalist; he evidently feels what he utters, and his deep, powerful and well managed tones thrill with electric force. The troupe is one of far more than ordinary excellence of composition, and its members favor one with full of hearty enjoyment.

Almost Drowned.

As the Steamer Whistle-Wing was leaving the Camp ground on Tuesday afternoon, four boys suffered a very near escape of being drowned. While the passengers were getting aboard, the boys had loosened their punt behind the punt belonging to the steamboat, unobserved. As soon as she started, the boys moved forward as if intending to enter the forward punt, or to get on board the boat. Their going forward caused their frail craft to sink and dip water badly, which caused them to go back a little, they, however, made a second attempt to get on the forward punt, this with the motion of the steamboat drew the hind punt under the water and their rushing to one side all capsized. The boys appeared able to swim, but their sudden and unexpected dip so disconcerted them, that they did not know enough to strike for the shore which was not more than 25 or 30 feet from them. Fortunately there was a man in another punt close by who rescued two of them, two men from the shore swam out and saved the other two, one of them having gone down once and was just sinking a second time as he was caught and taken to the shore. The boys got a good ducking and a fright that may be useful to them. No blame can be attached to the hands on the Whistle Wing as the whole thing did not occupy three minutes and they had got behind the boat unseen in the crowd of passengers with the intention of getting a cheap sail to town no doubt.

At the "Locks" again some young men who had come up the river in another punt, kept too near the strong current at the wing dam and were swept into the stream. The water was too low to sweep them over into the current and deep water below or they would have suffered a narrow escape for life, some men in a boat took them safely ashore from the pier.

Painful and Fatal Accident.

Whilst Mr. John Walsh of Douro was on his way home on Saturday evening, and just as he was going down what is known as "Walsh's Hill," we learn the tongue of the waggon broke, and causing the horses to get away from the waggon and dragging or causing him to fall off the load which he had with him. Falling in the front of the waggon, one of the wheels passed over him, causing injuries which he survived only two hours. He was about 40 years of age and leaves a wife and family to mourn the unfortunately bereavement.

Musical, Literary and Entertaining.

On the evening of the 10th instant a very pleasant Musical and Literary Entertainment was held in the Wesleyan Church School Room. The programme consisted of Music, both vocal and instrumental, and Readings. During the intermission, those who wished were supplied with refreshments in the anterooms. The vocal music was supplied by Miss Clemes of Port Hope, and Misses Bletcher and Cummings and Mr. Quincey of Peterboro. Miss Clemes is a very talented singer, and we hope may be induced to favor us again with her presence and her song. She sang the "Child of the Regiment," and "Waiting for the Tide," and was heartily encored after both pieces. The instrumental music consisted of a Piano Solo and a Duett, the first was executed by Miss McCarrol, and was received with applause. The duett by the Misses Hilliard was excellent, and gave evidence of considerable musical talent. The readers were Mr. Stapley, B.A. who read "The Poet and the Angel," Mr. Christie, B.A. read first "The Face against the Pane," and on being encored gave the "Burial of Moore," and A. Boulbee, Esq., M.P.P. who read selections from Scott, Moore and Bishop Heber. The evening was felt by all present to be a very pleasant one, and the arrangements reflected great credit on Miss Matthews and the ladies who assisted her in conducting it so satisfactorily. Their success may induce them to get up a similar entertainment ere long.

Hymeneal.

Mr. Geo Stothers, Hardware Merchant of this town has found that single blessedness is not blissfulness, and on Wednesday last to the Hymeneal altar the young, the gay, the beautiful object of his choice whose name may gathered from another column. The ceremonies were performed by the Rev. K. McLennan in the presence of a select company. After the solemn words were pronounced, they took their departure on a wedding tour. We wish them a pleasant one and a safe return, and a long and happy future; and would say to other young gentlemen and fair ladies, go and do likewise.

Sale by Auction.

The Trustees of the Wesleyan Church offer for sale by public auction, the lots recently purchased by them on Simcoe-brooke Street. The auction will be on the ground on Wednesday, 24th, at 3 p.m. The lots are well situated and will no doubt sell readily. See their notice.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

The Camp broke up yesterday, the Cobourg Battalion returning home by the steamer Whistle-wing, and the other battalions by the trains, except the 57th, which, of course, remained here for the protection of our fair town and its fair citizens. During the time of the Camp it was the great place of attraction, never before did so many visitors pass to and from that part of the town.

The Cavalry strength was about 180 consisting of troops from Peterboro, Port Hope and Cobourg.

The Infantry consisted of what was called four Battalions:

The 40th or what may be known as the Cobourg and Northumberland Battalion, consisted of nine Companies and mustered about 300 officers and men.

The 45th or West Durham and Victoria Battalion was represented by three Companies, about 150 officers and men.

The 46th or East Durham Battalion consisted of six Companies or about 300 officers and men.

The 57th or Peterboro Battalion consisted of six Companies, about 325 officers and men.

The number in Camp would therefore be as near as possible to 1000, all told.

During the time the Town was as quiet as could be expected, and perhaps the Camp too, under the circumstances. Officers have apparently to wink at some of the short comings of their men under existing regulations.

Although there were numerous crowds there daily and nightly, and the men on drill daily, we have heard of only one accident of any moment, that to one of the Norwood Company, which it is feared will cause the loss of an eye. It happened through some one having some whiskey in them he could control and was swinging the empty bottle round him, when it struck a gun and a splinter struck the eye of the man, whose name we have not heard, and the surgeon believes will cause the loss of it.

On Monday the Militia left them, the inhabitants were a general holiday in the forenoon to accompany the Militia, who were on their way to the depot. The Deputy Adjutant General, General the Brigade for their steadiness and efficiency for the time. The sight was enjoyed very much by civilians, especially the citizens, which seemed to please all, and more especially as their style on Tuesday was copied from our Cousins, "a great battle fought and no one killed on our side."

There must have been 8,000 to 10,000 spectators on the ground comparing them with volunteers in numbers. The fields and fences were literally full of men, women, children, carriages, &c. There was not a horse or carriage in the Livery Stables but was engaged, some going several times to the grounds, and the steamer Whistle-wing took down about 500, she going four or three times, and farmers with their families had come 20 and 30 miles to see the volunteers, perhaps some were there to see each other. The day was pleasant, and but for the "curse of Canada," all nature conspired to make the evening a pleasant one.

A number of volunteers remain here for the shooting match to-day and to-morrow, but the Battalions proper left yesterday.

We hope that the effects of their stay at Peterboro may not lead to the same result as were declared of the Camp at Kingston. Many of our best young men are volunteers, and for their sakes, all that leads to evil should be discountenanced.

THE MILLBROOK EXCURSION.

This excursion was a complete success. About 200 gentlemen and ladies took advantage of the occasion to witness the beautiful scenery of the back Lakes. The cars arrived at Peterboro about 9 a.m., and at Lakefield about 10 o'clock, but owing to a desire to secure a string band for those who might be inclined "to trip the light fantastic toe," the Chippawa did not leave the wharf till 11.

When once on the way, all went as merry as a marriage bell, except the little delay caused by "locking" through the boat and scow. The party never having visited Clear Lake, were delighted with the beautiful expanse of clear water and the surrounding scenery, especially where the towering rocks of "big island" and those that exhibited their monster heads from the water as the steamer passed to the narrows, about to enter Stoney Lake. Here, however, their anticipation in regard to the scenery of Stoney Lake was deemed not to be realized, several large booms of logs were in the narrows, and the Captain feared to venture past them least some change in position should compel him and his party to spend a night on the lakes. Much against their will, the excursionists were forced to give way to the inevitable, and postpone their visit to the scenery beyond to some future time.

They were landed a little north of "big island" and soon all were busy in preparing to supply the wants of the inner man, after which, a stroll over the rocks to the top of "mount rascal" enabled the few who were not afraid of the toil to see the promised water (not land). Those who preferred ease to labor were to be seen botanizing or whispering their secret troubles into the ears of some fair one, that she might, by sharing them, enable them to bear the burden of their sorrow.

About 5 o'clock the Chippawa left the neighborhood of "mount rascal," homeward bound. Along Clear Lake the greater part engaged in the dance. A few were to be heard discussing the moral effects of the custom, for the moralists were there also, and some were stoically indifferent to what was going on, excepting what engaged happy self and perhaps another.

All arrived safely at Lakefield about 6.30 p.m. and were soon aboard the train and moving homeward.

The excursion was a pleasant one, the day was beautiful, the air mild and salubrious. The party were happy and cheerful and nothing happened to mar the pleasures except the disappointment of stopping short of the object of their ambition, caused by those "thrusted" logs.

THE SCANDAL COMMISSION.

The Commission drags slowly along. The Commissioners are not over-anxious to learn too much about the way the money was obtained or how it was spent. Judge Day shows himself the regular partizan, and whenever he finds evidence likely to criminate his masters he carefully eschews following it out too closely. Sir John is generally present, and as prosecutor questions the evidence against himself, but not exactly, as any one can easily imagine.

Mr. Campbell, late Postmaster General, has given evidence, and has admitted that John A. told him of a fund to carry the Ontario Elections, and also that John A. had succeeded in securing a discount for John Hilliard Cameron. Step by step though not thinking it, they are verifying the statements of Mr. McMullen, and when a proper investigation takes place, the whole truth perhaps will be brought out. Still this is doubtful, as the whole truth is difficult to be obtained from those accused of such crimes.

We do not think the evidence now being taken of sufficient importance or scope, may to give a synopsis of it. The investigation is being conducted in a way that robs people of confidence in the result. There is a rumour that the Parliament will be assembled in the latter part of October. Then the proper tribunal will surely have the matter referred to them, when a more searching and less partizan Commission or Committee will undertake what the Commission has failed to perform.

The people of Canada desire only the truth, and nothing short of this will satisfy them. If it cannot be elicited now, another election will at hand, extract these, who have so dishonored our country for retribution.

ANOTHER SCANDAL.

Just as the Commissioners are investigating the Pacific Scandal a second one comes to light in which is now known as the Pope-McDonald letters. The Honorable John Young is Inspector of Flour for Montreal, and is also a member of the House of Commons. A row not has been passed, and contrary to the intention of that act. It appears he is no word of that Mr. Young cannot retain his seat and the Impossibility. Sir John A. knows this, and writes to Pope, a member of the Cabinet, to try and get Wm. Workman to become a candidate in John A's interest, promising Workman, a seat in the Senate if he will but resigned Montreal in the Conservative interest, and also hinting that a Mr. Stevenson is to be brought out of the way, and Mr. Young, as soon as all is ready, dissed to resign. The letter deals in very unceremoniously into the Honorable Mr. Young's office box, and is published. The documents into the people by surprise, and the consequent ire of the people everywhere knows no bounds.

John A. Smith is caught nicely, and is causing a searching investigation of what he styles post office robbery. Hon. Mr. Young states that letter came addressed to him in his box, and he, of course, seeing that John A. was trying to barter him for Mr. Workman, published it. It does appear strange indeed how he got the letter, but it will yet be found to be the work of some disappointed office seeker near John A.'s own shirts, not Mr. young, who fished the letter and sent it to the man about to suffer by it. It is not a stolen letter; yet we hardly think it right to publish it,- although to do so might be retaliation for the McIntyre letters or the quietous fund. Very evidently the ships have conspired against the master tricksters, and this is only an indication of the way his folly is dashing him against the breakers formed by his own hands. Justice may be delayed, but it comes eventually.

THE TOWN DEBENTURES.

We have been arranging the debentures indebtedness with a view to publishing in detail the whole thing from the first to the present time, with the authority for issueing them, their face value and amount realized as far as can be ascertained from the books of the Town Clerk and the Secretary of the Commissioners, for the information of our readers. We are not so doing because we hope to make discoveries, but because people are liable to be misled by distributes of a certain character. We feel certain that all who know Mr. O'Beirne, the Secretary-Treasurer of the Commissioners, have a guarantee that what he has done was by authority, and free from collusion of any kind. Then, too, the Commissioners are men of large property interests in town, who must pay the heaviest part of all taxes levied, and hence self interest would prevent their placing a burden on themselves. But the name of Mr. Wm. Hall, the Chairman, is guarantee enough for the proper and faithful management of all committed to the keeping of the Trust Commissioners.

Next week we hope to have a full statement ready, which we will submit to the ratepayers as free from prejudice of any sort. Afterwards we will be in a position to discuss the advantages or disadvantages of the arrangements, as the case may be. Until then comment is unnecessary.

HORTICULTURAL SHOW.

The Fall Show of the Horticultural Society was held on Tuesday evening, in the Drill Shed. There were a good many people in the shed, but the absence of the bands as arranged for, diminished the pleasures of the evening. The show was not equal to former ones in the number and variety of things exhibited, but what was shown was really good, or nice as the case might be. There was a too evident diminution in the Ladies' work, and fine arts, plants and flowers were not largely represented, and there were few entries of Poultry.

The fruit show was very good, especially in apples, plums and grapes. Mr. Jas. Campbell had some very fine apples. Mr. John McLelland some excellent plums and crab apples, and Mr. Dumble, Mr. Best and Mr. Kingan, varieties of grapes. Mr. A. Retherford showed some very fine plums which were highly recommended.

In roots and vegetables there were some fine samples of what can be grown even in a dry season, but the number of competitors was small.

In potatoes the Early Rose was the favorite, and Mr. McLelland and Mr. Jas. Campbell were the chief exhibitors. Jas. Hall, Esq., showed some new kind brought here about a year ago from Prince Edwards Island. They are very prolific and large, the product of a "hill" being something wonderful, but their table quality was not known.

The apparent indifference to these shows was too evident, and is being attributed to causes that should be guarded against. Perhaps the hint may induce the members to look out the true cause and remove it.

OUR CALIFORNIA LETTER.

Analine, Cal., Aug. 23th, 1873.

DEAR EXAMINER:—In addressing you at this time, I purpose to give you an account of the Dedication of the Presbyterian Church here, which took place on the 17th of this month. I believe in some of my letters I mentioned that the few members here—somewhat less than thirty—purposed to erect a house of worship for the use of the congregation, and I think I said that I did not know where the money would come from. We commenced however in earnest and had a subscription list passed round, and being so well satisfied with the result of the canvas that we thought we were justified in proceeding with the work.

The building is of frame, and was built on the plan and specifications kindly donated by an Architect in Sanfrancisco, to one of the Elders of the congregation. The size is somewhere about 30x50ft.; it sits well up from the ground and looks well, being painted white outside; inside the walls are plastered, and the wood work varnished, as well as the seats; so that altogether inside every part looks well. There is a small gallery which will hold about fifty people, which is also well finished. On the pentagon landing from the door to the pulpit matting has been placed, and on the pulpit floor, a carpet of a very pretty pattern. On the top of the building stands a dome somewhat resembling the dome on some of the public buildings in Canada. It certainly gives the building a very church appearance, yet to my mind a Presbyterian steeple with its tall vane pointing upwards would have been more becoming, pointing as it would towards the Heavenly land, and warning the worshippers as they enter the gates to flit their thoughts from below and follow the line indicated by the all-powerful. The Building Committee however followed the plan. Having now given you a short description of the building I will endeavor to do a little in the same way about the dedication:

On the day of opening the house which is seated for about 300 people, was crowded to the door; on the platform sat the Pastor of the congregation surrounded by several Rev. Gentlemen who had kindly taken up their abode in this fair clime, their health compelling them to relinquish the ministerial labour for the pretended occupation of the farm; yet when such a festival came round they came forth again and nobly did each one perform the portion of the service assigned to them. In the centre of the platform, however, sat one, the guest of all—the Rev. Pomeroy D. Bin, of Chicago, who having been on his tour of inspection connected with the Church, kindly consented to preach the opening sermon. The Rev. Gentleman on this occasion [illegible] from the 84th Psalm, 1st verse, "How amiable are thy tabernacles, O Lord of Hosts." He was a master of all Scripture that bore on the subject, and in many bright stars in the Church—after laboureing in Home and Foreign Lands in the service of Him whose command is: "That they should go into the whole world to preach the everlasting gospel" Punctually at eleven o'clock the choir commenced and sung a short voluntary, after which the services were proceeded with as in the enclosed. When the centre of the day rose to address the congregation, every eye was fixed on the platform, and judging from the breathless silence of such a mixed up audience, his words were received with marked respect.

Then followed the report of the Trustees of the Church, which showed that the site of the building cost $600; the building 3,307.72; collected from subscription, 2,450.23; and the sum of about $800, receivable from the Church Erection Fund.

When we could certify to the Home Mission Committee that this sum would clear the Building of debt, that Committee requiring us to give the whole church a mortgage on the property, which instrument shows that should the church be sold, that the money and interest given to the church should be paid back. In order then to endeavor to gather the amount still wanting being over $250, a collection was taken up, and in a little while the money was raised except $10, on hearing this stated aloud in the church, one of the elders of the church was seen making his way towards the altar with the money, when the attention was arrested by one individual calling out "here it is for you," thus leaving the church $10 in advance of the debt. On seeing this our worthy Pastor said in a tone of voice which showed the feeling of the heart, "let us all rise up and sing the hymn Praise God from whom all blessings flow." At the conclusion of which the Trustees and Members of the church, some 20 people, were asked to stand up while the Pastor dedicated the church. The Pastor then asked various questions regarding the holding of worship in the church from time time, and the members were required to answer by saying yes, sir.

When this was over the service was concluded according to the programme, and all left well satisfied with what they had seen and heard.

Now a word about the subscriptions received. In several instances carpenters gave $50, some $100 and some more, some less; really you would be surprised at the amount subscribed for the church erection by the people around—then we received from a gentleman in New York $300 as a present. From ladies in San-francisco and Illanois, who were known to some of the members, we received quite a sum. Again we have the gratifying intelligence from two ladies of the State of New Jersey, that they present us with a handsome pulpit Bible and Hymn Book. Truly our hearts overflow with gratitude to all, who by their donations and services have assisted us to rear a Temple to the name of the King of Kings. Starting as we did with little over twenty members of the church around as it appears to me truly a great work, and we are under many obligations to two lady members, who manifested such interest in the collection fund for the completion of such a building.

But now having extended this letter beyond the usual length I am afraid it will tire your patience, and although I could write more on the subject, I find I must bid you again good bye.

Yours truly,

JOHN HUNTER.

CORNWALL FREEHOLDER.

This journal is becoming independent in politics. It was reform in John Sandfield's balmy days, went over with him to the "Combination," but now is neither "grit" nor "union for prog." It is independent enough to condemn the Pacific Scandal, the Royal Commission, and the pope McDonald letters.

The following from our confrere deserves to be read by every one:—

The publication of the Macdonald-Pope letter has created excitement to an extent that probably was not anticipated by the parties to the deed. It is not a common circumstance that creates such a fever in the public mind. The wanton publication of a private letter, by parties who had the means of publicity ready at their command, unless the subject were of as astounding nature, could not provoke the excitement and the criticism which have been aroused with reference to this case. The excitement has all arisen out of the circumstance that the letter from Sir John A. Macdonald to his colleague was an extraordinary one, and was intended to affect the public interest in a way that, by a very large number of people, would be considered hurtful and demoralising. Had not the letter been of this character it would assuredly never have been published, nor would there have been such a ligely sensation produced in the ministerial mind by the exposure of its contents. Ministers of the Crown, holding in trust the powers of the Government and the patronage of the State are not permitted by any honest that we are aware of to devote that use to partizan purposes. Not only are they not allowed, but it is held by the law of Parliament to be highly criminal, to do so. Sir John A. Macdonald ventured to propose doing in his letter to Mr Pope, what persons in his position have not the right to do. That letter misdirected, found its way into the hands of Sir John's political opponents by no connivance of theirs, and was given to the public in the columns of the Montreal Herald. And we are bound to say that the Herald had the right, it it had the disposition, to make the exposure. The theft of the letter, or the irregularity, whatever it may have been, by which the letter was intercepted, cannot be justified by any one, nor does any one, so far as we have seen, attempt to condone the offence. But a letter of that character innocently come by is a proper subject of prompt and unsparing exposure. Upon this point English Parliamentary law is very clear, as given in a resolution of the House of Commons:—

"On the 19th Dec., 1879, it was the Resolution of this House, of the 28th day of November last, "That it is high infringement of the liberties and privileges of the House of Commons of Great Britain for any Lord of Parliament, or any Lord Lieutenant of any county, to concern themselves in the election of members to serve for the Commons of Parliament," might be read, and the same was read accordingly, upon which it was

"Resolved, that it is highly criminal in any minister or ministers, or other servants under the Crown of Great Britain, directly or indirectly, to use the powers of office in the election of representatives to serve in Parliament and an attempt at such influence will at all times be resented by this House as aimed against its Honor, Dignity and Independency, as an infringement of the dearest rights of every subject throughout the Empire, and tending to sap the basis of this free and happy constitution."

This is not a statutory enactment, it is part and parcel of the Law and privileges of Parliament, and as such, is, by the British North America Act, the Parliamentary law of Canada. It is well known that Sir John proposed in the letter in question doing what is very commonly done, but the law of common does sought to be established by those who attempt to justify the purpose of the letter, cannot be imposed upon those who refuse to be bound by it. The Ministers may hold that common law warranted them in the doing of what the law of Parliament declares to be "highly criminal," and they may find their friends enthusiastically interested, sufficiently devoted to their service to sustain them in their "highly criminal" proceedings, but they have no right to do so, and the public will not tolerate them their impunity.

It appears to us that this [illegible] gone [illegible] matter. [illegible] this is [illegible] the [illegible] make the [illegible] have to [illegible] Sir John [illegible] Pope [illegible] Pope [illegible] Pope

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL
Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgment of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of oil of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Selects a physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Then in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which possesses the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered. Where ever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alcohol is lost in that way, and you get only the small of Oils which they may contain.

True wealth of human kind—
One tills the ever generous earth,
The other tills the mind.

THE REASONS WHY
LAZARUS, MORRIS & Co's
CELEBRATED
Perfected Spectacles,
AND EYE GLASSES
[illegible]
2nd. Because they will restain sights abused by the common glasses, and will often be found a means of restoring failing sight to its natural state.
3rd. Because no glimmering or dimness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed superior to any in the Eye Sight from inappropriate notions.
4th. Because the system of selling is as unerring guide to the true requirement of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—ready for our own.
5th. Because the owner of a pair can sell and last many years without the necessity of change.
6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.
Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable value.
A full and complete assortment has been supplied to and always kept on hand by

THE SCANDAL.

Extract from the evidence of John A. Macdonald before the Commission. It is so lengthy we cannot afford to give it in full.

The Chairman, addressing Sir John, said—You are aware, Sir John, of the charges relating to the construction of the Pacific Railway Company, and the raising and distribution of the funds for the promotion of the elections in 1872, into which the Commissioners are enjoined to inquire. Will you have the goodness to state to the Commissioners all the facts within your knowledge relating to the matter?

A. I suppose I had better give my statement in a narrative form?

The Chairman—I think so.

Sir John Macdonald then made the following statement. He said, in the session of 1871 resolutions were passed admitting British Columbia into the Dominion, and it was then agreed that a railway connecting the Pacific with the Atlantic system of railways would be constructed within ten years. At the same session there was a resolution passed in the House of Commons that the railway should be constructed by private enterprise, and aided by public subscriptions in money and land. There were no further proceedings that session, except a vote to defray the expenses of the survey of the land, but it was understood that the Government would parliament at its next session a scheme for the construction of the road. The surveys were commenced and carried on during that summer, but the Government took no active measures with respect to the construction of the road, or the formation of companies for that purpose. In April had not requested a solemn, when one day it was called upon by Mr. Waddington in Ottawa. Mr. Waddington was an English gentleman, whom I knew well. He had formerly resided in British Columbia, and had spent a good deal of money on railway surveys and explorations, and was, on England in the matter. He told me that by his invitation, as I understood it, some American capitalists from Chicago were coming to Ottawa to make a proposition to the Government for the construction of the railway. I told Mr. Waddington that I thought this movement was premature; that the Government could make no arrangements until they had submitted their scheme or schemes to Parliament, and obtained the sanction of Parliament. He seemed to be a good deal disappointed, but said he hoped that I would not refuse to see them. I said, certainly not; I would be glad to see the gentlemen, and Sir Francis Hincks and myself, we being the only two Ministers then in town, saw these gentlemen. We told them that we thought it was premature. We said, as a matter of politeness, that we were glad to see that American capitalists were looking for investments in Canada, but that we could not make any propositions, or make any arrangements with any body until after the next session. They said that they were prepared; that they had communicated with a number of capitalists in New York and elsewhere, whose names they mentioned at the time, and I think struck out a list to Sir Francis Hincks and myself of those who were ready to co-operate with them if the Government could make it a paying enterprise, Canadians could do so as well. I spoke to a great number of my friends, and I have no doubt my colleagues did to theirs. We mentioned the fact, too, that these American gentlemen had come in and made this proposition. Sir Francis Hincks, in one of his visits to Montreal, it subsequently appeared, saw Sir Hugh Allan. He did so without any arrangement made or instruction given from his colleagues, or from myself as First Minister, to do so. He did so on his own responsibility—just the same as I did with the friends I saw, and he made the communication. On Sir Francis returning to Ottawa he mentioned that he had made a mistake, and so did, I believe, many of the members of Government. At this time it had not occurred to me, nor, I think, to any one, that those American gentlemen were in any way connected with the Northern Pacific Railway. It had not, I say, "occurred to any one," and it certainly had not occurred to me; but the reason why I thought Sir Francis Hincks' action was premature was that I thought the true plan would be to endeavour to form a large Canadian Company, in which could be represented the capital of all the different Provinces of the Dominion. After a Canadian company had been so formed then they might extend their area to the United States or to England, though it was rather frustrating that policy to have communicated in the first place with the Americans. However Sir Francis Hincks made that communication. Subsequently Sir Hugh Allan came to Ottawa with several of these American gentlemen. Mr. McMullen, Mr. Smith, and, I think, Mr. Hurlbert, of Chicago. We received them in the Council room and had some conversation respecting the railway, but only as a matter of conversation as to the importance of the road and the great advantage it would give to Canada soon; but the only business we had was by my asking Sir Hugh Allan, who seemed to be the principal spokesman of the party, and who had said that he had made arrangements with American gentlemen, some of whom were there for the purpose of getting up a company for the purpose of building the railway. I asked him if he had any proposal to make. We were desirous of getting applications and propositions from all and everyone who took an interest in the matter. I asked Sir Hugh Allan, I say, if he had any proposition to make. He asked me if we were prepared to consider and enter upon any scheme proposed, if he made one. We said, No,—we were not prepared; that we could not enter into any agreement of that kind, and that we would have to obtain the authority of Parliament to do so. Sir Hugh Allan then said, "Then I am not prepared to make any proposition," and they left.

The Chairman—Do you remember the time of that interview?

Sir John Macdonald—I do not, but I might, perhaps, by looking at Mr. McMullen's statement. He mentions dates in his letter.

Sir John Macdonald referred to Mr. McMullen's published letter, and proceeded—I see it stated in one of Mr. McMullen's letters that it was on the 5th of October, 1871.

The Chairman—That is the interview you refer to?

Sir John Macdonald—Yes, that is the interview to which I refer, but I do not know if that is the correct date.

The Chairman—You might say it is referred to in Mr. McMullen's letter under that date?

Sir John Macdonald—Yes.

The Chairman—There were several members of the Government present besides yourself?

Sir John Macdonald—Oh, yes. The Cabinet then was pretty full. Mr. McMullen also gives the names, which I have no doubt are correct, of myself, Sir F. Hincks, Sir George Cartier, Messrs. Tilley, Tupper, Mitchell, Morris, Aikins and Chapais. They are the names mentioned. I presume they are correct. I would say with reference to this, that before that meeting I see it observed in a letter of the 18th July, signed by Mr McMullen, which appeared in the Montreal Herald and Globe—says that the result of a communication between Sir Hugh Allan and these American capitalists, was an interview in Montreal early in September, 1871, in which the preliminaries were settled between Sir Hugh Allan, Chas. M. Smith and myself, by which Sir Hugh was to receive a large personal interest in the stock, and an amount for distribution among persons whose accession would be desirable, Education made attractive to Youth, by Mrs. Wilson, late from England.

Mrs. Wilson

Respectfully informs the Inhabitants of Peterborough and its vicinity that she intends D.V.

TO OPEN A SCHOOL

On the 1st of October, next,

FOR BOYS & GIRLS under 13 years.

Where she will give instruction in the following branches of English, viz: Spelling, Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, Grammar, Geography, History, Composition and Elocution.

Mrs. Wilson having been trained from her childhood expressly for the important work of conducting education, by her father, (the late Jas. Stonestreet, Esq.) well remembered throughout all Ireland, as the great lecturer on natural and experimental philosophy, &c. Author of "A systematic course of English grammar, exercises, parsing, composition as elocution, comprising everything requisite for obtaining a thorough knowledge of the English language." Also of "Geography and astronomy scientifically managed." "Natural philosophy" &c., &c. And she herself having the learning and ennobling work of moulding the plastic minds of dear innocent children, she has made it the study of her life, and has never failed of success (She relieves the monotony and tedium of lessons by reciting or reading stories for her pupils, which will, they assure Mrs. Wilson, fully realize their intention), cultivate all the better feelings of your, erring humanity, and spare them on to learned diligence

"The (finest) stoops to conquer."

"The Rose to know their use, who suffer by their side."

To emulate their glory, and follow in their wake; Bards, poets, patriots, sages, and the noble of all ages,

Whose deeds fill history's page, and life's great volume make."

Mrs. Wilson has been eminently successful in England and Ireland in teaching Elocution to her pupils, (thus qualifying herself to teach it understandingly and practically to others) and which gives such a grace to whatever, in fact, there is no true eloquence without possessing a thorough knowledge of the human instrument. She purposes, therefore to put up Elocution Classes and Debating Societies for the Juveniles during the coming winter.

Parents and Guardians! Now is your chance. Seek an opportunity does not very often occur of a female possessing the ability,—and who is a well established fact, exercises a greater power of fascination over the minds of youth of both sexes, than a man does; however great and comprehensive his acquirements and abilities may be.

She will now, as she has ever done, spare neither pains nor care, to make her pupils a credit to herself, and ornaments to society.

TERMS—From $1 to $1.25 per month, payable in advance.

She intends to have a Night School, also, for the benefit of those who might wish to improve themselves.

Particulars can be learned by calling at her residence, (next door to Mrs. Canning's) on a line with the Rev. J. M. Bryer's church, and nearly opposite Dr. Beckett's residence.

Sudden Death.

George M. Brown of Ashburnham died suddenly on Sunday evening. The thread of life was well stretched before breaking Killed.

A boy named Doig who was going to the Shanty of Messrs. McDougall & Lodgate, fell off his load a little north of Bobcaygeon last week, and was instantly killed. The cause of the fall is well known.

Fatal Shooting Accident.

On Thursday last, a young man named Wm Robson, son of Mr. R. Robson of North Monaghan, and his brother went duck shooting to the head of Mud Lake. After amusing themselves for awhile they laid their guns down with the intention of preparing to shoot at a mark. When ready, Wm. reached for his gun lying on the ground, caught it by the muzzle drawing it towards him the trigger caught on something, causing her to go off. The shot blew off part of the hand and entered under the breast, passing upwards proved fatal. He fell immediately, but rose again, and walked about 50 feet, when he fell again. His brother ran for aid, but when he returned the young man's spirit had fled. He survived the shot only a few minutes. Strange to say that he only returned from Camp the previous evening, where he had been under drill. It was not ignorance of fire arms, therefore, but thoughtlessness that caused the fatal results referred to. When will people learn to be more careful in handling loaded guns and pistols?

Accident Felling Stumps.

A man named Smith got his arm broken on Monday evening while pulling stumps for Mr. Z. Burnham, in Otonabee. Some of the machinery gave way and caused the lever to return rapidly. A stone in the way somewhat deadened the motion, or Smith and another man assisting him might have been instantly killed. It fortunately happened that only one was hurt, and he not dangerously. The broken arm was set, and he is walking about.

The Fair Assured

Will meet on the 23rd of October, it is said. Lord Dufferin, no doubt, is now satisfied that there are strong reasons for carrying to completion the work which the Royal Commission has but faintly touched. The Commission has about concluded its session, as the last witness they cared to bring has been allowed to tell his story; as to cross-examination it was not thought of. They will prepare a report to suit their master, and it will be submitted. Delay has been the great object of John A., and who knows but that in the meantime Sir Hugh's gold has been freely dealt to secure doubtful M. Ps. Sir Hugh has boasted of purchasing 27 of them. Has he kept them bought? We shall see.

On the Increase.

The Life of Christianity this week is so inconsiderable as to scarcely include it within our space. We hope to be able to make up for the deficiency in reading matter next week.

No Name to it.

We have received a notice of a marriage, but it has no name to it as voucher for its correctness. Its non-appearance will thus be accounted for.

Railway Committee.

It is intended to call the Railway Committee together at an early date. Mayor Cox has taken the matter in hand, which is a guarantee for dispatch.

An Outrage.

Some person or persons yet unknown broke the windows of the Wesleyan Methodist Church in South Monaghan, on the night of the 5th of this month. The Council of the Township have offered a reward of $100 for the conviction of the party who did it. We had no idea that there were persons in South Monaghan who would be guilty of such conduct, and for the sake of the good name of the Township it would be well if they were discovered and punished. There can be no reasonable excuse for such an outrage, and sober reflection must teach such characters that their sins will find them out.

Mr. Graham's Boat.

A little delay caused by some of our hands going to Camp, and by one being unwell a few days, together with other unavoidable and unforseen events, has prevented us completing this little work as soon as we had hoped to. It is approaching completion and ere long will be ready for binding and delivery. We understand that already Mr. Graham has received a large number of subscribers, which is daily being increased. His numerous friends are looking for it anxiously.

Partnership.

Mr. Dumble so well known throughout the County has taken into Partnership Mr Henry Bleecker, of the late firm of Bleecker & Dixon, Barrister. Both gentlemen have succeeded in securing the confidence and respect of the community, and we augur for them a yet more extensive business than they have heretofore done. We understand they are about to secure larger and more commodious offices than those now occupied by Mr. Dumble.

Pic-Nic.

The "True Blues" (Loyal Orange Lodge) Ashburnham, D. McDonald, Esq. Master, will have a Pic-Nic on the Steamer "Whistle-wing", on Monday next.—They extend a cordial invitation to brethren from other Lodges.

Mr. John Conroy,

On Lot 32, in the 8th Concession of Otonabee, will have an extensive Credit Sale on Monday, 6th of October, of Farm Stock and Implements.

Lindsay Council

Is discussing the Waterous system of Water Works for their Town.

Improvements.

The South end of the Town seems to be making up for the past—a large number of fine houses have been recently erected there. The handsome new Church of the Wesleyans is well on to completion, and the new School to cost $4,000 is to be erected in the Spring.

The Victoria R. R.

By a notice in this weeks Examiner, it will be seen that the promoters of the Victoria Railway, intend seeking new powers at the approaching session of the Local Legislature. Should not the people of this county take time by the forelock and have matters so that the action of Victoria Company cannot affect this town or County. The Northern people will work with us now if we show ourselves in earnest.

The Litigation, Anent the $150,000 By Law.

It is said, is dropped. Mr. Peck, we are told has withdrawn his suit, our informant assures us that nothing now can be done but allow the By Law to stand. We do not feel disposed to find fault with the result, although the way it was obtained deserved the condemnation of honest men. Perhaps matters are generally, as related to us lately, viz., that nothing is now done without the use of means of doubtful morality, and that Railway enterprises are not undertaken except by men who expect more than common returns for their labours and influence.

Commercial College.

Last week we referred to the establishment of a Commercial College here, and we are glad to be able to state that Mr. Cann is determined to proceed with the work at once. We have seen Mr. Cann's testimonials, he has been for several years a successful principal of Commercial Colleges, besides having won several Provincial prizes for original designs and Mechanical Drawings. When students consider the value of the course about to be introduced, the heavy cost of getting this kind of education by attending the colleges, and the valuable cash prizes and diplomas to be awarded at the close of the term they certainly should avail themselves of these advantages. The actual business system of the Colleges will be fully carried out. The course will be interesting as the student will virtually be a merchant, buying, Wholesale and Retail, and using money, business forms and all kinds of property, as in real business life, so that he will get a vast amount of practical experience in a short time. A meeting is to be held at the rooms of the Mechanics Institute, next Monday evening at 8 o'clock, p. m., when the course will be fully explained and classes organised for both Commercial and Mechanical students.

GUELPH RAILWAY.

Verulam Council has agreed to defer action towards repealing their bonus By-law till after the vote in Emily.

Emily Council has agreed to submit a By-law granting a bonus of $15,000 to the Omemee branch. Of what use will the branch be to Emily? Not one cent's worth. They have the Lindsay road now. All the grain they can grow can be shipped by that road, or from Peterborough by the Midland road. The Omemee Branch will not be a competing line with the Midland Road; it will be a part of it. Can it be supposed that the Midland Company will manage the road differently from the present after the branch is built? Not a bit of it. Their losses is to build a road for the Village of Bobcaygeon—not for the Township of Emily. If this $15,000 should secure a competing line, then there might be a show for voting it, as it might then be voted with a view to lessen freights. The people of Emily would benefit themselves by securing a line to the East, say rather than he should build it. When Mr. Cumberland sounded to have things arranged, and urged that he could induce a gentleman of capital to undertake the early construction of the road. Sir Hugh learning the name of the gentleman—Mr. Ross of the "Canada Southern," telegraphed him, seeking an interview, but Mr. Ross was in New York at the time. It has been arranged, however, that Mr. Ross and Sir Hugh shall have an interview as soon as possible with a view to pleasing the construction of the road in the hands of Mr. Ross, or of combining the interests of Sir Hugh and others.

Mr. Cox assures us that the Ottawa people are very active in promoting the enterprise, and he is confident that the road will be built ere long Sir Hugh asked us to the state of the County By-law and also what the Town was doing, and on being informed that action was necessary by the 1st of Octr. to fulfil the conditions of the By-law, Mr. Grover who was present was instructed to do what work was necessary to fulfil those conditions. The people of this Town and County are fully alive to the advantage of the road, and are ready to do what is fair in the matter. Now that the ball is rolling again, the town should at once pass their By-law, and prove their earnestness by their actions. It makes little matter who builds the road if we get it.

WHAT THE COMMISSION HAS PROVED.

The charges of Mr. Huntington that the Government of Sir John A. Macdonald had sold the Pacific Charter to Sir Hugh Allan for money to bribe the electors of the Dominion, have, so far, sustained by even the farce, in session at Ottawa. Sir Hugh Allan still swears that he gave Sir John, Sir George, Langevin, Hillyard Cameron and others to the amount of $162,000 directly for Election purposes, and that Mr. Langevin got an additional $7,000 after the election; John Hillyard Cameron, $5,000; and to others to promote the Election of Ministerialists to make up the amount to $358,500.

Cartier got	$85,000
Sir John	45,000.
Langevin	32,000.
And others the balance	191,000.

Sir John in his evidence tries to make light of the whole thing by asserting that he did not obtain so much as Mr. McMullen states in his letters. He admits in the most shameless way the receipt of $45,000; first $20,000, then $10,000, and "another $10,000." He also states the circumstances about John H. Cameron. In his mind the thing was very simple; nothing uncommon; an act of every day occurrence. It was stated that at the instance of Sir John, Sir Hugh discounted a note for Mr. Cameron for $5,000.—Allan objected, believing he paid enough, but a personal visit from the Postmaster General, and urgent telegrams from John A. softened Sir Hugh, and he consented. Here is John A's version of it:

"After a personal visit of the then Postmaster-General to Montreal, and the urgent telegrams and letters of Sir John, who announced that it was to help us, the thing was done. The circumstance was simply this. Mr. Cameron told me—we are very great friends—that he was very hard up and that he wanted some money, and wanted to get a discount, and he asked me if I would drop a line to Sir Hugh Allan asking him to get his note discounted by the Merchants' Bank. I wrote down asking Allan to use his influence to get a discount for Hillyard Cameron for $5,000, and he got the discount That is all I know about it."

"This is all John A. knew of it," but at any rate J. H. Cameron got the discount, and no one knows whether he or Sir Hugh paid it. This discount was just before the election for Cardwell, where it was admitted Mr. Cameron spent money freely. John A. interceded, and Sir Hugh forks out to the tune of $5,000 for one Riding. We venture to say this was equal to $10 each for every vote polled for Mr. Cameron in the Riding, at the last election.

Sir Hugh was careful to have a letter from Sir George asking for the money, and also a promise to repay it. He took receipts in every possible instance, but when objection was made did not press for a receipt, as Mr. Langevin got $20,000 without a receipt; but Sir Hugh had Sir George's promise for repayment, and also a promise from some others if the Government did not repay.

Men will naturally ask how could Sir John, a political beggar, hope to repay $358,000, or even the $162,580 he acknowledges was obtained?

Sir George's letter was "private and confidential," and was as follows:

"MONTREAL, July 30th, 1872.

"DEAR SIR HUGH,—The friends of the Government will expect to be assisted with funds in the pending elections, and any amount which you or your company shall advance for that purpose, shall be recouped to you. A memorandum of immediate requirements is below.

"Very truly yours,

(Signed,) "GEORGE E. CARTIER.

"Now wanted—Sir John Macdonald, $25,000; Hon. M. Langevin, $15,000; Sir G. E. Cartier, $20,000.

"Sir John A., additional, $10,000; Hon. M. Langevin, $10,000; Sir G. E. Cartier additional, $30,000." And so on until $162,000 were paid out.

Sir Hugh swears:

"I did not see well from what source this money could be repaid, but Sir George held out some hope that his political friends would contribute to make it up. Beyond this there was nothing that I can recall as to the manner of repayment. On leaving Sir George I said to Mr. Abbott that I saw no possibility of my being ever repaid these contributions. Neither then nor on any occasion had I any correspondence with Sir George as to the repayment of these sums."

It is admitted by all that the love of money is a ruling passion with Sir Hugh, and that in parting with it so freely he had an object in view. This object he unfolds in his evidence, when he says:

"I declare that I did expend considerable sums of money in various ways which appeared to me to be advantageous to the Company I had organized, and calculated to strengthen my hands in endeavoring to obtain the contract for that Company."

Can anything be plainer set forth than this, that Sir Hugh spent his money to obtain the contract, and on the contract or charter was in the hands of the Government, Sir Hugh paid his thousands to them, as he says himself, "to strengthen my hands in endeavoring to obtain the contract for that Company." Does not this prove the nature of the "monetary considerations" which was understood between the Government and Sir Hugh Allan establishes the charges made by Mr. Huntington.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Council met on Monday evening. Present—His Worship the Mayor; Messrs. Hutcheson, Paterson, Moore, Smith, English, Sperry, Dixon, Landy, and Towle.

The minutes of last meeting were read and approved.

Communications were read and received from Irwin & Dunlop, Esqs., Secretary of the Town Trust Commissioners, giving the required information of the Dobson towns loaned, and falling due in the present year.—Received and referred to the Finance Committee.

STATEMENT AS TO DEBENTURES.

Peterboro', Sept. 22, 1873.

James Edwards, Esq.,
Town Clerk:

DEAR SIR,—I have received from you a copy of a resolution of the Town Council, in which you are required to furnish a statement of Debentures falling due in 1873; also, what Debentures have been sold within the year, the rate of interest at which they were sold, and for what purpose sold.

There was one debenture for $1,000 (Chemong Lake bridge) which fell due 1st July, and was paid on the 28th. This is the only debenture falling due in this year.

There were issued in 1873 one debenture of $400, three of $1,000, and two of $600 each, in all $4,400.

These debentures were advertised for sale in last February for the purpose of providing the means to pay $5,000 to Paton, Moir & Co., under the Paton-Moir By-law. There were at the time funds on hand, but they could not be properly used in view of the probability of their being required to pay the arrears of M. L. F. interest. After the passing of the M. L. F. Act the issue of these debentures was not actually necessary, but terms were offered for them which were very advantageous, and such as would not in all probability be offered again; and as there were debentures to the amount of $3,600 falling due 1st Jan. 1875; $1,600 falling in 1875, and $51,000, as I then believed, falling due in 1877; $60,000 of them fall due in 1878, and as there was a certainty of being able to keep the proceeds invested at a higher rate than that which was payable on the debentures until required. They were sold for $4,400 cash, (one, $400, on the 2nd May, and the others on the 15th) with this advantage to the purchaser, that the interest was to be paid on them from the 1st January, 1873, which was the date of them. The rate of interest payable on them being a fraction less than 6½ per cent.

Your Obdt. Servant.
IVAN O'BEIRNE.
Sec'y. T. T.

From Peter Hamilton and others asking the Council to pay the balance of the costs in the suit, Westcott vs. County Council, anent the Locks Bridge.—Received.

From R. Kingan and others requesting the payment of the amount rent payable by the Midland Railroad to property holders on Bethune Street.—The Clerk was requested to write about it.

An account of J. Huston for $10 was referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Smith, Chairman of Finance Committee, submitted the following report, which was received and adopted:

The Finance Committee recommend the payment of the following accounts:

Lewis Pappa	$ 6 25
D O'Sullivan	15 00
John Bertram	66 96

Your Committee, to whom was referred the communication of Messrs. Rowe and Kennedy for an increase of salary as Assessors, recommend that their salary be increased to one hundred and fifty dollars each, on account of the increase of labour in assessing Park Lots and new town lots. All respectfully submitted.

(Signed) A. SMITH,
Chairman.

Mr. Landy, Chairman of Street and Bridge Committee, read and submitted a report which was adopted.

To the Mayor and Council of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—The Street & Bridge Committee beg to submit this their 6th report for the year as follows:

We find that the amount already expended and the work recommended to be done will so far as we can ascertain amount to the sum apportioned for streets and Bridges this year, and not wishing to exceed the amount set apart for this purpose, we cannot recommend any further expenditure unless for purposes that are unforseen and absolutely necessary. We therefore cannot recommend the said walks asked for by petition of Robt. Johnston and others, and John Lynch and others, nor the grading of part of Stewart Street asked for by petition of George Edminson and others. As to the drain asked for by Edward Vinette and others on Sherbrooke street, we think the same is required but for the reasons given above we cannot recommend it this year. As to the petition of John Dinneen and others asking for filling of part of Rink street, we cannot recommend this but a proper entrance be made across drain for Mr. Dunneen. On the petition of P. Hagarty and others to open up Murray street west of Park Street, we recommend that the amount asked for be granted. The part of Murray street being impassable for teams. All of which is respectfully submitted on behalf of the Committe. (Signed)

JOHN J. LUNDY,
Chairman S. & B Com.

Moved by Mr. Smith, seconded by Mr. English,—That the Street and Bridge Inspector be instructed to put down a sidewalk 10 feet wide in front of Mr. Lundy's new buildings corner of George & King Street.—Carried.

Mr. English gave a notice of motion to the effect, that the prayer of the petition of Peter Hamilton, and others dated 22nd September be granted, and that the Treasurer be instructed to pay the amount of costs due in said suit after the bill has been properly taxed.

His Worship the Mayor, stated to the Council that recently while at Ottawa he had an interview with Sir Hugh Allan, Messrs Skead, Haggart, Currie and others, on the matter of the Quebec and Ont. Railway, and that all those gentlemen seemed anxious to have the road built at an early day and he the Mayor had no doubt but that the road would be shortly commenced

The Council then adjourned for one week.

DOURO COUNCIL.

Sept. 20, 1873.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment. All the members present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and signed.

A By-law for the extension of Reid street, in the Village of Lakefield, received its several readings and was passed.

Peter Babbie was appointed Inspector of Taverns instead of F. A. Hunter, whose resignation was accepted.

The Clerk was directed to communicate with the Chief Superintendent of Education, Toronto, with regard to the amount of money granted by Government for the use of the Public Schools of this Province, as it appears there is a deficiency with regard to the amount due to the schools of this Municipality chargable to the population.

The Treasurer was directed to make the following payments, viz:—John Crossley (2), sheriff; P. A. Hunter, inspector of taverns $4, being amount of money up to date of resignation; John Smith $11.55, funeral expenses of Mrs. McIntyre; Wm. Mahon, Denver, $5; Wm. O'Brien, Clerk, $6; Henry Carver, $4, assessor, $2, for late selection of Jurors; Michael O'Brien and Timothy Leahy $2 each for shovelling snow off road in 1872; Henry Rose $2 for road between Daniel Garvey's $4, work on road between the 4th and 5th Concessions.

The Clerk was directed to get a printed sheet made for the selection list of Municipal jurors.

Mr. Mahon was appointed Auditor for the Township of Douro in room of Mr. Hutcheson, who resigned.

The Treasurer was directed to procure from Mortstrom all sums which the Municipality is entitled to by Law, as in some cases it appears they have not been received, and if necessary to employ legal advice and assistance for the collection of the same.

Daniel Moher was appointed Collector of taxes for the current year at a salary of $60.

Council adjourned to meet again on the 4th of October next, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of taking into consideration the security offered by the Collector and other business.—Confirmed.

THE SCANDAL.

Trunk jealousy of Allan represented by the important personage of Sir George Cartier.' Well, this is quite an erroneous statement. We were quite in accord among ourselves. We were quite in accord that we could not receive any pro collieu until after we had the sanction of Parliament. We were not in a condition to make any arrangements until Parliament had authorised us to do so. In consequence of its being known that Sir Hugh Allan had entered into this arrangement with American capitalists—it was known to every one—a feeling of fear rose in Ontario, and especially in Toronto, that, the Pacific Railway might get into American hands and be under American control, or that it might get into American and Montreal hands, and that in the construction of the road the wants of Ontario might be forgotten or neglected. This, I think added to the urgent request made by myself on different occasions to get some one in Toronto to enter into the question, induced the formation of the Inter-Oceanic Company. I had spoken to Mr. Macpherson, to Mr. Wm. Bowland, to Col. Cumberland, to Mr. Worts, and other gentlemen, to try to lead them to interest themselves on the subject, and a company was of length formed.

The Chairman—The Inter-Oceanic Company?

Sir John Macdonald—Yes. The Inter-Ocean'c, which was formed principally through Mr. Macpherson, who took a warm interest in the formation of the Company early in the autumn of 1871. The statement had got into the newspapers that American capitalists were not looking to being interested in the construction of the Canada Pacific Railway from its own merits, but from a desire to connect it in some way with the Northern Pacific; to make it subservient in some way to the interests of that road, and the fear arose very generally throughout Canada that the interests of Canada and of its railway would be sacrificed to American interests if American capitalists were admitted into the Company in any way. I must say I was one who participated in that fear, and it seemed to be also the opinion of my colleagues, including latterly Sir Francis Hincks Then I found the fears entertained were not on the general question of the admission of foreign capital, but as to whether this proposed connection with connection with the American system of railways would not give them hold of our railways as well.

Here follows an account of Sir John's effort to amalgamate the Allan and McPherson companies so as to have a scheme to meet the country with at the election, which were just coming off. The last part of this history is:

Then, as regards the Presidency, Mr. Macpherson always held the same position—that he did not look for it himself. He did not press his own claims to it in any way, but he thought that Sir Hugh Allan, from his having originally made this arrangement with the Americans, if he were placed in the position of President, would, from his energy and wealth and influence, have too much power at the Board, and that he might exercise that power in favour of bringing in American capitalists. Still it seemed to me as if that was really the only question remaining—the question of the Presidency—that we were very near an amalgamation, and I left Toronto, as I said before, impressed with the idea that that difficulty would be removed, and that there would be an amalgamation. I was communicating from time to time, I may say, with Sir George Cartier, giving him an account of the progress I was making in Toronto, and my communications were always of an encouraging nature, because I really believed that we would succeed in amalgamating and getting over the difficulty. When I was in Kingston attending to my election, Mr. Macpherson came to Kingston or was at Kingston. He either came to Kingston to see me, or was there accidentally, I forget which; but he was at Kingston and we had a discussion about it. I found still a difficulty existing about the Presidency, and I made up my mind there was no use in trying to attain the object which I hoped to attain, to have the amalgamation before the elections. I made up my mind that the whole thing must stand over, leaving it as it had been left after the conversation between Mr. Abbott and Mr. Macpherson until the elections were over, and I telegraphed to Sir George Cartier in the same sense. My telegraph is set out I think on an affidavit which Sir Hugh Allan made in Montreal. At all events I can put it in. I have the rough draft of it.

The Chairman—Was that the telegram of the 26th July?

Sir John Macdonald—Yes, on the 26th of July. "Have seen Macpherson. He has no personal ambition, but cannot in justice to Ontario concede any preference to Quebec in the matter of the Presidency or in any other particular. He says the question about the Presidency should be left to the Board. Under these circumstances I authorise you to assure Allan that the influence of the Government will be exercised to secure him the position of President; the other terms to be as agreed on between Macpherson and Abbott, and the whole matter to be kept quiet until after the election. Then the two gentlemen to meet the Privy Council at Ottawa and settle the terms of a provisional agreement. This is the only practical solution of the difficulty and should be accepted at once by Allan. Answer."

Sir John gives a history of his reasons for his action and for the course pursued towards Sir Hugh Allan. Sir Hugh had undermined Cartier's influence in Lower Canada, and without friends it could not be restored.

Hear him:—

So I sent that telegram on the 26th, and I was glad to receive a communication from Montreal, I am not sure whether from Sir George Cartier, or from Mr. Abbott, or from Sir Hugh Allan, but from one of these I am quite sure, stating that Sir George Cartier had expressed himself with respect to all those enterprises in a manner that was satisfactory to Montreal interests, including Sir Hugh Allan and his political friends in Montreal; and I may say here that there it was, on learning this, that any communication anent the election funds When Sir Geore Cartier left Ottawa to go to Montreal, and I left to go to Toronto, of course, as leading members of the Government we were anxious for the success of our Parliamentary supports in the elections, and I said to Sir George that the severest contest would be in Ontario, where we might expect that all the influence and all the opposition of the Ontario Government would be placed against our friends at the polls; and I said to him—"Well, you must tax and arrange such funds as you can to help us, because we are going to have the chief battle there." I mentioned several friends to whom we might apply, and I mentioned Sir Hugh Allan among the rest as the richest man, and largely interested in all these large enterprises which had been brought forward. When I ascertained that Sir George had had put it all right with his friends, I then commenced to my friends in Montreal, Sir George and Mr. Abbott, that I hoped they would not forget our necessities, that they would use to raise some funds for us in Upper Canada. On the 28th, I think, of July, I received a letter from Sir Hugh Allan, embraced to me at Kingston, stating he had come to an arrangement with Sir Geo Cartier. He did not send me a copy of the arrangement itself, but he said that he had come to an arrangement and requested it to writing, stating the general terms of the arrangement. I was satisfied with this. It was not in connection with any transaction of the kind, and although it was unexpectedly to myself and friends for me—I think I was then in the height of my election, and I was receiving a most joyful reception—I telegraphed back and assured him that I would not agree to it, as we were all in the midst of the elections, and we would be ruined if it got out, and I sent that night and saw Sir Hugh, as Cartier would by no possible or misconstruction about that. It appears Sir George Cartier saw Sir Hugh Allan as soon as I had telegraphed him that I objected to

I gave him a copy. Matters going well here. Hope the same with you. I don't think it necessary for you to come down here. Enclosed, I remitted to be out of town on Sunday last with families here if you seriously desire to see me.—George E. Cartier.

At same time I received this from Sir Hugh Allan addressed to myself, of the same date :—I have seen Sir George Cartier to day You may return my letter, or regard it as waste paper. It was not intended as anything official. Your letter from Sir George to the basis of our agreement which I have no doubt you will approve of. He proposes to go out of Town on Saturday afternoon and I know no doubt his health will be so benefited thereby.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six or seven of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtue of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Thus in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportion of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered. Where ever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alcohol is lost in that way, and you get only the smell of Oils which they may contain.

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER

A family medicine, well and favourably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Pearlburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Phthisic or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by suffering and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, diptheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and to last superseeding all other preparations of the kind.

All cases of general debility, arising from wasting disease, such as consumption, scrofula, all diseases of the skin, diseases of the blood, prostration of the nervous system, caused by protracted mental exertion, anxiety, over-work, or bad habits, will derive immediate benefit from it, frequently begin ning with the first dose. Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Painters, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will ever destroy the various worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Vinegar Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when you feel that it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

THE REASONS WHY LAZARUS, MORRIS & Co's CELEBRATED Perfected Spectacles, AND EYE GLASSES, have met with such extraordinary success and are so much in demand:

1st. Because they are framed in accordance with the principles of Optical Science.

2nd. Because they will reclaim sight when abused by the common glasses, and will often be found to restore failing sight to its natural state.

3rd. Because no glimmering or dimness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed against injury to the Eye Sight from improper selections.

4th. Because the system of fitting is an unerring guide to the true requirement of each purchaser—no experiments are furnished with this system—solely our own.

5th. Because the never tire the eyes and last many years without the necessity of change.

6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.

Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable value.

A full and complete assortment has been supplied to and always kept on hand by

NOTICE.

Guard Thine Adhon.

When you meet with one suspected
Of some secret deed of shame,
And for this, by all rejected,
Asa thing of evil fame,
Guard what others may find sinful,
Guilt be heartless world of theirs,
Use the slanderer's vile instruction
Yet may quell thy goodly fame.

When you mark a lover there's saying
With the unbidden flow of gloom,
And a laugh, a step that's drooping
To a solitary tomb,
Guard thine action, some trust sorrow
Binds that man a spoiler grim,
And the contest of to-morrow
May have left they like him.

When you build with your pursuing
Perhaps the last hope entered in,
Working out his own undoing
With his reckonings and sin,
Should, if placed in his condition,
Would adopt word he in vain?
Or a look of cold suspicion
Win them back to truth again?

There are spots that bear no flowers,—
Not because the soil is bad,
But that someone's gentle showers
Never made their bosoms glad.
Sister have we not there's kindly,
Trusted sometimes with disdain,
Then, by judging others blindly,
Doom the innocent to pain.

SILVER ISLET.

As this remarkable little Islet has, for some time past, been attracting special attention, our readers will be pleased to get a few facts relative to it. We shall draw our information from the most reliable sources, at present accessible.

Silver Islet was, until very recently, only a small rock projecting out of the water about three quarters of a mile from shore. It was originally only about seventy feet long and thirty feet wide. It lies at the head of the peninsula between Thunder Bay and Black Bay. The former is said to be a very beautiful sheet of water, about thirty miles from north to south and eighteen miles wide. Prince Arthur's Landing and Fort William, two rising towns, stand on the West of this magnificent Bay. The McHay Mountains to the south-west of Fort William, rise to the height of one thousand feet. Pie Island which varies in height from 200 to 800 feet, guards the Bay on the south.—Thunder Cape lies to the east of this Bay, and through a series of six steps from south to north rises to the height of 1,350 feet. This Cape forms the western side of the peninsula, at the head of which is Silver Islet. The Island which was, at first, so small, has been greatly enlarged by massive cribwork sunk in the lake around it and filled with stone. Some six or seven buildings stand upon the little Islet. One of these is a large boarding house which affords very inadequate accommodation to one hundred and twenty men. The Company contemplates the enlargement of the Island to the length of about 300 feet, so as to afford ample accommodation for the future. To carry out this plan with as much expedition as possible, they have a large number of men working day and night. There are about 90 miners employed, most of whom board on the Island. As the work is 250 feet below the surface of the water no miner is required to be engaged more than eight hours per day. The work in the mine goes on day and night. The quantity of silver taken from the mine since last winter has varied from one to eighteen barrels per day. The average value per barrel is $500. We are also told that large quantities of silver have been taken up from the bed of the lake by the divers.

There is a small village on the shore with a population of about four hundred. The buildings which they occupy all belong to the Company. A small school house serves the double purpose of a school house and a Church. All things considered the people are orderly and well disposed. A very good reason for this may be given. No intoxicating liquor is allowed to be sold as a beverage. What liquor they have is kept secreted, and no one can get any of it without a prescription to that effect from a doctor. Prohibition is proving a great boon to this isolated people. The friends of temperance may adduce this as an example of the salutary effects of a prohibitory liquor law. Would it not work well elsewhere?

He Didn't Like Beans.

Probably no branch of business affords such a field of the ludicrous side of nature as that of the theatrical profession, and a short anecdote related by a gentleman connected with the above profession is too good to be lost, and the fact of its being an actual occurrence will give it a keener relish:

About a year ago a troupe started from Boston to make a short tour through the principal towns in the East. In the company was the leader of the orchestra, James Tannenbaum of decidedly Teutonic extraction who liked his beer and cheese but had a mortal fear of our Yankee dish, pork and beans. [illegible] August 12, 1873

[illegible] journey asked by the waiter:

"Will you have ze beans for breakfast?"

No, was the emphatic reply, I don't [illegible]

"Oh," said the waiter, you must eat [illegible] baked beans here on Sunday."

With a look of extreme disgust John replied, I vote you I won't eat beans, no matter what you, some one else or any other place with their [illegible]

Very well, said the waiter, but you will have to work all the same."

And work he did, for the next morning, when the [illegible] came to breakfast, there sat John, before the table to see the end—

met in the elections were two isolated acts having no sort of bearing one upon the other. The public will still have its own opinion, it will believe the facts are stronger than the denials.

The extreme charge of selling the charter to Americans is not proved and is evidently not true. The whole Government from the first, with the exception of Sir Francis Hincks, and he also afterwards, resisted the introduction of American influence and even of American capital into the Pacific Company. The American allies of Sir Hugh furnished only $40,000 towards the preliminary expenses, and the amount was refunded to them when he was compelled to drop them. But if Mr. Huntington made his charge too broad, he is fully justified in having insisted on an enquiry. It is highly discreditable for Ministers of the crown to receive money for election purposes from a man who is on the point of entering into a contract with them, acting as trustees for the public, from which immense profits might accrue. It does not alter the fact that the amalgamation did not take place. Sir Hugh Allan became President of the new company to whom the contract was finally given, and though he does not seem to have exercised much influence in the selection of his fellow directors, his election as president was a matter of course.

Evidence has been given to show that the same terms would have been given to any company with which Sir Hugh had no connection. The statement, whether true or not, cannot change the objectionable character of the main facts of the case. It shows the anomalous character of the whole proceeding, that the Government selected the directors and had power even to prevent the transfer of stock except to such persons as they might approve. A company so hampered had little [illegible]

COMMOTION!

Caused by the Announcement that

HARTY

[illegible] proceeded to use its influence to secure Sir Hugh Allan the position of President of the Pacific Railway Company, and that Sir Hugh subscribed $162,600 towards the expenses of the elections; $45,000 of the money being handled by Sir John A. Macdonald, $32,600 by M. Langevin and $85,000 by Sir G. Cartier's election committee. The was money asked for by the Government, at the very time they were promising him their influence. Sir John Macdonald wrote to Sir George Cartier, that there would be a hard contest in Ontario, and that he must tax his friends and get all the money he could for the elections. On the 26th July, 1872, Sir John Macdonald presuming that the amalgamation of the two companies could be brought about, telegraphed Sir George Cartier that the Government would use [illegible] influence to secure Sir Hugh Allan the position of president. In enclosing this telegram to Sir Hugh, Sir George, July 30, 1872, gave it as his "opinion that, the Provisional Board of the amalgamated company to be composed of seventeen members, of whom four shall be named from the Province of Quebec, by the Canada Pacific Company, four from the Province of Ontario, the Intercoucaic Railway Company and the remainder by the Government," and he added:

"I have no doubt but that the Governor in Council will agree with the Company for the construction and working of the Canada Pacific Railway, with such branches as shall be agreed upon, and will grant to the Company all such subsidies and assistance as they are empowered to do by Government Act. I believe all the advantages which the Government Act empowers the Government to confer upon any company, will be required to enable the works contemplated to be successfully carried through, and I am convinced that they will be accorded to the company to be formed by an amalgamation, or to the Canada Pacific Company as the case may be. I would add that has I approve of the measures to which I have referred in this letter, I shall use my best endeavors to have them carried into effect.

To the terms of this letter Sir John Macdonald objected, and it was withdrawn. When this letter was withdrawn the stipulation in Sir John Macdonald's telegram remained, and Sir Hugh Allan [illegible] a conversation with Sir George [illegible] which that understanding [illegible] to. When Sir Hugh was [illegible], and had already reached the St. George said either (such is evidence of Sir Hugh) "Will you [illegible] in our elections?" or "Are you to help us," or something to that Sir Hugh, giving an affirmative [illegible] asked that the demand be put [illegible]ing. It will be observed that it was at the same interview that the promise in Sir John's telegram was accepted by Sir Hugh that he was asked by Cartier to subscribe to the election and promised to do so, a promise of which the fulfilment cost him $162,600. The juxtaposition of these facts has a demonstrative eloquence that no [illegible] can silence or refute. All the witnesses, knowing to the facts [illegible] Sir Hugh Allan [illegible] Abbott, swear that there was no connection between the two acts, that the agreement the Government come under to [illegible] entitled to support Sir Hugh's claims to the Presidency of the amalgamated company that was expected to come into existence, and his [illegible] subscription to aid the Govern-

A Stranger to Him.

A young Jonathan took it into his head one day to get a wife. He accordingly looked about him, and very soon made such selection as suited him and was not long in striking a bargain and settling the preliminaries. He then applied to a clergyman, a stranger, to perform the ceremony.

But are you prepared for such an important change in life? seriously inquired the reverend gentlemen.

I guess I be, said Jonathan, for I've got my land paid for, and I own a yoke of steers and a cow.

Very well, said the clergyman, with a long breath and a sober face, all these may be proper in their place, to be sure but have you ever thought of salvation?

Sal Vation! said Jonathan, who under the sun is she? I don't want her for a wife. I want Nell Baker.

The minister explained his meaning.

A TALE OF LOVE.

One quiet leafy day in June, when bees and birds were all in tune, two lovers walked beneath the moon. The night was fair, so was the maid, they walked and talked beneath the shade, with none to harm or make afraid.

Her name was Sal, and his was Jim, and he was fat and she was slim; he took to her, and she to him.

Says Jim to Sal, "By all the snakes that squirm among the brush and brakes I love you better'n buckwheat cakes."

Says Sal to Jim, "Since you've begun it, and been and gone and done it, I love you next to a new bonnet."

Says Jim to Sal, "My heart you've busted, but I have always gals 'mistrusted."

Says Sal to Jim, "I will be true, if you love me as I love you, no knife can cut our love in two."

Says Jim to Sal, "Through thick and thin, for your true lover count me in, I'll court no other gal again."

Jim leaned to Sal, Sal leaned to Jim, his nose just touched above her chin, four lips met—went—chem—chem—chem—And then—and then. O gals beware of men in June and underneath the silvery moon, when frogs and June bugs are in tune, or you'll get your name in the paper soon.

TEMPERANCE.

The views urged at one time only by total abstinence agitators, and finding popular support through temperance societies, shows pleasing signs of becoming general throughout the intelligent part of the community. We have noticed elsewhere the movement being made by a recently organized not altogether of total abstainers for the promotion of the observance of those laws which limit the sale of drink, and the representations made to the Mayor by a deputation from them. There has also been held a meeting of Temperance men to arrange to make their influence felt in politics. The movement among Judging by Appearance.

A good story is told by a Yankee editor, in illustration of the folly of judging from appearances. A person dressed in a suit of home spun clothes, stepped into a house in Boston, on some business, where several ladies were assembled in an inner room. One of the company remarked in a low tone that a country man was in waiting, and agreed to have some fun. The following dialogue ensued:

You're from the country, I suppose?

Yes, I'm from the country.

Well, sir, what do you think of the city?

It's got a tarnal sight of houses in it.

I expect there's a great many ladies where you come from?

Oh yes, a woondy sight, just for all the world like them, pointing to the ladies.

And you are quite a beau among them, no doubt?

Yes, I beats 'em to mortar and blood.

Maybe the gentleman will take a glass of wine, said one of the company.

I thankee, don't care if I do.

But you must drink a toast..

I eats toast what sent Cobby makes, but as to drinkin', I never seed the like.

What was the surprise of the company to hear the stranger speak as follows:

Ladies and gentlemen, permit me to wish you health and happiness, with every other blessing the earth can afford, and I advise you to bear in mind that we are often deceived by appearances. You mistook me by my dress for a country booby; I, from the same cause, thought them were gentlemen. The deception was mutual. I wish you good evening.

It is said the soul of the Carthagenian insurrection is rapidly approaching, and that the leaders would at once surrender were it not for fear of violence from their followers.

The Prince Edward Island elections resulted in the election of four Oppositionists and two supporters of the John A. Ring.

ALLAN'S LUNG BALSAM can produce more evidence of real merit than any other article for the purpose. It is sold everywhere by druggists and general store-keepers.

Read the following extract from a letter received from Mr. S. E. Burwell, a well known merchant of Ontario.

Messrs. Perry Davis & Son:

DEAR SIRS,—Last autumn I was suffering from a severe cold which settled on my lungs and produced a distressing cough for which I gave trial to a number of Cough Medicines but without any benefit, I at last tried one bottle of ALLAN'S LUNG BALSAM, which I am happy to be able to state gave almost immediate relief and performed a perfect cure in a short time. Yours truly,

A Hint.

There are not a few who forget that the Printer has liabilities, and some of them forget this for several years. Our intention is to solicit payment of all claims of two years or over, now due; and where a disposition for further delay is manifested, to place all old accounts in the hands of a Solicitor for collection at once. We trust, however, that this gentle hint will prevent any such action on our part. The following statement will demonstrate the necessity for doing something in this matter: Suppose 100 of our subscribers owe $10 each, equal to $1,000. 100 more may be set down at over $5 each, or $500. 100 about $3 or $300; besides smaller sums; making in all over $2,000 of arrears, older than 2 years. Now we are persuaded that many of these would pay at once if called on, but this is very difficult. Just think of the expense of visiting so many persons scattered over every imaginable corner of the County. Our friends, we know, will not entail the trouble and expense on us.

Personal.

The ladies of Peterborough are holding a sale of clothes, toys, &c., in Bradburn's new block to-day and to-morrow. The sale is for the benefit the Miss McPherson "Home," Belleville, and we are informed that everything is marked very low. The sale should be freely patronized as the object is a worthy one, and serviceable articles may be obtained at moderate prices.

Brock Street

Is a specimen of the results of indecision on the part of the Council. They should go in a body and see it. They can see its deformity even with gas light, bad as Mr. Moore represents that to be. It should be levelled at any rate and the hole opposite Dr. Burnham's property filled in. It is a shame to see it. The street East of George Street also requires to be put in shape at any early day.

Extensive Sale of Well Bred Stock &c.

Joseph Redmond, Esq., of Otonabee will have an extensive sale of thorough bred cattle, sheep and hogs, besides other cattle and horses, on the 24th instant. Mr. Redmond is one of our best farmers and prides himself in his stock, parties therefore, wishing to secure thorough bred Durhams, well bred sheep or serviceable horses will do well to remember the day, Friday, 24th October. Mr. Redmond's farm is about 3 miles from Peterboro, on the leading road to Keene.

Another Meeting Accident.

Dr. Kincaid received a telegram from Lakefield, on Tuesday, that a man had been shot by accident at Young's Point. On enquiry we found that the unfortunate man was Francis Young. Dr. Kincaid held an inquest on Tuesday, at which the following facts were elicited.

The unfortunate man had gone into McFarlane's tavern at Young's Point for some liquor to put on bitters he was taking. McFarlane had been out firing at a mark with a revolver, he came in to give Young the liquor and was putting the revolver into a drawer in the counter on which Young was leaning his elbow, his head being on his hand. The revolver went off and the ball passed through the heart of Mr. Young, causing instant death. The parties are all relatives, we believe, and were on the best of terms, so that the unfortunate event was accidental. Deceased is about 40 years of age and leaves a wife and eight children to mourn their sudden bereavement.

The Railroad

Company is preparing their branch to the Grand Trunk Station to suit the changed circumstances of the Grand Trunk.

Southward Bound!

People are now changing their quarters from Toronto eastward. It is causing a little delay in forwarding just at a time when all the capabilities of the road are required, but if the change should be for the better, all will agree to wait with patience for the better times on that road.

The Common Branch.

The man and two boys who were working on this road near Bobcaygeon have taken [illegible]. The road is sure to be built by such means if they stay away.

Bishop Farrell

Of Hamilton is dead. His funeral took place on Tuesday.

The Provincial Show.

Major Pearce, Esq., delegate from the Peel Society, returned from the Provincial Show on Friday. He informs us that the show this year was the best that had been in several years.

Sir John Young

Has published a letter setting forth in whole circumstances connected with the Pope Macdonald Pact. It shows indisputably the dishonourable and treacherous character of those honorably gentlemen.

An Answer

Was made to ask the sale at the Post-office building for the Provincial Show at London. The architect promised to overpower the guard and get their way, but were foiled.

The Grand Junction

A well informed traveller, visiting whom we had some conversation on Saturday last, says he saw a cow somewhere and two or three sheep beside it on the Grand Junction on Augusta last week. This he reserved as is all that is being done on that road in this county, at present. Keeping up appearances merely. The people along the proposed track west of Campbellford don't expect that the road will ever extend further west than that place; the impression [illegible] the Contractors [illegible] [illegible] or in that direction.

Items.

Macdonald & Bigley, in order to give more attention to their Orderd Work, have determined to sell out their whole stock of Ready-made Clothing. Great Bargains offering. Parties wishing to get a good and cheap suit would do well to call early and examine the stock at Macdonald & Elder's, Sign of the Elephant.

[illegible] (Limited)

The party leanings are too evidently stronger than principle.

The Prince Edward Island elections have resulted in the return of four Reformers and two Government supporters. The contest was on the merits of the Local Government more than of the Dominion; but it is believed that the Local Government had a leaning towards the Dominion Government, and that the Opposition are in sympathy with the Reformers. The contest district are as follows: Queen's County, Davis Reid and Peter Sinclair, Opposition; Prince county, James C. Pope, Government, and James Yeo, Opposition; King's county, Austin C. McDonald, Government, and Daniel Davis, Opposition.—Ex.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

The elections in this Province are over, and resulted in favour of the Dominion Government. Out of the six members returned, four are Ministerial, one Independent and the other Opposition. It is said that on the Huntington scandal case, five of them will vote with the Government, in case a motion of want of confidence is brought up. This will secure the Government a good majority.—Ex.

South Huron.

The election contest in South Huron for the Ontario Legislature promises to be a triangular fight. Mr. Archibald Bishop, Warden of Huron, is the regular Reform candidate. Mr. George Case, of Seaforth, is the regular Tory candidate. Dr. Worthington, of Clinton, comes out as a prohibition candidate.

Damages Awarded.

Samuel Toms, at the Whitby Assizes, recovered $2,500 damages against Whitby townships, for damages sustained by his wife in 1870, from being thrown from an improperly guarded embankment in one of the public roads near Brooklin.

A Bequest.

From Newfoundland conveys the intelligence that Parliament is dissolved, and that the Government have gone to the country on the Confederation question. It is thought that they will be successful, and that the 1st July, 1874, will see the Island duly enrolled as a member of the Canadian Union, thus completing the scheme of Confederation as adopted by the Quebec Conference of 1864.

Grave Rug.

It is said that a grave is being dug beside those of the defunct Telegraph and Express for the reception of the mortal remains of the Toronto Mail. That journal is not expected to survive the demise of the Macdonald-Allan Ministry, shortly expected.

The "Mail."

Is very profuse in its denunciations of spies, post office robbers &c., &c. When men embark in the commission of crimes, it should be remembered that they by that act place themselves beyond the protection of law, and any correspondence revealing their plots becomes legitimate public property.

Huntington's Charge.

Some of the organs claim that Huntington's charge "that the Government "were aware that negotiations were pend-"ing between these parties"—(the Americans and Sir Hugh) has been disproved. Sir Hugh ought to be good authority on that point, and here is what he swore to before the Commissioners: In reply to the question, "were the Government "aware of the existence of the agreement "between you and your American asso-"ciates?" Sir Hugh said, "No, they "were not, but they were aware that "negotiations were going on and had been "going on." Does not this substantiate to the letter the assertion made by Mr. Huntington on that particular point?

The Rats are leaving the sinking Ship.

The electioneering agents of Langevin and Abbott are being rewarded with pickerships and sinecures. E.Y. Peacock, the Government employee, who perpetrated forgery, fraud, perjury and intimidation in South Renfrew, and defrauded Mr. McDougall of his seat, has been appointed Inspector of Post offices. Angus Morrison, the warmest political hack and faithful servant of John A. has been given a Collectorship [illegible] Customs. Tom Ferguson of hare tooa and spitroon hunting notoriety has got another Collectorship. Others in envelope with politics dupes demanding the reward of their infamy and treachery have got [illegible] Verily, all things betoken a speedy dissolution of the corrupt ring of Tory tricksters.—Globe.

Flooding Bytown.

We learn that Mr. Edward Sutton last a flour very cheaply in Mr. Wm's planing machine Tuesday, September last. He was working the machine, and carelessly let his hand pass to near it, when almost instantly the finger was snapped off. It gave a great inconvenience to him, but we are glad to learn nothing more serious occured.

Railroad Corpse.

We understand that Mr. Cox's public dinner on Tuesday next. Already 50 tickets have been agreed to extend, and a number of others have signified their intention of attending. If one first thought has to limit the number to 50; there may be taken in, but none after the opening of the dinner. Therefore all who desire to obtain a commercial admission, and who can attend, would do well to see Mr. Cox at once. We understand that at the close of the first dinner, $60.00 will be awarded in cash prizes.

Parliament is summoned to meet on the 23rd of October.

Young Canadians I. O. F.

The regular monthly meeting of the above Lodge for October will be held next Tuesday evening in the Orange Hall.

A Hint.

There are not a few who forget that the Printer has liabilities, and some of them forget this for several years. Our intention is to solicit payment of all claims of two years or over, now due; and where a disposition for further delay is manifested, to place all old accounts in the hands of a Solicitor for collection at once. We trust, however, that this gentle hint will prevent any such action on our part. The following statement will demonstrate the necessity for doing something in this matter: Suppose 100 of our subscribers owe $10 each, equal to $1,000. 100 more may be set down at over $5 each, or $500. 100 about $3 or $300; besides smaller sums; making in all over $2,000 of arrears, older than 2 years. Now we are persuaded that many of these would pay at once if called on, but this is very difficult. Just think of the expense of visiting so many persons scattered over every imaginable corner of the County. Our friends, we know, will not entail the trouble and expense on us.

Personal.

Mr. Fred E. Burnham is so far recovered that they hope to be able to bring him home from Newcastle to-day.

The Tellers

Of Toronto are on a "Strike" for higher wages.

The Council

Should complete the water tank at the Canada Presbyterian Church. It is in a nice state to drown small children whose curiousity may lead them to inspect it. It is close to the school and without a cover.

Cattle

We were unable to attend the Show at Bridgenorth on Tuesday, but hope to give the prize list next week.

Sale.

The ladies of Peterborough are holding a sale of clothes, toys, &c., in Bradburn's new block to-day and to-morrow. The sale is for the benefit the Miss McPherson "Home," Belleville, and we are informed that everything is marked very low. The sale should be freely patronized as the object is a worthy one, and serviceable articles may be obtained at moderate prices.

Brock Street

Is a specimen of the results of indecision on the part of the Council. They should go in a body and see it. They can see its deformity even with gas light, bad as Mr. Moore represents that to be. It should be levelled at any rate and the hole opposite Dr. Burnham's property filled in. It is a shame to see it. The street East of George Street also requires to be put in shape at any early day.

Extensive Sale of Well Bred Stock &c.

Joseph Redmond, Esq., of Otonabee will have an extensive sale of thorough bred cattle, sheep and hogs, besides other cattle and horses, on the 24th instant. Mr. Redmond is one of our best farmers and prides himself in his stock, parties therefore, wishing to secure thorough bred Durhams, well bred sheep or serviceable horses will do well to remember the day, Friday, 24th October. Mr. Redmond's farm is about 3 miles from Peterboro, on the leading road to Keene.

Another Shooting Accident.

Dr. Kincaid received a telegram from Lakefield, on Tuesday, that a man had been shot by accident at Young's Point. On enquiry we found that the unfortunate man was Francis Young. Dr. Kincaid held an inquest on Tuesday, at which the following facts were elicited.

The unfortunate man had gone into McFarlane's tavern at Young's Point for some liquor to put on bitters he was taking. McFarlane had been out firing at a mark with a revolver, he came in to give Young the liquor and was putting the revolver into a drawer in the counter on which Young was leaning his elbow, his head being on his hand. The revolver went off and the ball passed through the heart of Mr. Young, causing instant death. The parties are all relatives, we believe, and were on the best of terms, so that the unfortunate event was accidental. Deceased is about 40 years of age and leaves a wife and eight children to mourn their sudden bereavement.

Sir John Young

Has published a letter setting forth his whole circumstances connected with the Pope Macdonald Trial. It shows unfairly the Ministerialists and Tories—or shysters of those honorable gentlemen.

THE ROYAL COMMISSION.

The ministers gave their friends the impression at a very timely hour. The counsel began by asking the most difficult questions to confuse the commissioners so as to show that the representatives of the people though appointed by nothing. This is their hope and the only chance of their safety. There is not a question of their having received large sums for their election purposes, and this was used in building the shanties. The only plan is—it is common to do so. John A. goes through the farce of questioning Mr. Langevin about rumours in Lower Canada. Was there ever anything more ridiculous than putting in rumours as evidence under oath. Langevin denied that the Globe ever published lies; and that the Tories lost, he says, because they had not enough of money.

The phenomenon of these admissions deserves the greatest consideration. Ministers spent $350,000 of Sir Hugh Allan's money, and bought enough, and all the independent of what was subscribed by other friends of that party. They did not even think of the barefaced admission of bribing every man they could, but regret that they had not more money to try the rest who remained firm.

Attorney-General Ouimet says:

"In a conversation which I had with Sir Hugh Allan in April or May, 1872, that gentleman asked me to forget nothing in the interest of the Northern Colonization Railway. He also spoke to me in the interest of the Opposition Party, to which he attributed his continued prosperity in a great measure, and did not hide from me the fact that that Party had really made efforts to maintain his railway company, and that he was convinced the Party had made sacrifices in his favour, or words to that effect."

Sir Hugh, it appears, knew his man, and how to win them. He is a tender-foot to carry the mails to England, for which he receives a large subsidy. The Conservatives have given him that. The question arises: How much did he pay to secure their election in the past? Attorney-General Ouimet, says: "he knows from experience nothing can be done in elections without money." It thus appears that there has been a wholesale system of bribery for years, that on this was founded Wm. McDougall's assertion that the Intercolonial would keep the party in power 10 years. How long will this be continued? How long shall men be allowed to control Canadian affairs, who boldly admit the use of money to bribe the Electors? The argument that money was used against them is of no avail, as they have not shown that this was so.

Let the people now see that corruption is put a stop to, and by punishing the criminals do what is possible to prevent a repetition of the crime.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

The elections in this Province are over, and resulted in favour of the Dominion Government. Out of the six members returned, four are Ministerial, one Independent and the other Opposition. It is said that on the Huntington scandal case, five of them will vote with the Government, in case a motion of want of confidence is brought up. This will secure the Government a good majority.—Ex.

South Huron.

The election contest in South Huron for the Ontario Legislature promises to be a triangular fight. Mr. Archibald Bishop, Warden of Huron, is the regular Reform candidate. Mr. George Case, of Seaforth, is the regular Tory candidate. Dr. Worthington, of Clinton, comes out as a prohibition candidate.

A Despatch

From Newfoundland conveys the intelligence that Parliament is dissolved, and that the Government have gone to the country on the Confederation question. It is thought that they will be successful, and that the 1st July, 1874, will see the Island duly enrolled as a member of the Canadian Union, thus accomplishing the schedule of Confederation as adopted by the Quebec Conference of 1864.

Grave Dug.

It is said that a grave is being dug beside those of the defunct Telegraph and Express for the reception of the mortal remains of the Toronto Mail. That journal is not expected to survive the demise of the Macdonald-Allan-Ministry, shortly expected.

The "Mail"

Is very profuse in its denunciations of spies, post office robbers &c., &c. When men embark in the commission of crimes, it should be remembered that they by that act place themselves beyond the protection of law, and any correspondence revealing their plots become legitimate public property.

Huntington's Charge.

Some of the organs claim that Huntington's charge "that the Government "were aware that negotiations were pend-"ing between these parties"—(the Americans and Sir Hugh) has been disproved. Sir Hugh ought to be good authority on that point, and here is what he swore to before the Commissioners: In reply to the question, "were the Government "aware of the existence of the agreement "between you and your American asso-"ciates?" Sir Hugh said, "No, they "were not, but they were aware that "negotiations were going on and had been "going on." Does not this substantiate to the letter the assertion made by Mr. Huntington on that particular point?

The Rats are leaving the sinking Ship.

The electioneering agents of Langevin and Abbott are being rewarded with judgeships and sinecures. E. P. Franck, the Government employee, who perpetrated forgery, fraud, perjury and intimidation in South Renfrew, and defrauded Mr. McDougall of his seat, has been appointed Inspector of Post offices. Angus Morrison, the vermest political hack and faithful servant of John A. has been given a Collectorship of Customs. Tom Fergusson of mule fame and spittoon hearing notoriety has got another Collectorship. Ottawa is crowded with politicians demanding the reward of their infamy and fraud. The people are disgusted. Verily, all things betoken a speedy dissolution by the corrupt ring of Tory tricksters.—Globe.

Financial Embarrassment.

We learn that Mr. Edward Sutton lost a finger very cleanly in Mr. Weir's planing machine Tuesday, Administered. He was working the machine, and carelessly let his hand pass to near it, when almost instantaneously the finger were snapped off. It was a great inconvenience to him, but we are glad to learn nothing more serious occurred.

If the first thought best to limit the number to 40; there may be taken in, but none after the opening of the class. Therefore all who desire to obtain a commercial education, and who can attend, would do well to see Mr. Cann at once. We understand that at the close of the term about $60.00 will be awarded in cash prizes.

RAILWAY EXPRESS TO PETERBORO.

Col. Chamblin, Managing Director of the C. P. & Mattawa R. R. & Mining Company was in Town on Monday, and in the evening addressed the Council on the matter of giving the Company the $40,000 bonus voted for extension to Mud Lake.

The Council appeared unanimously of opinion that debentures should be paid as soon as the road was completed from Rice Lake to Mud Lake, and they also introduced a By-law to obtain the consent of the ratepayers to that end.

It was wisely held that extension northward was a necessity, and that in keeping good faith with the Company, the Town would be better able to secure the extension to Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls, and also to Haliburton.

Col. Chamblin declared before the Council that it was not his intention to stop at Mud Lake, he intended getting to Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls, and the lumber districts as soon as possible.—He was anxious to complete the road from Cobourg to Mud Lake first, and then, if fair bonuses and encouragement should be given he had no doubt but the road would go farther north. The ultimate destiny of the road he could not state,

There are no two opinions of the necessity of going northward as far as possible, and the Town Council should not be remiss in securing extension as soon as possible. The Victoria Road is seeking new legislation to compel the County to pay $60,000 to build a road to Lindsay and Toronto. Would it not be better to give the money to build a road from the Town of Peterboro to Haliburton? Action ought to be taken immediately in this matter, as, if the people of Peterboro are asleep, railway men are not. Their personal interests won't allow them to neglect opportunities.

In the last meeting of the County Council, Mr. Pearce, Reeve of Belmont, pledged his district to support a bonus for a road to Haliburton, provided it should start from or near the Town of Peterboro.—Mr. Peck pretended to doubt his intentions, or promises, whereupon a motion was moved by Mr. Choate, seconded by Mr. Pearce, that the Council was prepared to submit a By-law granting a bonus to a road northward from Peterboro. Then both Pearce and Choate are pledged to a bonus for a road to Haliburton if the starting point be Peterboro.

We intended giving a full report of the discussion that took place then, but now think that the gist of it is given above. The whole matter is in an egg shell so to speak. There is a desperate effort being made to bar the County by Rice Lake and Orillia from Toronto. The northern people are not against Peterboro if we could prove ourselves sincere in going to work. The Toronto City and the Lindsay people are making comparative legislation. M. C. Cameron when he addressed the County Council dwelt on what he was pleased to style "The Peterboro Iniquity." The members of Parliament were led to believe that Peterboro was eating "dog in the manger," and hence the past legislation which was mainly being commenced in only polling this County to pay $60,000 to build a road to Toronto. Now is the time for this Town and County to take action to secure the road, and all the money must be spent in building up our own Town and County.

The Reeves of the Northern Townships and Hastings, Dummer, Belmont and Harvey are in favor of a road north from our County Town. G. Laidlaw & Co'y are anxious to steal a march and get the $60,000 before we are aware. Shall we let them?

THE PROSPECTUS

Never were better for a road also to Fenelon Falls via. Bobcaygeon. In establishing the By-law now talked of, it should not be lost sight of that the time for completing the road to the latter place soon expires depending to the terms of our own Bye-law; this should be remedied by extending the time.

There will be a meeting of the Railway Committee to-night. Business notice now must secure the attendance of as large a body as possible. Already we have one road to the South, and a second almost completed. When the Peterboro & Chemong road is built, and that 40,000 secured, the Company, Peterboro' with all this railway communication, will become a great market of trade, and demand then will be made to supplement any debts they subscribed.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Council met on Monday evening.

Present—The Mayor and Messrs. Dixon, Moore, Patterson, Smith, Deane, Sperry, Toole and English.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read over and confirmed

A communication was read over from Mr. S. Gregg, market clerk, stating that Charles Sidgwick had refused to pay toll for selling annuals on the market square, alleging that being under exemption they were free. Mr. Gregg also stated he had summoned Sidgwick before the Police Magistrate, and asked the Council to allow the solicitor of the Council to attend to the case.

An account from Messrs. Robertson and Walsh for printing, amounting to $18.50 was referred to the Finance Committee

The Mayor stated that Col. Chamblin was present and wished to address the Council on the matter of the Debentures to the Cobourg Railroad.

On motion, Col. Chamblin addressed the Council:

He said he came to have a frank conversation with the Council in reference to the debentures voted to the extension of his road to Mud Lake. He knew that these were understood conditions that the road was to be in running order by the 1st of April. This he had not been able to effect; although they all know he had done all in his power to that end. He did not ever think that a perfect road could be made in the time, and as he believed the people of Peterborough did not desire to witness a failure of the Rice Lake embankment, he (Col. Chamblin) was anxious to make it a permanent work. He could have piled the lake and got a train over, but as he was not sure that, with former consequences before his eyes, the piling would stand till it could be pro-tested with an embankment, he considered to put in piers that would be permanent. He had now about 200 piers on the north side of the lake, and about a mile on the south side also completed. Many pieces were being laid ready for use, and the iron as fast as possible. In the centre the piers for the bridge were built, and only about a half a mile on each side of the bridge had to be completed. This was no short, compared with the whole, that there would be no difficulty in protecting it till the embankment could be made. This had been done at great cost; whether had to be got out and drawn by the work, and skilled labour had to be employed at greatly increased rates. Still no expense was spared to hurry the work along. The road was completed from Ashburnham to Mud Lake, and the iron laid three miles south of the village. The remainder would not require a long time to complete, as the bridges were all constructed, the culverts repaired, and the grading all put in order. He expected to have the road and Rice Lake bridge ready for trains by June 1st or July 1st, and he was satisfied that the delay of a few months was nothing compared with the advantages of having a permanent structure when completed. He then referred to the fact that he had not entered on the work as a speculation. His Company was a Mining Company and not a Railway Company, and when undertaking to re-open the Cobourg road to Peterborough, it was at the requisition of a deputation from the Town of Peterborough. He felt that having made his home in Canada he ought to do what he could to develope any trade that he could, and his only desire was to receive interest on the money invested. He had made close calculations, and after reckoning the bonuses and the probable Government grant, he thought he could make it pay interest, and hence he advised his company to undertake the work. They had done so in good faith, and he certainly thought the people of Peterborough were acting in good faith also. And now that he had done more work than was at first contemplated before receiving the $4,000, he came to see what the Council could do. The American Company had furnished the money so far, and he felt that it would be placing him in an awkward position to have to go to them and ask for an additional $4,000. The Council also knew that he could have had better terms, as the original agreement contemplated paying the money when the road should be graded. He, hearing so much talk at the time, said: "Wipe out conditions; I will build the road to Mud Lake and then give me the money." The road was built to Chemong Lake, and he now expected the Council would act in good faith, as he had done all along, as it certainly would be better for all parties to be working in good faith with each other. He had no other object than to work for the benefit of those along the line

Col. Chamblin being asked what was his intention as to going further south to Bobcaygeon or Fenelon Falls, said:

He never had, and does not now intend stopping at Chemong Lake. His idea was, and is, to go Bobcaygeon and Fenelon at least, and the Messrs Schoenberger were of that opinion also. But he, Col. Chamblin did not wish to make extension north depend on the receipt of this $40,000. He preferred completing one undertaking before commencing another, and he did not see any way what that had to do with their keeping good faith in this. He had no doubt but that the Company would extend the road to the lumber districts, as they intended at first, but he would not make if conditional on receiving this $40,000 as he considered that had already been fully earned by contracting the road to Chemong lake The object of the Company would not be gained until the road should be completed to Fenelon Falls.

After some remarks by Messrs. Moore, Smith, English and Dixon, in which all agreed that the Council was morally bound to pay over the $40,000 when the road was completed between Rice lake and Chemong lake, it was held that the matter should be submitted to Ratepayers, hence:

On motion of Mr. Dixon, seconded by Mr. Sperry—A By-law to authorize the Mayor and Town Council to hand over the $40,000 of Debentures to the Cobourg Peterboro and Marmora Railway and Mining Company was read a first time.

On motion of Mr. Smith, seconded by Mr. English,—The Mayor, was requested to call the Town Committee on the Cobourg & Peterborough Railway extension By-law, to meet with the Town Council to consider the bond of $40,000 and the best mode of submitting a By-law to the Ratepayers, to authorize the Town Council when to hand over the debentures to the Company and on what conditions, if any.—Carried Moved by Mr. English, seconded by Mr. Peterson,—That the power of the position of Peter Hamilton and others dated 22nd of Sept., 1873 be granted, and that the Treasurer be instructed to pay the costs due on the suit after the bill has been properly taxed.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. English, seconded by Mr. Dixon,—That the Clerk be instructed to request the Town Solicitor to attend the Police Court on behalf of the Plaintiff in the case of [illegible] Sidgwick.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Smith, seconded by Mr. English,—That Messrs. Moore, Sperry, Patterson, English and the mover be and are hereby appointed a special committee to make arrangements for the better accommodation of parties bringing to market for sale in buildings, sheds, stores, open spaces, markets, public squares, &c., and with power to act.

Moved by Mr. Moore, seconded by Mr. Patterson,—That the Mayor by direction is give the necessary notices of intention to apply for an Act of Parliament to establish Water Works in Peterborough.

Moved by Mr. Moore, seconded by Mr. Smith—That the complaints in reference to a neglect of the Gas Company to supply street lamps with light on Saturday nights, and in reference to a supply of light on moon shiny nights, be referred to the Gas Committee, to report at next meeting. Carried.

The Council adjourned for two weeks.

CANADIAN EXPORTS.

From the Stratford Canuck.

Just now the Tories are doing a little in the loyalty business. It is alleged that when Black Rod appeared to summon the Commons, none can heard. Perhaps it was Tupper. We know that he openly taunted about twelve hundred the Prince of Wales, in Nova Scotia, and the man who did that would certainly kiss the little dandy, Kimber. The Tory organs, however, solemnly avow that the cheer came from the Opposition benches, and of course they always tell the truth.—They also allege that the Commons did not at once trot out after Kimber, as the faithful Commons ought to have done. Well, supposing the question was asked these ill-informed the times, "What are you going to do, Kimber, eh?" of course the answer would be, "raise the loyalty howl;" and the howl has been raised accordingly. The organs great and small took another look at what was left of the "subsidy" to bring their courage up to the "pitching point," and went for the Government time into the loyalty business. They allege that Brown and Young, and Huntington, and Blake, and Mackenzie, and Jette, and all their followers, and all their wives and able-bodied relations are disloyal to the core. The Mail in order to be a little more genteel than the common herd, dares to say that the Opposition leaders have insulted their "Royal Mistress."

We stop not to show that the miscreant who can drag in our Sovereign's name to point his filthy falsehood is at heart a rebel himself, but we do say that the men who own his journal and pay him for slandering his superiors have done more to disgrace Royalty than all the other subjects who ever received imperial honors at her Majesty's hand. Not the least humiliating thing connected with this Pacific scandal, is the fact that the four men deepest in the mire, received at Her Majesty's hand the honor of Knighthood. To them our noble Queen committed the keeping of the national honor, and right royally have they guarded their trust! We say nothing about Sir George Cartier. It may suit the purpose of his former colleagues to bia-kus-his memory by laying all the blame of this Pacific business upon him, but we allow them to spit on his grave. The Baronet is gone, but three Knights remain—Sir Hugh Allan, Sir Francis Hincks, and Sir John A. Macdonald. A noble trio these! Each knighted, metaphorically speaking, before Her Majesty, and was made a Knight. Her Majesty said, "Rise Sir Hugh." Sir Hugh arose, and not very long after showed how deserving he was of Royal favor by confessing himself a wholesale briber of newspaper proprietors, editors, politicians, and everybody else he could buy up. Sir Hugh truly is a loyal man—loyal enough at all events to bribe British subjects with American gold. Sir John also "arose" and evinced his loyalty by bartering the greatest railway enterprise in the Empire for money with which to bribe her Majesty's subjects. His appreciation of the honor conferred on him is well shown by his wailing telegram: "Send me another ten thousand." His peculiarly dignified conduct on the hustings at Kingston and Sarnia proves how much respect he had for his "Royal Mistress." Sir Francis "arose" too, at the Royal command, but the influence of Her Majesty's presence was forgotten, and he soon came to realise that "$60,000 at his time of life" was worth more than personal honesty and national honor.

These three men, who wear the highest imperial honors have added to their other political sins the crime of treason, and yet their barpies have the unblushing impudence to prate about the loyalty of their leaders. Sir John A. Macdonald has dishonored the Queen who knighted him, and disgraced Her Majesty's Privy Council, and yet the toadies who spend his bribes and do his bidding have the brazen effrontery to write homilies about loyalty. Possessed of a title conferred by Her Majesty he should surely have kept it out of the dirt. He has not done so, nor have the other two "Sir" of Pacific fame. They have not only disgraced the Dominion—they have grossly dishonored the Queen by wearing the title she conferred, while they openly trafficked in political corruption, and it is at such a time as this that the organs are blatant about loyalty. While Sir John besmirches the British flag, and dishonors the British Sovereign, his lackeys are screeching about loyalty! The most marvellous thing on the earth is Tory impudence. Tories pelted Lord Elgin. Tories mobbed Lady Elgin. Tories sacked the flag of treason at Brockville and other places. Tories drew up and signed the annexation manifesto. Tories Knighted Tories disgrace the whole empire by their political rascalities, and yet Tories prate about loyalty!

A FEARFUL LEAP.—The steamer Bohemian was entering the Lachine Rapids about half-past five last evening, and all eyes were turned with the well known mingling of delight and fear toward the boiling, heaving waters before them, when the dreadful cry rose amid the roar of the rapids, "Man overboard." Horror took the place of pleasure, and all turned to gaze on the fast disappearing form that struggled with the billows, but there was no hope; for it would have been destruction to change the vessel's course or slacken her speed when they were. Whether the beautiful but deadly Lachine had fascinated him like some glittering serpent; or a wild desire came to this lonely man to choose a lonely grave, we shall never discover. He was tall, of a dark complexion, and well dressed, but no one knew his name; nor did his satchel, which was all he left, contain any means of identification. We can only say that an unknown man made a fearful leap into an unknown future.—Montreal Witness.

And the crown into battle led.
The public records tell the tale
The bloody contest with Jefferson,
Was no Clear judge, he would have seen,
And gave them what their crimes deserve.
Yet Balcom still to his king is true,
And still to his throne gladly bow,
Sovereigns may slay me, and my kin,

The Yankees may say at us laugh,
But we're not an easy prey.
Tell to that yet he's ready for Freedom
Many scarred ere in the Dominion,

He being a seller, many fight,
Good reason to desire to leave,
Yet he will not run from enemies,
Come one who the Country's rights,
Let the call to rod and gun,
We hope the word is not for us,
But if it is we're ready,
Let Balcom answer that, and
Let him not have office for nothing.

SIR,—Will you please inform me through the columns of your paper, if the Mayor of Peterboro' has the power to appoint a Deputy Mayor, and if so, how he is appointed, and how long he holds office?

Yours truly,

[We have no knowledge of the Mayor having the power to appoint a Deputy Mayor. The Council appoints a Deputy Reeve, who holds office for the year.—ED. EXAMINER.]

Railway Accident.

We regret to learn that Mr. F. Burnham of this town met with an accident at Newcastle on Thursday, on the second Trunk Railway. It appears that while the train was still in motion he attempted getting off, but slipping, he struck a wood truck and was thrown under the wheels of the car. His left leg was badly smashed when it is feared will cause it to be amputated.

DID SIR JOHN SELL THE CHARTER?

Sir Hugh, writing to Mr. McMullen on the 9th of August, says:

"Yesterday we entered into an agreement by which the Government bound itself to form a Company of Canadians, only according to my wishes. That this Company will make me President, and that I and my friends will get a majority of the stock, and that the contract for building this railroad will be given to that company. This position has not been attained without large money payments."

Sir H

CANADA'S LOW SPIRIT.

None could be more grateful than the Americans themselves for the extra pains the Ministry have been taking to show that they were not to be allowed to have day share in the Canada Pacific Railroad. Their republican instincts have been generously aroused to astonish the corruption which is supposed to have been natural to them, and but for Sir Hugh Allan succeeded in procuring a charter for a company partly composed of Americans it is possible that his name in astonishing the Ministry and debauching the constituencies would have been lost at their door, both by himself and the Government which benefitted by the golden shower. He might have pleaded that, as "evil communications corrupt good manners," his morals had suffered from the company of his republican associates. As the New York Tribune says:

"If the absurd prejudice which insisted that the Canadian Railroad should only be built by American and English capital had not been circumvented, we should have had the responsibility of the whole scandal. When it was found, as it has been (in spite of the Royal Commission), that the managers had procured their princely contracts by subsidizing the Ministry and corrupting the politics, people would have jeerly said —How very American!"

Therefore the Canadian Government and its pet Company of natives are left to the exclusive enjoyment of the notoriety accruing from the corruption and connection of one of the most extensive and disgraceful schemes of national corruption ever devised. Whether Americans gold was used in the process and whether those who gave it knew the form nor it was to be put to, may not clearly appear, but it is plain enough who asked for it and bear the whole responsibility of "placing it where it would do most good."

It has been the boast of the present Ministry that they are devotedly loyal to British connection, and it was common for them to taunt their opponents in Parliament with entertaining annexation or independence proclivities. It is seen now how much this protested affection for British institutions is worth. While making damaging admission of the employment in the elections of vast sums of money, where mean no could only be for corrupt purposes, Sir John Macdonald attempted to give the matter a reputable look by appealing to British practice and his organs, taking up the cue, have carried out the idea, so that the public are asked to believe that the gross offences against purity of election of which the Government of the Dominion are accused by the London Times, are justified by the example of Great Britain. "So an ill bird that defiles its own nest," says the proverb. The idea of a rogue quoting his mother's example as an apology for his sins is something to make men shudder. Every one knows that in this matter there is not the least parallel between Canada and the Mother Country. Such things transpiring in the latter as have lately been dragged to light among us would deeply have caused a commotion exceeding that following on the Chartist movement some years ago. But the supporters of the present regime in Canada whose lip loyalty is so cumbrous that it so shame to drag momentous institutions through the mire into which their leaders find themselves plunged, and, stretching out palms foul with the droppings of corruption, exclaim, "These hands are clean."

Parliament when it meets on the 23rd proximo will have the opportunity of doing not only the Dominion, but the British Empire, the greatest possible service. Corruption, like a Upas tree, rears its poisonous form in our midst, and there must be root and branch work made of it if there is to be any moral health left in the land. Cut down it must be in some form or other. The people of Canada will not always submit to be dragged down and exposed to universal contempt by their representatives.—Witness.

"On Friday evening last a young lady of this village," says the Saratogian, "received a letter out of the Post Office. Hastily opening it, she attempted to read its contents, but it was a puzzle, as she found it an impossibility to decypher many of the words and sentences, and those that she did, seemed to convey no intelligence, or to have the slightest particle of sense in them. She asked a young gentleman friend to assist her in reading it. He looked at the mysterious missive and smiled. Her curiosity was aroused, she examined the letter from his hand and attempted to read it and decide, but it was no use. She handed it back to him. He gazed at it and smiled a little broader, but said nothing. Now she was vexed, and thought it real mean in him to laugh and not tell her what about. After laughing until he grew red in the face and his sides shook and ached, he handed it back to her, saying: 'Whip, that's your own letter returned from the dead letter office!'

TWO MEN FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER.—Barrie, Sept. 20.—Before Justice Galt, John Lyon and son, George Sydney Lyon, formerly of Priceville, in the county of Grey, hunters, were this day convicted of the murder of Francis Fuhrer, trader, from Syracuse, New York State. The murder was committed last February at Comanche Lake, in the Parry Sound district. The deceased had a large amount of money about him, some Canadian and some American currency. When the prisoners were arrested a large amount of the money was found on their persons. Dr. White, of Parry Sound, is the coroner who ferreted out the mysterious affair. The skull of the deceased was produced in Court, and its fractured appearance was strong evidence against the prisoners. It is evident from the testimony given that the murder was committed for the purpose of obtaining deceased's money. The prisoners were sentenced to be hanged on the 16th December next. E. B. Wood, Q. C., prosecuted in behalf of the crown; D'Arcy Boulton, Q. C., and Wm. Lount defended the prisoners.

THE KING OF ITALY'S VISIT TO GERMANY.

(XIX Siecle)

A new restoration will be a new war. That will be a war of Italy and of Germany allied against dismembered France. There can be no doubt in this respect, for we know surely that the day after that on which the Comte de Chambord shall have ressembled the throne of his fathers and have taken the title of Henry V, King of France, the recognition of the unity of Italy will be speedily demanded of him by the Italian Government, and thus in case of a refusal, even evasive would be immediately declared, King Victor Emmanuel having for his ally the Emperor William. This eventual alliance is not a secret to the Duc de Broglie, Minister of Foreign Affairs. Is it not enough to have lost Alsace and Lorraine, and to pay a ransom of five milliards? Must we still render ourselves liable to add to that the payment of a second ransom and the loss of Savoy and of the Maritime Alps?

(L'Opinione—Rome, Aug. 30.)

The presence of our King at Berlin would not signify servile obsequiousness to Germany, nor provocation towards France. But the party hostile to Italy can attribute to it a character that we deem contrary to the intention, not only of our Government but also of Germany. The Italian Government ought not to lightly yield to the fear of mistaken judges and of malicious interpretations. The politics are clear, enough to all those who are not in the habit of keeping the light of the sun. No one is likely to wish to provoke a war with France, and therefore no one desires that Italy should detach herself by the triumph of any of Europe, or her arms, and fetter her own policies.

(La Patrie Paris, Sept. 2.)

The journey of the King of Italy to a neutral State. Victor Emmanuel is going to visit Vienna and Berlin. It is vain to disguise the political character of this journey. Previously the King came back almost at. It was not a spontaneous resolution which determined him going. The Ministers have been consulted expressly to deliberate on the question. In short, the journey of the King results, as every one can see, from Vienna and Berlin. The undersigned has been informed that the King was not prepared to pay the necessary expenses of the journey to Vienna. It (that), as we believe, the Ministry took a decision. Parliament, which will be convened without delay, the Council of the King will consult on the expenses of the journey, and the Chambers will vote the credits necessary for the journey. Public opinion has been deeply moved by the journey of the King to Vienna. The Ministers have been consulted expressly to deliberate on the question. SPECIAL NOTICES.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL
Worth Ten Times its Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few representatives of medicine which deserve either the partial or universal use of the people of any length of time. Some of these are Holloway's Ointment, Graefenberg Oil, and Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Of the latter we can speak from personal knowledge of its merits, and we do not hesitate to say that it is the best medicine we have ever used in our own family. Intelligent physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Then in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or, proportion of the native ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of applicaties than any medicine ever before discovered. Where ever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alcohol is lost in that way, and you get only the smell of Oils which they may contain.

DR. WHEELER'S COMPOUND ELIXIR OF PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA is the best tonic in use, because it is the most physiological, being composed of ingredients absolutely essential to the development of the system. It speedily relieves indigestion, promoting a vigorous appetite and healthy nutrition. All cases of general debility, arising from wasting disease, such as consumption, scrofula, all diseases of the skin, diseases of the blood, prostration of the nervous system caused by protracted mental exertion, lassitude, over-work, or bad habits, will derive immediate benefit from it, frequently beginning with the first dose. It is a delightful cordial to take, and its use may be protracted for an indefinite period, without becoming disagreeable to the patient.

SUMMER HATS.—There is something peculiarly connective in a hat. Its intelligent eye and ear, his lofty carriage, his free and graceful motion, his vast strength, his obedient temper, and his tractable ear, all endear him to us. We have to look at his fine points and take to the implement with fondness and respect, for it is only when it is properly used that—when he is free from those burdens on his back of any kind that he will exhibit those points of attraction, and qualities which he is of his kind value. A package of Darby's Gunpowder Powders and Golden Hemp Remedy, should be in the pocket of every traveller, and should be used in case of emergency. Both fail to get it. Remember the genuine makes that the signature of Hord & Co. is on each package. Northrop & Lyman, Ont., general agents for the Dominion. Sold by all medicine dealers.

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER

A family medicine, well and favorably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

The CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier alternative stomach tonic, unsurpassed in the history of medical preparation. It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Cold Stomach Problems to Asthma, and restores in vital activity the system debilitated by suffering and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throats, coughs, diphtheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and in fact superseding all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains, chilblains, cholera morbus, bilious cholic, cholera infantum dysentery, &c.

Price 25 cents per bottle.

Education made attractive to Youth, by Mrs. Wilson, late from England.

Mrs. Wilson

Respectfully informs the Inhabitants of Peterborough and its vicinity that she intends D.V.

TO OPEN A SCHOOL

On the 1st of October, next,

FOR BOYS & GIRLS under 12 years.

Where she will give instruction in the following branches of English, viz: Spelling, Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, Grammar, Geography, History, Composition and Elocution.

Mrs. Wilson having been trained from her childhood expressly for the office, under each of Governesses, who, by her father, (the late Jas. Stevenson, Esq.) well renowned throughout all Ireland as the great Master of natural and experimental Philosophy, &c. Author of "A Systematic course of Mathematical exercises, parsing, composition of sentences, explaining everything requisite for obtaining a thorough knowledge of the English language." Also of "Geography and astronomy scientifically managed." "Natural philosophy," etc., etc. And she herself having the interesting and ennobling work of moulding the infant minds of dear innocent children, she has made it the study of her life, and has never failed of success she relieves the monotony and tedium of lessons by relating or reading pretty stories for her pupils, which while they amuse their fancy, (by their judicious selection), instil into all the better feelings of pure, loving humanity, and spurs them on to increased diligence. "She (them) creeps to conquer"

"They live to learn their story, who neglect for their sake,
To search their glory, and follow in their wake;
Books, poets, patriots, sages, and the noble of all ages,
Where deeds till history's pages, and fifty great volumes high."

Mrs. Wilson has been successfully employed in England and Ireland in teaching Mathematics, to both of whom splendid honors (gold and silver medals) were bestowed in schools; and which gives such a guarantee to parents; in fact, there is no true educational requirement possessing a thorough knowledge of the mathematics. She proposes, therefore to put up Blackboard Charts and Patterns, Sentences for the Parsing during the coming winter.

Parents and Guardians! Now is your chance. Such an opportunity does not very often occur of a female undertaking the task;—and when it is undertaken by one of fact, standard, a great deal depends on the minds of youth of both sexes, then a sure door; however good and competent may be the qualifications and talents may be.

She will now, on the first page, have spare parlor and room to accommodate a couple of boarders. Terms moderate. Apply at her residence, Peterborough.

She intends to have a Night School, also, for the benefit of those who cannot come to Daytime School.

Terms can be learned by calling at her residence, Peterborough, Sept. 25, 1873. 38-tf

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect denovator and invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

THE REASONS WHY

LAZARUS, MORRIS & Co's

CELEBRATED

Perfected Spectacles, AND EYE GLASSES,

have and are so much in demand are:

1st. Because they are found to possess all the qualities claimed for them.

2nd. Because they will reclaim sights abused by the common glasses, and will often be found to restore failing sight to its natural state.

3rd. Because no glimmering or dimness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed against injury to the Eye Sight from improper selections.

4th. Because the system of fitting is an unerring guide to the true requirement of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—solely our own.

5th. Because the never tire the eyes and last many years without the necessity of change.

6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.

Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable value.

Select Poetry.

IT NEVER PAYS.

It never pays to fret and grunt,
When fortune comes our foe,
The better bred will push ahead,
And strain the braver blow.
For luck is work,
And them who shirk,
Should not lament their doom.
But yield the pay,
And clear the way,
That better men have room.

It never pays to foster pride,
And squander pride in show,
For friends then won are sure to run
In time of want and woe.
The noblest worth
Of all on earth,
Are gems of heart and brain.
And sometimes clear,
A household dear.
And hands without a stain.

It never pays to wreck the health
In drudging after gain,
And he is said who thinks that gold
Is cheaply bought with pain.
A humble lot,
A easy cot,
Have tempted even kings,
For station high,
Thus wealth will buy,
Not oft contentment brings.

It never pays! A blunt refrain.
Well worthy of a song,
For age and youth must learn the truth,
That nothing pays that's wrong.
The good and pure
Alone are sure
To bring prolonged success,
While what is right,
In Heaven's sight,
Is always sure to bless.

The Polaris Castaways.

The whaling steamer Arctic, Captain Adams, arrived at the port of Dundee, Scotland, on the 19th of September from Davis' Straits, having on board the following men of the Polaris expedition, who were picked up by the whaler Resolute on the 20th of July, viz:

Capt. S. O. Buddington, sailing master, Dr. Emil Bessel chief of the scientific corps, Hubbard C. Chester first mate, William Morton second mate, Emil Schumann chief engineer, W. F. Campbell fireman, Nathan J. Coffin carpenter, Herman Siemons, Hy. Hobbs, Noah Hayes.

The men are all well, and show no marks of emaciation such as might have been expected after their terrible experience. The following narrative of the incidents that occurred after the separation of the crew is gathered from conversation with several of the party. The Polaris had been leaking badly before the 15th of October, 1872, and her situation ultimately became so alarming that it was deemed advisable to make preparations to abandon her. The determination to leave the ship was arrived at on the 15th of October, at which time they were in lat. 79. Some of the crew remained aboard while others landed on the ice, and they commenced to get out stores, with the intention of taking out everything they could need for a long sojourn in those frozen regions. Between 10 and 12 o'clock at night, while this work was proceeding, a severe gale sprung up, and the snow began to fall heavily, with strong and variable winds. Operations, however, were continued and after untiring efforts the boats were got upon the ice and a large supply of provisions taken out. Suddenly the hawsers by which the ship was made fast to the ice gave way—one snapping, the other tearing its anchor from its lodgement on the ice. This was about midnight. The anchor in starting tore off a large piece from the ice with three men upon it, and as the Polaris drove past them, they cried out in an agony of terror "what are we to do?"
